

'Ma' Murray is dead in London. Many a veteran of the last war and many a soldier of this will hear the news with sadness. 'Ma' was Mrs. Leonard Murray, well-known Red Cross worker and matron of the Maple Leaf club in London, whose death was learned of by Canadian Red Cross officials. She was the widow of Dr. Leonard Murray, former Toronto heart specialist. Mrs. Murray suffered nervous shock when the club was struck by a bomb and partly destroyed soon after the bombs began to fall on London. She is shown here with Hon. Vincent Massey at the club.

Best Dressed

Clothes "Out" For Duration

By ADELAIDE KEIR

Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(CP)—

Many of the world's best dressed women are giving most of their time and thought to far more serious things than the clothes they wear. And this goes for the women of the United States, too.

A number are "up to their eyes" in war work and keeping office hours. A few have embarked on careers. Most of them are "getting their feet" in the new year, accordingly simple in comparison to those they once possessed.

Times when fashion columns were dominated by descriptions of the wardrobes of Queen Elizabeth of Britain, the Duchess of Kent, the Duchess of Windsor, Lady Mountbatten, Mrs. E. B. Hughes, of Rosslyn, Mrs. Harrison Williams and other fashion-famous women.

The American-born Baroness Eugenie de Rothschild to whose Austrian stable the Queen of Windsor passed the months between abdication and marriage to the woman he loved, seemed to sum up the attitude of them all when she said to me:

"Clothes! What are they today? They're going to play a very minor part in the lives of most of us. Much more important things which we must think of now."

War Casualties.

Paris and London dressmakers delighted in creating special clothes to enhance their beauty and chic. The silhouette of Queen Elizabeth started more than one fashion trend.

Many of those wardrobes are locked away in closets and vaults. Others were left behind when their owners departed hastily from Europe. Still others were lost at sea when the boat transporting them to America went down as a casualty of war.

Their owners are spending hours in the clothing stores of New York, looking for the famous little black frocks which are almost a "must" in fashionable wardrobes.

Some of these who were in New York from Europe replaced lost frocks with simple dresses bought from department store racks; others employed the work of New York's best couturiers.

Queen Elizabeth, whose evening frocks launched a full skirted trend is now concentrating on keeping up her British morale. She and King George are seen frequently in public.

Nursing Sister

The Duchess of Kent, whose hats made fashion history at the Ascot races, recently completed a 50-hour training course as a nursing auxiliary—when she was at a London hospital.

Another fashion-famous figure concentrating on more serious things than clothes is the Duchess of Windsor. As wife of the governor of the Bahamas she is president of the Bahamas branch of the Red Cross and spends hours over sweaters and bandages. It was an aching tooth—not a clothes quest—which brought her first visit to the United States in eight years.

JALISCO, Mexico, Jan. 1—(AP)—Six persons were reported killed and several wounded in disorders today in the nearby village of Altotonga. One report said the city hall was fired in a clash between opposing political groups while another version said the building was fired by prisoners who staged a jail break.

GERMANS STAY AT HOME

BERLIN, Jan. 1—(AP)—Germans generally welcomed the New Year at their homes listening to a midnight broadcast of the bells of Cologne Cathedral. Most Berlin amusement centres closed at 11 p.m. last night.

Care of Machinery During Winter

(Experimental Farms News) The care that farm machinery receives during the winter months is an important factor in the life and cost of equipment, according to T. S. Fersath, Dominion Experiment Station, Swift Current, Sask., who makes the following suggestions: Before winter sets in each piece of machinery should be given a thorough inspection. All parts should be well cleaned and all bearings and other moving parts given a generous greasing or oiling. Polished surfaces such as plow moldboards and cultivator shovels need a good coat of heavy grease to prevent rusting. Roller chains should be thoroughly cleaned in gasoline or kerosene and re-oiled. Bands, chains and mower decks should be removed and stored inside. All dirt, straw, and trash should be removed from drill boxes, and from the star racks, chaffers, augers and elevators on separators and combines. Dirt holds moisture and promotes rusting and decay. While this cleaning and greasing is being carried on is a good time to make a careful check of all worn and broken parts that will in a few days be replaced or in the near future. In any case, repair parts should be ordered so that they will be on hand when required. It is important to keep all machines in first class running order. Time lost through breakdowns is expensive, and what is perhaps even more important, a worn machine cannot do a first class job. One worn part often causes other parts to wear more rapidly, and breakage of one part may lead to breakage or damage of other parts. Paint is a great preventative against those enemies, rust and decay, and also adds to appearance. The life of wooden parts in particular is lengthened by regular painting. For best results the

NEW YORK SEEKS TO SET FASHION

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(CP)—One thousand women who work at fashion for a living are plotting the continent's fashion future. One result of their efforts soon will be seen in the biggest fashion show ever staged in this country—"Fashion Futures," to be held in New York Jan. 8-9.

"Fashion Futures" will parade 500 advance spring styles to members of the trade, for a twofold purpose: To consolidate recent fashion gains, and to set style trends for the coming season. Will dresses be short or long? Shoulders slope naturally, or be padded to squareness? Will waists be normal or abnormal? How about capes? Is elegance coming in or going out? Will mannishness prevail in sports clothes? All these questions will be answered in authoritative manner at "Fashion Futures."

OLD CHURCH DESTROYED

LONDON—(CP)—The Rectory of St. James's Piccadilly, was destroyed when a bomb fell in the courtyard of the Wren church. The church boasted an organ given by Queen Mary (wife of William III) in 1691.

Long-range British bombers flew to Mannheim, important German commercial and trading city on the Rhine. Monday night, and for seven hours subjected the city to incessant air-attacks. Tons of bombs were dropped—and damage of vital importance was affected. Moonlight made the targets easily visible. This is a view of Mannheim in more peaceful days.
