DOG'S GHOST HAUNTS CASTLE

LONDON, July 24. (British United Press)—"Will anything be brought to light about the 'Moody dhoe'?" This is the question Peel folks are at present asking themselves anxiously in connection with excavations now being made at Peel Castle in the Isle of Man.
 'Moody dhoe' is Manx for black dog, and Peel Castle, for centuries, has been famed for its tradition concerning the apparition of a black dog which is said to haunt the place.
 When the castle was used as a soldiers garrison the black dog was often seen, and although the soldiers became used to its appearance, they never relished the idea of its existence and always refrained from using strong language in its presence.
 One night, however, a soldier being drunk made up his mind to follow the mysterious animal and find out what it really was. Accordingly he set out after the mysterious animal along a dark passage, much to the alarm of his comrades. When he returned he was perfectly sober and speechless with terror. He died shortly afterwards with disclosing what had happened.
 From that time on no person was brave enough to enter this sinister passage. It was blocked up and another passage constructed.
 The tradition was related to Sir Walter Scott by his brother, who resided in the Isle of Man, and he immortalized the story in "The Lay of the Last Minstrel."
 Superstitious folk about Peel believe that it is well to let sleeping dogs lie and they hope that no effort will be made to pry into the secret of the closed passage.

Canned pineapples shipped from the United States to Germany last year weighed more than 17,750,000 pounds.

WOMAN VICTIM OF ANGRY BULL

BELLEVILLE, July 25.—Attacked by an infuriated bull, Mrs. Irvin Reid, 23, a resident of the township of Limebeck, near Stola, in north Hastings, succumbed shortly after she had been found by residents in a field adjoining the homestead.
 According to the story, Mrs. Reid had left the home to milk the cows and the angry animal, which had been purchased by her husband a few days previous, tore across the field and caught the victim with his horns, tossing her in the air and goring her when she fell to the ground.
 She managed to escape, although severely injured, to a nearby tree with the youngster. They climbed the tree, but a branch crashed, hurling both of them to the ground, and the blow rendered Mrs. Reid unconscious, while the child was also injured in the tumble.
 Both were found shortly afterwards when the walls of the child attracted the notice of friends. Dr. Eagleson of Madoc was summoned and 72 stitches were required to close the wounds. Later Mrs. Reid died of a hemorrhage.

JAPAN PROJECTS CIVIC CHANGES

TOKYO, July 25.—Yokohama leads in the proportion of the reconstruction programme which has been carried out since the earthquake of 1923, according to surveys recently completed. The work of rebuilding is now completed and the reconstruction board has disbanded.
 Work in Tokyo was delayed for some time but has been going on recently at a rapid rate and it is believed that the programme of rebuilding the capital will be completed before the end of the year.
 The principal projects in the reconstruction of Yokohama have been the exchange of lots to make room for the many new streets which have been put through. In these cases there had to be many complicated negotiations so as to satisfy the claims of those whose property was being used.

In Tokyo the principal new streets have been cut, the schools have been rebuilt, and all necessary changes in the city water system have been made. Arrangements have also been made for the exchange of lots. Parts of the rebuilding scheme involved the moving of 200,000 houses, and this has now been accomplished.

CRIME IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, July 24.—Murder and suicide are both on the decrease in Soviet Russia, but the taking of human life is still greater here than in Western Europe, and probably even greater than in America.

There are few statistics to go by, but the newspapers carry daily accounts of murders, in city and country, and often on a rather large scale. The number of village correspondents alone who have been killed in the last year or so runs into scores. They make it their business to report upon bribery, official malfeasance and other unpleasant conditions, and often they pay for their candor with their lives. Imprisonment for a few years is the usual punishment reserved for what the Reds consider more serious offenses—counter-revolutionary activities, bribery, espionage and the like.

Dr. L. L. Leivovitch, chief medical expert of the commissariat of public health, is authority for the statement that murders and suicides have become fewer, but accidents and injuries resulting from violence are increasing, he said. Half a million persons, according to his figures, apply to doctors each year in Russia after being beaten or injured in accidents. The majority of them, he said, were "more or less intoxicated."

"This figure can easily be doubled to get at the true number of injured, inasmuch as fully half the people who are hurt do not go to doctors," explained the health official.

"In rural districts, injuries are mostly due to beatings, family brawls and village rows, but in the larger cities 40 per cent of the injuries are attributable to the dwelling crisis, which has caused so much overcrowding of many families into apartments meant for one family.
 "Through all these statistics passes the red thread of alcoholism, which has been proven in Russia to be the inseparable companion of crime."

Many firemen were overcome by fumes during a fire in the wine vaults beneath the Queen Victoria Markets Sydney, Australia, recently, but all have recovered.
