Grand Tea Party at Seven Mile Bay Saturday, July 9th, 1904.

The parishioners of Seven Mile Bay are making elaborate preparations for the entertainment of visitors on the above date. The Tea will be held on the delightful grounds surrounding the Church and newly acquired parochial residence, where majestic shade trees of a half century of years ward off the scorching rays of a midsummer sun. This spot is noted for its beautiful and enchanting scenery. Just below the little parish Church lies the bay which widens out into the waters of the strait. On the left is the Bold Bluff—Carleton Head, the scene of ice boat activity—the old reliable never failing launchway for the winter ferry when ice bound harbors, and paralyzed steam suggest a trip by the Capes. Here we find the nearest approach to the other shore (as mean terrestrial although we might justly intend of Tormentine, and the comfortable no-nonsense of Tormentine, and the famous Pier are plainly visible from the grounds. We will say nothing of the drive to the bay or the welcome in store for guests. Let all who would realize what these mean. Come to the Tea on July 9th. Should the day prove unfavorable the Tea will be held on Monday, 11th or first fine day following.

There is a revival in the bathing habit in Summerside. A year ago the town was without a bathing house, and through the instrumentality of the Improvement and Tourist Association Capt. John Read was induced to erect a suite of ten rooms on what is now known as Crescent Beach. Later in the season J. M. Egan put up a similar building. And now Capt. Read, encouraged by the growing demand for such resorts, has underway the building of another suite of ten rooms on the same shore. All the rooms of both buildings erected last year have been let, and nearly all the departments of the one now under construction are already taken up.
