CAR ACCIDENT.—What came near to be a very serious automobile accident occurred at the bridge near Milton yesterday. A lady driving a Dodge car, which had five other occupants, struck the railing of the bridge and the car went completely over the bank into the gully. Fortunately no one was injured. This was as far as known the only accident yesterday, which is rather remarkable as the number of cars which passed to and fro on the various roads leading to New Annan ran into an extremely large total.

Mussolini Bans Freak Names

(By British United Press)

ROME, Aug. 17.—Mussolini has come to the rescue of children who have to bear the lifelong burden of fancy names inflicted by thoughtless parents.

A bill has been drafted and submitted to the Senate, which already has approval, and the Chamber of Deputies, "for the prevention of anti-religious, anti-patriotic, ridiculous, or otherwise offensive names." This fresh instance of Mussolini's measures "restrictive of personal liberty" will be doubtless regarded as another proof of Fascist tyranny. But anyone who is familiar with the slums of San Lorenzo, the east end of Rome, cannot but welcome it.

In this quarter, almost exclusively inhabited by workmen and a plentiful sprinkling of hooligans, such names as Lucifer, Satan, and Lenin are quite common.

At the baptism of a child in the parish church of the Immaculate Conception the officiating priest refused to name the baby "Ateo", which means Atheist.

The mother, a poor washerwoman told the priest: "I don't know what Ateo means, but my husband is an unbeliever and he said that if I wanted to have the baby christened he must be named Ateo or nullo (nothing.)

The idea of the ignorant class in Italy is to select a name quite out of common, plain names being regarded as old-fashioned.

Some girls are named Satanina, other Dogala, Chinchia, Utilia, and Viperina, while boys are burdened with such names as Nevo, Diavolo, Ragano (lizard) Torpedo, and Nero.

Weird Coincidence

LONDON, August.—The raven, bird of ill omen and foreholder of death, is the central figure in a weird and tragic occurence at the Tower of London.

Ravens have made their home at the Tower for hundreds of years, and it is a superstitino among the troops that if a raven's death is encompassed a soldier's life pays the penalty.

A few days ago a Guardsman was leading a dog through the square. He was confronted by a raven, credited with eighty years, which attacked the dog vigorously with his beak, still sharp for all his advanced age. The Guardsman repelled the attack by means of his stick, and unintentionally killed the bird.

The barracks were filled at once with dread forebodings.

The raven's body was buried with due ceremony, and a piece of wood, suitably inscribed, was erected to mark the grave.

The sequel was not long delayed. The following night Guardsman Arthur Chidgey overstayed his leave. Hhe tried to enter the Tower by climbing the wall, but he fell into the moat, breaking both his legs. He was found the following morning—although the deepest sympathy was expressed for him—generally voted lucky in escaping the full penalty of the raven's vengeance.

He died later in the day, however, gangrene having developed.

The officer whose duty it was to report the details of the case visited the scene of the accident. He found that the unfortunate Guardsman had fallen directly on the raven's grave, the imprint of his body being clearly visible.

SENSATIONAT RACING AT NEW ANNAN YESTERDAY

Thousands Throng Stands and Race Course At Annual Outdoor Event—But Hal, British Ginger Al Worthy and Bingen Aubrey the Winners.

An attendance of upwards of five thousand thronged the New Annan race course and grounds yesterday the occasion being one of the big annual outdoor events of the season, the New Annan Races.

Yesterday's large and enthusiastic gathering was surely a glowing tribute to Messrs. J. J. McKinnon and James Pendergast the genial and hard working promoters.

The parking facilities for cars and teams was all that could be desired, not forgetting to mention the excellent and painstaking service in the catering to the huge crowd, in fact not a hitch marred the splendid days program of racing and other attractions. However things looked rather doubtful for awhile when the weather man went on his bad behaviour about one o'clock, dark clouds gathered accompanied by a spitting rain which developed into a downpour but slowed up within a half hour to allow King Sol to once more shine in all his glory; from then on the afternoon was all that could be desired.

The track was somewhat heavy yesterday due to the recent rains and this added to the fact that a strong wind faced the horses on the back stretch slowed them down considerably and hampered fast miles which would have resulted otherwise, as it was a number of mighty fast heats were clocked in every class.

The free-for-all and 2.20 trot furnished most of the day's thrills. The ever changing of positions and jockeying at the different quarters had the fans on their toes all the while. So exciting and close were some of the heats that a blanket would have easily covered four horses on the wire.

Another feature of the afternoon's racing was the colt race, three years old. This race had three starters, Al Worthy, Peggy, Longset, and Devilset. Peggy was forced owing to a slight lameness to withdraw after the first heat. Al Worthy and Devilset fought it out in a great exhibition of trotting.

Free-For-All

Had six starters, Peter Stratton winning the first heat with Bud Hal second, Longset third and Dan Patchen fourth.

In the second heat Bud Hal chased the Stratton horse to stay on his wheel and finally beat him to the wire in a great race. Keemah Aubrey was a good third with Patchen again in fourth position.

In the third heat Bud Hal on the pole held the front line to be given a sensational duel for first place by Dan Patchen who finished a nose in the rear, Peter Stratton breezed under a brilliant third right on Patchen's wheel; Keemah Aubrey was fourth.

Longset and Major S., in fifth and sixth positions respectively were R. O'd to leave the field in the care of the other four for the money.

In the last heat Bud Hal getting well out in front at the word was never headed; he was, however, chased to the wire by Aubrey in a great finish with Peter Stratton third.

2.20 Trot

This race had also six starters, British Ginger drawing sixth position and finished on the same figure in the first heat, to come out to win the next three and the race. He was chased in sensational and thrilling drives to the wire in all heats by Peter Verde. The Pup, beloved by all for gameness and trotting ability finished third after a great exhibition of racing. Acaciaville was fourth.

2.29 Trot and Pace

This race went four heats, Aubriana taking the first and Bingen Aubrey the next three and the race, the former getting second money, Igo third and Jessica the Great fourth. This race was a thriller, good times featured every heat.

Officials

Starter—F. J. Wright.
Judges—H. McInnis, Boston; W. B. McArthur, Summerside; W. Brown, Charlottetown.
Timers—Dr. A. Lockhart, Kensington; Dr. F. W. Christopher, Boston.
Clerk of Course, J. A. McDonald.

NOTES

Mr. Fred Wright in the official capacity as starter not only pleased the fans but horse owners as well. Fred surely knows his business. His wise judgment and kindly but expert advice is appreciated by all.

Mr. J. A. McDonald, Clerk of the Course is due unstinted praise for the manner in which he had the horse ready for the word, enthusiasm plus experience is hard to beat. Mr. Wright was heard to remark, "it surely lightens a starter's work to have such a capable man on the job."

Sensational racing, thrilling finishes and fine sportsmanship featured the day's excellent program.

Congratulations Jim!

The three round boxing exhibition bout between Kaney McDonald and Charlie Purcell, both of this city, was won by the former, decision.

Bag pipe music, highland fling and step dancing were other features of the day's entertainment.

Lone Dinner For Six

(By British United Press)

GLASGOW, Aug. 17—One man sat down alone to a dinner for six persons in a private room at a Glasgow hotel the other night. He ate his own dinner, but every course for the five phantom diners was brought and taken away untouched.

Waiters filled their glasses with wine, brought cigars and acted exactly as though the vacant chairs were occupied. With the coffee and liqueurs they retired and left the solitary diner alone with his thoughts.

Behind this strange ceremony lies an amazing story of a wealthy merchant's quest for a woman who was to have been his bride, and who vanished on the eve of a dinner party he was giving in her honour ten years ago.

The man is Theodore Royal, a retired New York business man. He tells a remarkable story of the tragedy which has embittered his life and started him roaming round the world in the hope that some day he will find his lost love.

Ten years ago, a few days before he was to have been married, he arranged a dinner party at an exclusive New York hotel for his bride-to-be and some nitimate friends.

The hour set for the dinner came. All the guests except the prospective bride assembled. The party waited. Still she did not come. Thinking she might have met with a mishap, Mr. Royal ordered his car and dashed round to her house. He was told she had left an hour and a half previously to go to the hotel. From that day to this he has had no news of her. Inquiries were made, advertisements broadcast throughout the country, and a squad of private detectives worked day and night to find some clue to the mystery. But all in vain.

Despairing, but convinced that his love was still alive, Mr. Royal started on his quest in search of her which has now led him across the world and back again.

"Every year on the anniversary of that tragic dinner," he said recently, "I have ordered a similar one in whatever city or town I have happened to be in. I have ordered similar flowers and similar food, and I have sat down to a solitary diner at a table laid for six.

"My hope is that the woman I was to have married will hear of it and that it will strike some chord of memory that will bring back the past and lead her to return.

"For I cannot help hoping that loss of memory may have been the cause of her disappearance, and that it may only need some shock or some reminder of the past to restore her to her normal self.

I can't believe she's dead."

"CAPTAIN SALVATION" A SAGA OF THE SEA

An Adventurous Romance of Former Times Before the Mast, With Lars Hanson in the Title Role Has Power and Irresistible Appeal.

The romance of the old days when men braved the sea in square-rigged ships—when hardship and hardtack were the sailor's lot; when glorious romance gilded the terrific struggle of man against the elements—these are the things echoed in "Captain Salvation," Cosmopolitan's vivid drama of the high seas now playing at the Prince Edward Theatre.

"Captain Salvation" is a saga of adventure; a story of strong, sometimes brutal men, in a strong, sometimes brutal calling; a story of terrific emotions and terrific adventure; a play so gripping that it leaves the audience fairly gasping at its intensity.

Adapted from the novel by Frederick William Wallace and directed by John S. Robertson, it is played largely on a ship on the high seas; an actual sea voyage was made in an old time clipper ship for these scenes, which are so intensely genuine that the actors themselves found it an adventure of their lives, and, on the screen the audience senses this tang of genuine peril in the remarkable play.

Lars Hanson, the famous Swedish actor who came to this country to score in "Flesh and the Devil," does an intensely interesting piece of work as the hero, a divinity student forsaking the pulpit for the sea, and Pauline Starke is a vivid creature as Bess Morgan the charmer who lured but finally saved him. Marceline Day is a charming sweetheart.

One of the outstanding figures is Ernest Torrence, as the brutal sea captain, laughing while men went to torture; gloating as they screamed their agonies on his hell-ship. George Fawcett gives a splendid performance as an old Nova Scotia sailor, and Sam de Grasse as a hidebound fanatic is a convincing player. Flora Finch, Eugenie Ford and others of note are in the well-balanced cast.

Metro-Goldwn-Mayer gave the land scenes splendid settings, and Robertson, in his direction showed the same artistry that made "The Bright Shawl" and others of his successes famous.

The always interesting Fox News Weekly and Pathe Review comprise the balance of this pictoral program, with an excellent musical setting finishing off a really fine midweek program.

THE MARKETS

MONTREAL, Aug. 17. —The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was moderate under a fair demand from the continent and the United Kingdom. The demand for spring and winter wheat grades of flour continued on the quiet side, but values ruled steady. A fairly active business was done in all lines of millfeed and prices were firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats continued firm under a moderate inquiry. A feature of the cheese trade was the further weakness that developed and prices were reduced another 1-8 cent per pound. This was attributed to the small demand of late. Western grades were quoted at 18 3-4 cents per pound, and eastern quality at 18 3-8 cents to 18 1-2 cents per pound. The receipts were 9,825 boxes. The butter market was again quiet but the undertone was firmer and prices were marked up a fraction. No. 1 pasteurized was quoted at 37 1-4 cents 37 1-2 cents per pound. The receipts were 125 passkages. A stronger feeling developed in the egg market and values were marked up one cent per dozen, which was due to the scarcity of supplies and the good demand, fresh extras were quoted at 44 cents, firsts at 40 cents and seconds at 35 cents per dozen. The receipts were 1,153 cases.

OTTAWA, Aug. 17. —Further advances in eggs values in Toronto and St. John constitute the principal changes reported from Canadian egg markets today.

TORONTO—This egg market is firm with dealers quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs delivered, extras 39—40, firsts 36—37, seconds 31—32. Prices to retailers are extras 44—45; firsts 41—42, seconds 35—36.

MONTREAL—The egg market is firm and advancing under light receipts and good consumptive demand. Sales are being made in a jobbing way at extras 44, firsts 40, seconds 28.

EDMONTON—The egg market is steady. Dealers are quoting country shippers delivered for ungraded eggs extras 28, firsts 25, seconds 20.

CALGARY—The receipts on this egg market are lighter than anticipated. Dealers are quoting country shippers extras 28—32, firsts 25—30, seconds 20—25.

ST. JOHN—The egg market is advancing with supplies very scarce. Dealers are quoting country shippers extras 35, firsts 32, seconds 26 delivered.
