

ADrift ON ICE FLOES

Thirteen Sealers Last Seen Near Horse Island Off Coast Of Newfoundland.

(Canadian Press)

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 10.—Thirteen men were believed adrift on ice floes somewhere off the coast of Newfoundland tonight, carried seaward by a strong wind which was sweeping the tightly packed ice offshore.

Watchers on shore caught their last glimpse of the men at three o'clock this afternoon, several hours after they had left Coachman's Cove, a small settlement in Baie Verie, in two small boats.

A short time after they left early this morning, the wind veered strongly around on the northward, carrying the pack ice with it. Apparently they had been left without access to their boats as they spread over the ice in search of seals.

Twenty miles away from where they were last seen lies Horse Island, where survivors of the ill-fated Viking made their way two years ago when the old sealer was torn by an explosion. It was thought possible that the sealers might reach the island, unless the wind shifted again.

Little help was expected from the fleet of sealing steamers which left St. John's this week. These are now well north of the vicinity of the drifting sealers.

Their neighbors of the mainland, however, were setting out to the rescue of the thirteen men, although it was feared that the wind's sweep would carry them far from shore before they could be reached.

Coachman's Cove, from which group of land sealers were driven seaward, is a small settlement located between White Bay and Notre Dame Bay, on the north-eastern coast of Newfoundland.

THE P. E. I. FUR POOL LTD., IS just in receipt of complete reports from its European agents regarding silver fox fur sales which are being held in London during the present week. The following are the results as compared with January sales: Darker classes, prices have been well maintained, quarter silvers selling well up to January levels; half silvers up to ten pounds also maintaining former price levels. Better grade half silvers declined approximately 10 percent; with better sorts neglected. It was necessary to withdraw the greater bulk of the pelts in the lighter colored classes. The sales were quite adversely affected by the present American financial crisis and the decline is quite generally regarded as being of a temporary nature. 8361-11

Mr. LePage spoke of the absence from the House through illness, of Premier Stewart, Hon. W. M. Lea, and Dr. J. F. MacNeill. The House then proceeded to the Confederation Chamber, where His Honour, the Lieutenant Governor was presented with the Draft Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

After the members had returned to House, the Speaker read the reply from His Honour, thanking the House for the address.

On motion of Hon. Mr. McPhee the House went into committee on a bill to amend the Succession Duties Act.

RESERVE BANKS DEFIES COURT OPEN TODAY AS SENTENCED

State Banks Asked To Forward Their Applications For Approval.

(Associated Press)

United States banks in all states were preparing Friday night to reopen under authority from the Federal Treasury Department at Washington.

From such financial centres as New York and Chicago came word many banks were confident of opening Monday without restrictions on withdrawals or transactions.

The 12 federal reserve banks sent telegrams advising their member banks they might make application to reopen. The applications would be forwarded to the Treasury Department for a decision.

The Treasury Department began Friday to rush to banks the $2,000,000,000 in new currency authorized by the emergency Banking Bill passed by Congress and giving President Roosevelt regulatory powers over banks.

Authority reopen the banks—most of them closed a full week by State and National proclamations—was given to the Secretary of the Treasury by President Roosevelt.

The President's order informed Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin he might permit Federal Reserve member banks to resume all or any of their usual functions. State banks might reopen upon the approval of the proper state authorities.

The Treasury Department was reported granting numerous requests for reopening, subject to President Roosevelt's order that they allow no withdrawals of gold or gold certificates. The order also banned exportation of gold.

President Roosevelt let it be known he expected immediate reopening of banks on a gradual basis beginning Monday. He asked especially that the public not become worried if a bank failed to open Monday. Reopening of some, he said, would occur later next week.

Secretary Woodin summed up the situation by saying: "Immediate action has been taken which will make possible resumption of banking operations in substantial volume at a very early date." The President contemplated opening of sound banks for complete banking operations in every part of the country. Secretary Woodin announced the 12 Federal Reserve Banks would be open Saturday.

Although banks still were operating on a restricted basis Friday, gold continued to pour out of hoarding and into federal reserve banks by the millions.

Treasury Department at Washington reported authorizing many United States banks to reopen.

President Roosevelt said after ordering the Treasury to authorize reopening that he considered the situation excellent.

Millions of dollars in gold poured into federal reserve banks from hoarding. Restrictions on hoarding and gold exports were maintained in the President's order.

National banks were to prove soundness and solvency to Federal Reserve before opening; state banks were to do likewise to the proper authorities.

President Roosevelt expects immediate reopening of banks on a gradual basis beginning Monday with normal banking everywhere soon.

Federal Reserve Banks were ordered to reopen Saturday to provide for transmission of money to member banks opening next week.

Two billion dollars in new currency were rushed to banks by Treasury.

Early reopening of stock, grain, commodity and livestock exchanges was seen.

CLAIMS

the gold standard, "they may claim to be on the gold standard, but it is only a claim," Sir William asserted.

He said he believed the Canadian dollar would be in an improved position when the United States returned to the gold standard. The chief factor in this increase in value, he contended, would be the restoration of confidence in Canadian money by virtue of its "having withstood the financial condition of a contiguous country which, under ordinary conditions, would have exercised an unfavorable effect on its neighbor."

"The dollar will be added also," he added, "by the large amount of money remitted to what are regarded as the more stable banks, which is in line with the natural flow of credit."

Zangara To Pay Death Penalty For Murder Of Mayor.

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(A.P.)—Boastfully shouting his unconcern and defying the court, Giuseppe Zangara, the assassin who tried to kill President Roosevelt, today was sentenced to die in the electric chair for the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago.

"You is crook man too," Zangara screamed at Circuit Judge Uly O. Thompson after sentence was pronounced. "I no afraid. You one of the Capitalists. Put me in electric chair."

Zangara asserted he wanted to kill "all presidents and kings" because he had a feud with Capitalists and because his stomach hurt him. His murderous desire was to make Mr. Roosevelt suffer "fifty-fifty."

Under Florida law, Zangara must be taken to Ralford, the state prison farm, to pay the penalty for his mad act in Bay Front Park here February 15.

His aim at the President, diverted by spectators, resulted in the mortal wounding of Mayor Cermak and the shooting of four other persons.

The others wounded were Mrs. Joe H. Gill, Society Matron of Miami, Margaret Krius, of Newark, N.J., William Sinnott, New York policeman, and Russell Caldwell of Coconut Grove, Fla.

Cermak died Monday after a valiant fight against the inroads of many diseases that beset him as a result of the bullet that pierced his right lung and lodged in his backbone.

Governor Sholtz must fix the week when Zangara is to die.

The Duchess of York was expected to dock here at one o'clock Saturday morning and the commission members planned to board the Silvia, which was to sail immediately for St. John's.

They will arrive in Newfoundland in time to open, early next week, the enquiry agreed upon when Canada and the United Kingdom advanced the Island Dominion $1,250,000 to meet bond interest payments.

Hopes To Secure British Lumber Purchases

(Canadian Press)

SAINT JOHN, N. B., March 10.—W. E. Golding, Secretary-Treasurer of George McKean & Co., Ltd., Saint John lumber merchants, has been chosen by the Canadian Lumbermen's Association to represent that organization in Great Britain during the next two or three months in negotiations aimed at securing for Canada a larger share of British lumber purchases.

Announcement of the appointment was made in Ottawa by R. L. Sargeant, Secretary of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association. Mr. Golding will leave the city Sunday for Ottawa to complete arrangements for the trip to England. He will leave Canada about March 18, remaining in England until the end of May.

The present trade pact between Great Britain and Russia expires on April 17.

The expenses of Mr. Golding's work will be borne by the Canadian Lumbermen's Association as a whole. He said he would represent Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick in his negotiations with British lumber dealers.

used "as protective troops for Jewish merchants."

"The black, white and red flag, bathed in blood, may yet wave over a liberated Germany as a sign that Nationalist Germany has found herself," Captain Goering said.

"Since Monday I have been bombarded by telephone calls and telegrams concerning the boycotting of Jewish stores. As police commissioner I refuse to let the police be protective troops for Jewish merchants."

The Cabinet Minister received prolonged cheers, particularly at his reference to disturbances in Jewish stores. In several communities Nazis have attempted recently to effect a boycott of Jewish merchants.

Chancellor Hitler cautioned his followers to refrain from doing things which might enable historians to compare the "revolution of 1933 with the Knapsack Sparticus Revolt of 1918."

"A gigantic revolution has taken place in Germany, the result of the heaviest fighting and most tenacious endurance but also of the highest discipline," he said.

PARIS, March 10.—(A.P.)—Diplomatic protests against the occupation by Adolf Hitler's Nazis of the barracks at Kehl and against the legalizing of the Nazi brownshirts, became a possibility today after an all-day conference attended by the heads of the British and French governments.

Dispatches from Strasbourg announced that 500 Nazis occupied the demilitarized Kehl barracks yesterday and raised the Nazi Swastika flag. Kehl is on the right bank of the Rhine three miles east of Strasbourg. It is in Baden.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and Sir John Simon, his Secretary for Foreign Affairs, were informed by Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour of France, the French considered the Kehl occupation and the legalizing of the brownshirts as violations of the Treaty of Versailles. (The Nazi storm troopers in Germany recently were made supplementary police officers.)

Two persons were reported killed and more than a score injured in political disorders in various parts of the nation. A Socialist publisher at Chemnitz was shot dead resisting Nazi Storm Troopers who were invading his newspaper office.

The Hunter River Young People's Society met at the Parsonage on Friday evening, February 24th, with eleven members and five visitors present. The President, Anthony Newport, occupied the chair for the business period. An interesting debate then took place on Resolved that the Horse is more useful than the Automobile. The affirmative side won.

U.S. MARKETS AWAIT BANK OPENINGS

Confidence Reflected As Stock Exchanges Prepare To Open Next Week.

(By Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, March 10.—Spirits were buoyed in financial centres of the United States today by the prospect of resumption of normal banking activity in many localities by tomorrow or Monday.

The big Wall Street banks were ready to resume normal business tomorrow and awaited permission of Secretary William Woodin of the Treasury, while Stock Exchange quarters looked for resumption of business next week. In the meantime, Wall Street banks continued to make limited funds available for payrolls and other essentials, and to accept deposit cheques and cash, subject to credit to depositors' accounts "on removal of restrictions."

Gold and currency was returned to the banks in large volume in New York and many other cities, as gold hoarders turned penitent, and holders of currency again concluded that the logical place for it was in banks where they had always kept it.

Commercial activity was still much handicapped by the banking restrictions, but some localities reported substantial pickup in retail trade, as the enactment of President Roosevelt's emergency bank measure appeared to have restored confidence.

Several quarters in Wall Street hoped that the drastic programme adopted to put the banking structure on a sound footing once more would mark the end of three years of deflation, through restoration of confidence.

Some New York bankers thought the return of currency today was in such large volume as to indicate that little additional currency for which the bank measure made provision would be needed here, although the reserve system was preparing for whatever requirements might develop, and some centres continued to develop their scrip programmes, to be doubly prepared.

Commodity dealers were enthusiastic over the action of the stock markets, and were inclined to look for active future business when such markets as the Chicago Board of Trade and the New York Cotton Exchange resume trading. The price of seats on the Cotton Exchange advanced $1,500 to $12,000 today, and Chicago Board of Trade memberships advanced yesterday.

In the meantime, cotton and wheat continued to push upward in Liverpool and Winnipeg.

United States stocks were in fair demand in London. Figuring prices on the arbitrary basis of four shillings to the United States dollar, U. S. Steel jumped $1.50 and General Motors 75 cents. Of course, in the absence of official quotations on the United States dollar, it was impossible to compare London prices with latest quotations here.

New York Stock Exchange houses still kept skeleton forces on hand, and received many inquiries from investors and traders.

Although virtually all of the raw material has to be imported wool manufacturing is increasing rapidly in Latvia.
