Says Nothing New Offered To N. S.

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said today in the Commons the taxation agreement with Nova Scotia contained nothing that had not been offered to other Provinces signing tax agreements. He was replying to John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King tabled correspondence with the Provinces on the question of agreements since last January. The correspondence included letters exchanged with Premier MacDonald of Nova Scotia and tabled yesterday in the Nova Scotia Legislature.

It also contained an exchange in which Premier Manning of Alberta announced that he was recommending to the Legislature conclusion of a five-year taxation agreement with the Dominion. A letter from Premier Duplessis of Quebec, dated Feb. 5, 1947, acknowledged receipt of a letter in which Mr. King said the Federal Government would be ready to discuss taxation matters at a date mutually convenient to the Quebec and Dominion officials.

Mr. King's letter was sent to Mr. Duplessis in January after the Dominion had revised its offer to the Provinces.

"There's considerable difference of opinion as to whether Queen's should remain a dual constituency as it is or should be split up," he said. "There has also been a lot of discussion on the question but it's like the weather. Everyone talks about it but no one seems to do anything about it."

Mr. Douglas confirmed Mr. McLure's statement that the four Island members had met and signed an agreement asking the redistribution committee to maintain the status quo on boundaries of the four ridings in the Province.

GRADUATION EXERCISES

McEwen. His Honor Lieutenant Governor J.A. Bernard, after making a few appropriate remarks, introduced Dr. R.H. Kennedy who gave a short address to the graduates.

Address to Graduates

The text of Dr. Kennedy's address is as follows: Mr. Chairman, your Honour the Lt. Governor honored guests, members of the graduating class, ladies and gentlemen.

Speaking to a graduating class of nurses is always a pleasant experience, because we, more perhaps than any other member of society, realize the great potentialities for good which the young women as you can have for disease-stricken and suffering humanity.

I do not think that I am boasting when I say you are graduating from a great hospital. The institution in which you have laboured so faithfully during your period of training is one which, down through the years since its foundation, has been characterized by a never-remitting determination to give the people of this Province the best in hospital facilities and treatment which modern science can offer.

You have had the invaluable assistance in your training of an earnest and efficient staff of physicians; you have had encouragement and practical guidance from your superintendents and other qualified instructors and always you have had the moral and other support from your parents, relatives and friends. It is no wonder, then, that you have done so well.

And yet, lest it may seem that I am detracting from the great part you yourselves have played during your years of training, let me remind you that no farmer ever has produced a crop of wheat by sowing barley. Likewise, no hospital can turn out a nurse with proper material.

Unless deep down within that nurse's being are the God-given attributes of love, tenderness, and an all-consuming passion for relieving the distress, the suffering, the pain of mankind, the work of the hospital and of the doctors will be in vain. Yes, it is true, they can make a mechanical nurse. They can equip a young woman with knowledge and technique which is indispensable to modern hospital treatment. But unless she is possessed with those other qualities which I have mentioned, the work of the hospitals and the doctors will be in vain. More serious, still, her work also will be in vain.

A Noble Heritage

There is little need for me to remind you of the noble heritage left you by the founder of your profession, Florence Nightingale. Each of you has read her life and knows something of the glories she has bestowed upon the name of womanhood. My only reason for referring to her is that the story of her life graphically illustrates those qualities which I told you a few moments ago are essential to a nurse if she is to be worthy of the profession God has given woman to fill.

Florence Nightingale was born to be a nurse. You have read how she, as a tiny tot, would spend hours at a time nursing and bandaging her dolls. You have read that her first living patient was a shepherd's dog and of the wholehearted devotion she gave to that suffering animal. You have read of her fidelity in turning her attention from afflicting to human beings and that, thereafter, wherever disease and suffering on a large scale were to be found in England, Florence Nightingale was sure to be found in the midst of them. You have read of her working twenty-four hours at a stretch, day after day, in the crude hospitals in the Crimea and of how such a devotion to the sufferings of humanity has written her name immortal in the pages of history.

To the nurse who, with reverent hands, has picked up the torch thrown by Florence Nightingale, it matters not whether the sufferer on his bed of pain be a king or a charity patient. It matters not to her whether he be a missionary bearing wounds inflicted by savage tribes to whom he was bringing the Gospel, or a criminal awaiting arrest upon his recovery to see that they are all broken creatures, depending upon their suffering. Such a nurse will give that relief, freely and without stint, so far as her ability will allow.

Members of the largest class the Prince Edward Island Hospital has ever graduated, I am confident you will measure up to those high standards which I have so briefly outlined. You are a credit to your parents and to all those who have watched your progress in your studies with faith and love. You are a credit to the doctors and the nurses who have supervised your training. And, finally, you are a credit to the hospital from which you have today graduated with such distinction.

Personally, I may say you have my heartiest congratulations and best wishes for your future. That sentiment, I know, is concurred in by all those who, directly or indirectly, have had anything to do in your preparation for your noble career.

Following Dr. Kennedy's address, Matthew McEwen rendered the violin solo "Meditation" from This-Massachusetts.

Miss Marion Elizabeth MacKinnon of Ch'town R.R. 7 delivered the valedictory of the graduates in which she reviewed the trials and tribulations of the past three years in training and ended with a note of encouragement directed towards the undergraduates.

A girls' choir under the direction of Miss Pearl Burns sang "The Lord's Prayer" after which the playing of the National Anthem brought the programme to a close. Miss Helen Stewart acted as accompanist for the evening.

17 Local Girls To Take Part In N. S. Festival

Seventeen Charlottetown girls, with Mrs. Edwin Johnstone, their director, will leave this morning for New Glasgow, N. S., where they will represent the Province in the Nova Scotia Music Festival which opened in that town this week.

The adjudicator will be Sir Ernest MacMillan who gave his services in a similar capacity to the Saint John Music Festival, held there last week. Sir Ernest MacMillan is a noted concert organizer, composer and conductor, and was knighted in 1935 by his late Majesty King George V "for services to music in Canada," and is one of the leading musicians in Canada today. He has acted as adjudicator at the principal competitive music festivals in Canada, and at the National Elstvedoff of Wales.

Following are the names of the girls who are going to New Glasgow with Mrs. Johnstone: June MacPherson, Dorothy Allen, Norene Auld, Sheila Morris, Donalda MacLeod, Shirley Darrach, Margaret MacLennan, Eleanor Campbell, Mary Tait, Mary Campbell, Hilda Pickard, Norma Dalziel, Marilyn Rupert, Jeanne Moore, Margo Leard, Joan Large and Helen Stewart, accompanist.

Consider Raising Education Of Working Man

The need of raising the basic standard of education for the average working man in order that he might fully take advantage of opportunities for advancement along technical lines was discussed at a meeting of the Advisory Committee of the National Employment Service held at the local offices last night. The chairman, Mr. George Ryan, presided.

Representatives of one or more technical plants gave their views on the employee situation, stating that possibly through the establishment of a night school to give the fundamentals of a high-school education the ground would be laid for employees bettering their position with the company as their service progressed. It was pointed out that as time goes on qualifications for positions are becoming increasingly higher.

Members of the committee besides the chairman attending the meeting were Messrs. P. Dennis, J. T. Robinson, V.A. Ainsworth, J. B. Murler, Manager of the National Employment Office and Mrs. L. M. Corrigan, Secretary.

Among those taking part in the discussions were Messrs. A.G. Ley, assistant manager of the Maritime Electric Company, P. Palmer, Palmer Electric, Gerald Cameron, Island Telephone Company, Prof. Ralph MacLean, Prince of Wales College; and J.A.S. Williams, Teachers' Federation.

Two resolutions were passed at the meeting. One dealt with the enlargement of the committee to include employer and employee representatives from Summerside and the other requesting that a lady representative be added to the local committee.

It was intimated during the discussions that the average education of many seeking employment today was between Grades four and eight. It was felt that there was a need to upgrade the standard especially as it affected the basic elements of education if the workman was to be given an opportunity to qualify for a higher position. Unless some step, such as the establishment of a night school was undertaken, it will be necessary to go outside the Province in order to obtain suitable candidates to fill jobs which called for certain technical knowledge.

Following the discussion the chairman thanked the various speakers for the interest taken and felt that some concrete good would result. It was intended to take the matter before the Department of Education.

I. S. for their assistance in preparing the hall and the carrying out of the program, to Sgt. Augustus Dowling for his services and donation. He also stated that a cheque for one hundred dollars was forwarded to the Social Services of the Charlottetown Hospital—the entire proceeds of two sacred concerts.

Applications for three new members were read a first time. R. E. Bradley and R. A. MacDonald were appointed delegates to the State Convention to be held on May 28. The alternates were Eugene Kelly and T. W. Campbell.

Under the heading, "the good of the Order," T. W. Campbell occupying the chair introduced Mr. Justice A. E. Arsenault who read a very impressive and dramatic story of two bandits, Buck and Jim, and former paying the supreme penalty for the murder of a policeman in Moncton, N. B. some years ago. At the conclusion of the address a hearty vote of thanks was moved by the financial secretary, W. J. Brawlers, seconded by R. A. MacDonald and conveyed to the speaker by the Lecturer.

The Grand Knight on resuming the chair informed the Knights of Columbus degree team exemplified the First, Second and Third Degrees to a large class at Amherst, N. S. The Grand Knight Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, O.B.E., the Third.

In Memoriam

MRS. FLORA (MacDONALD) SHEA

On May 9, 1947, there passed to the eternity of rest, the soul of Mrs. Flora (MacDonald) Shea, formerly of Forest Hill, P.E.I., late of Marblehead, Massachusetts.

Her funeral was from the Stas of the Sea Church, and her body was interred in the adjacent cemetery overlooking the beautiful harbor of her adopted city.

As the litany of her communal was intoned by the pastor of her church, amidst the throng of her many friends and relatives and her family of sons and daughters, she was laid to rest beside her husband and sons who had preceded her by many years.

During the ceremony, the swish of the ocean beating upon the adjacent shore beckoned one's eyes toward the sea as the sun shone over the waters from the East, and which pointed toward her native land of P.E.I. from which she came in her early womanhood to the shores of her final resting place, in the beautiful city of Marblehead.

To mourn her passing she leaves three daughter and two sons and their families. She also leaves two sisters in Forest Hill, P.E.I., Mrs. Mary Reilly, and Mrs. Martin Morrison. Two brothers, also, one, Ronald MacDonald in Charlottetown, and J.G. in Maine. Four sisters and three brothers have predeceased her.

Thus the drama of life and death unfolds its panorama, and nature calls back to her bosom the children of her nativity, who have sojourned for awhile within her earthly habitation, and where they shall rest awaiting the Dawn of Resurrection.
