

Save Against the "rainy day"

The thought of being dependent some day, when illness or old age takes away one's ability to earn, is rightly distasteful to the Canadian mind.

The simplest, surest way to offset this is to open a Savings Account and add something to it every week. Come in and we will gladly explain.

THE UNITED STATES IMBROGLIO.

That troubles do not come singly has been amply verified in the United States during the past week. Owing to the foreign exchange situation the bottom has dropped out of the meat business the largest export item in their list. The investigation into their war record has brought to light a chapter of war profiteering and corruption for which there is probably no parallel. The quarrel between President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, resulting in the resignation of the latter and the expected resignation of other cabinet ministers, has created a political situation the full significance of which, to outsiders at least, is difficult to fathom.

Looking backward over the situation which has culminated in this political tragedy there are incidents which even the proverbially clever "Philadelphia lawyer" will find puzzling. It will be remembered that President Wilson was the father of the League of Nations proposition. Neither Premier Lloyd-George nor Premier Clemenceau was enamored of the idea and they both foresaw difficulties rather than abiding peace in the scheme. They acquiesced in President Wilson's proposition however and the League of Nations became a fact—on paper.

When the President, on his return to the United States looked for the recognition of his child by the Senate it was promptly declined and a controversy arose which has not yet ended. The President thereupon undertook to stump the country in the interests of the League of Nations while prominent senators took the stump against it. The President took sick. During his illness Lord Grey, appointed British ambassador to the United States, came over to enter upon his duties but the President was too ill to receive his credentials and as a result his ambassadorship became null and void and after a pleasant sojourn of some three months as a private but highly respected citizen he returned to England. During this time also, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales paid a short visit to the United States. He called upon the President and, according to the telegraphed reports, he and the President had the time of their lives together. Why the President could not receive Lord Grey officially, which was all that was required to give the latter his status as Ambassador is one of the mysteries.

During the President's illness also, Secretary Lansing, upon whose shoulders fell the full responsibility of the country's foreign relations, called a number of informal cabinet meetings, doubtless for advice and consultation. For this the President reprimanded him and asked for his resignation. But other things happened during the President's illness and of which the President had not been advised. One of these was the selection of Elihu Root as the "distinguished American citizen" to help organize the International Court of Justice in Europe. Apparently the President heard of this about the time he heard of Secretary Lansing's cabinet meetings and it may have added to the heinousness of the latter offence.

Yesterday our telegrams announced the rumored resignation of Secretary of War Baker. A few weeks ago Franklin Lane resigned from the cabinet. Other resignations are talked of and the end is not yet.

THE RENA MCLEAN MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

The Patriot evidently has a conveniently short memory when it suits its controversial methods. Yesterday it asserted that it searched the columns of the Guardian in vain with regard to our suggestion for the maintenance of the Rena McLean Memorial Hospital. In our issue of November 22 we referred to the Patriot's report of the intended closing of the institution and concluded our article as follows:—

"It is sincerely to be hoped that the institution will not be closed and that, if it be not required for its original purpose, the Dominion Government will find other means of utilizing it. It would make an ideal home, for instance, for incurables and it is regretted that as a result of this war there are a great many of these throughout Canada."

The Patriot did not come into line with us at the time but we are glad to find that even at the eleventh hour it is prepared to join forces. Every endeavor should be made to have this finely equipped institution retained in our midst for one or other of the purposes we suggest.

THE REASON WHY

WHY DOES A LAMP GIVE A BETTER LIGHT WITH THE CHIMNEY ON?

When a lamp is burning without a chimney it generally smokes. That is because the oil which is coming up through the wick is being only partially burned. The carbon which is about one-half of what the oil contains, is not being burned at all, and goes off into the air in little black specks with the gases which are thrown off. The reason the carbon is not burned when the chimney is off is that there is not sufficient oxygen from the air combining with it, as it is separated from the oil in the part where combustion is going on. To make the carbon in the oil burn you must mix it with plenty of oxygen at a certain temperature, and this can only be done by forcing sufficient oxygen through the flame to bring the heat of the flame to a point where the carbon will combine with it and burn. When you put the chimney on the lamp you create a draft which forces more oxygen through the flame, brings the heat up to the proper temperature and enables the carbon to combine with it and burn. When you take the chimney off again the heat goes down, when the draft is shut off and the lamp smokes again.

The chimney also protects the flame of the lamp from drafts from the sides and above, and helps to make a brighter light, because a steady light is brighter than a flickering one.

The draft created by the chimney also forces the gases produced by the burning oil up and away from the flame. Some of these gases have a tendency to put out a light or a fire.

A SUGGESTION FOR A BOY

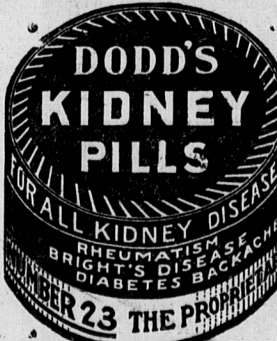

By George Matthew Adams
A boy of eighteen wrote me a letter the other day that made me very happy. He said that the simple, every-day suggestions were the things that helped him most, and to keep writing them. Here is a very old one—but it will never be too old to use—

Always do your best.
Never in my lifetime have I come in contact with so many people who are trying to get by and on by doing only as little as they have to. So that recently when I engaged an office boy in my place and asked him what salary he expected, I was almost taken off my feet when he said, "I leave that to you—I want the job!" I have been thinking that boy and I note that he always seems to be doing his best.

Always do your best.
I sounds trite, I know. But there isn't a sounder rule of work or of service. You will never regret the toil of your head or of your hand if you always do your best. And each new task will grow more interesting and fascinating.

Always do your best.
Some other chap may get more money than you do, but unless he always does his best, you will pass him in the race. I love the work of the ancients—for they worked for the pure fun and pride of producing lasting and beautiful things. As you grow in years, you will get more fully the greatness behind what they had in mind when they worked.

Always do your best.
Never waver. Keep a clean mind and heart. Think of the interests of other people—and always keep doing your BEST!
