The lectures of Prof. Nicholls are of a high character, eloquently given and magnificently illustrated. They have been given before immense audiences, and everywhere have received enthusiastic praise. While educational in the highest degree, they have all the charm of romance and the attractiveness of splendid Pictorial Reproductions. The instruments used are of the finest and most costly description, and were built expressly for "The Nicholls' Illustrated Lectures." They are operated by an experienced and skillful operator, and no expense is spared to render this feature of the entertainment as perfect as possible. Y. M. C. A. Hall to-night.
