

DEATHS

At Vancouver, B. C. on May 3, 1919, O. Leroy Perry, leaving a widow formerly Miss Florence Brooks of Murray Harbor, and three children.

At Cherry Valley, May 13th, 1919, Mrs. Francis McInnis aged 64. Funeral Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. Interment Vernon River cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

PRIVATE CECIL H. THOMAS

The death of Pte. Cecil Henry Thomas which took place at the home of his parents 83 Surrey St. Brighton, Mass., removes another of our brave Canadian heroes. He was the son of James Thomas and Margaret MacIntosh his wife who are both natives of P. E. Island.

Much could be written about our departed heroes, their cheerful entry into a conflict against a brutal foe, but we have a greater message to declare of the passing of Cecil Thomas. We know that a loving Saviour came in answer to his pleadings and the longing of his soul was satisfied in the blessed assurance of eternal life.

The funeral took place on Monday the 5th of May to Brighton Cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Ewen MacDougall of Charlottetown who was visiting Cambridge, Mass., at that time.

RECEPTION FOR RETURNED HEROES

THE PROMOTER'S WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

SHE APPROPRIATES A LETTER SHE SEES UPON NEIL'S OFFICE DESK

I felt positive the letter inside that envelope was from Blanche Orton. I had received invitations and acceptances from her, and could not be mistaken in the writing. I blushed with shame but I finally had the letter in my bag. Aunt had risen to look at the view as I spoke of it, and it had given me a chance to slip it in. I would find out what she had said to my husband.

"Shall we go now?" I asked. "We do not want to miss the first of the play," I said anxiously to get away before Neil came in.

"I don't like that girl's looks nor her manner. She seemed very pert to me," Aunt remarked as we gained the street.

"She is. I wish Neil would discharge her. But I don't like to speak of it. There is so much said of wives being jealous of good looking office girls, you know. He might think me jealous."

"Nonsense! you say you have only been there once before. I shall tell him that she isn't at all calculated to help his business if she acts with others as she did with us today."

I made no reply, hoping aunt would be able to get Neil to discharge the girl, yet knowing all the time that it was due to my own actions the day I had visited the office in Neil's absence, that she had been partly annoying.

Aunt chatted until we reached the theatre. I scarcely heard a word she said so anxious was I to read the letter that I had taken from Neil's desk. We had good seats, and aunt seemed to enjoy the play from the very beginning. I paid scant attention to the stage, so fixed upon the letter was my mind.

To my disappointment there were but two acts. I should have to wait some time for the intermission. I spent the time speculating upon the contents of the letter and whether Neil would return to his office and miss it. He had said something about club at luncheon. I wished I had listened more closely. I had not considered what I was to say if he missed the letter and his stenographer told him I had been in his private office. But now I commenced to worry about it, and wondered if there was not some way I could get the letter back on his desk after I had had read it.

The first act ended, I excused myself to aunt and went to the ladies' room. I took the letter from my bag, and finding a chair removed as far as possible from others who had sought the room for the sake of arranging their hair or using a powder puff, I commenced to read. First glancing at the signature. As I had expected Blanche Orton's name stared up at me.

"Dear Neil," it began. "I tried my best to get Frederick to come tonight. I got him on the telephone and urged him, telling him anything I could think of that would prove enticing. He was absolutely adamant. He pretended he would have liked to come if only you and Scott or Thompson were to be here. You know how blunt he is, and it was all I could do to keep pleasant when he intimated he thought I was doing wrong to receive T. and C."

I knew she must refer to Tearle and Connor. "However I have asked H— He is very rich, and a bit crazy over me so perhaps I can help you land him. Anyway it was the best I could do. Nancy and Lulu will come, and Scott and Thompson. Try and be early as there are some things I want to tell you that I hate to put on paper. As ever, Blanche."

I sat with the letter clutched in my hand. What was this intimacy between my husband and Mrs. Orton? What did it mean? It was in no sense a love letter, yet really I felt more anxious, more fearful of what it might mean than had it been. I was so ignorant, and so much had been said to worry me about Neil. Not until the orchestra stopped playing did I remember that I had a guest. I crumpled the letter in my bag, and gained my seat just as the curtain rose on the last act.
