A SUDDEN DEATH—Deepest sympathy will go out to Mr. and Mrs Peter McDonald of Cove Head West in the sudden and unexpected death of their oldest child Violet Isabel which occurred at an early hour yesterday morning. A bright, loyable girl, just on the verge of young womanhood, her death is a great shock to her parents, five brothers and one sister. Deceased, had been attending her studies and other home duties as usual on Wednesday and being of robust health nothing was thought of what appeared to be symptoms of the prevailing cold. Yesterday morning she came down stairs shortly after her parents and layed down on the sofa when her mother noticed she had a chill. Immediate help was given, but before medical help could be summoned she passed peacefully to rest. To the bereaved family, the Guardian extends sincerest sympathy.

L. O. L. MEETING.—King William L. L. O., No. 1166, held a special meeting on March 4th. The lodge opened in due form in the Royal Arch Purple Degree, after which three candidates were advanced, one of the candidates being Bro. John Easton of Hampshire. Bro. Easton is to be congratulated on being advanced to the dignity of a Royal Arch marksman before his departure for Western Canada. He will be greatly missed by his fellow members, as he was an earnest worker for the advancement of the Orange Association, and particularly King William Lodge. The Worshipful Master then declared a thirty-minute recess, after which a dainty supper was served, and all partook of the good things provided for the inner man. Appropriate speeches were then given by Bros. Daniel T. Fraser, Reuben Barrett, George Beer, Burgess Newson, David Proud, Charles Proud and Ernest Dollar. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the visiting brethern from Tanton Lodge for the able assistance rendered during the evening. The lodge then closed with prayer. About thirty members were present and all departed for their respective homes, feeling that the evening had been well spent.

AYS MAN WAS ANCESTOR OF APES

ritish Scientist Calls for Reconsideration of Post-Darwinian Theory. Talgai Skill Deduction. Man Highly Developed Ages Before Period He Was Supposed to be Mere Brute.

LONDON, March 14.—That man is t descended from anthropoid apes, at these would be in fact more urately described as having been scended from man, that man as man far more ancient that the whole thropoid branch, and that comparwith him the chimpaneze and orgoutan are newomers on this net, were assertions made by rofessor Wood Jones, Professor of natomy in the University of London, a lecture yesterday on the origin man.

The professor claimed these assertns were proved not only by recent atomical research, but to be deduce from the whole trend of geologal and anthropological discovery. One of the most interesting references in the lecture was to recent reorts by Dr. Stewart Arthur Smith Sydney on the Talgai skull discovered in 1889 in Daring Downs, N. W. but never seriously investigatd till 1914.

"This undoubtedly human skull, ery highly mineralized," he said, was found in a stratum with extinct ouched mammals, and probably is ancient as the famous Pittsdown ull, whose human nature was so otly disputed just before the war. In sposites of the same age as those in hich the Talgai skull was unearthd were found bones of dingo dogs, nd also bones of extinct pouched ammals gnawed by these dogs.

"Until the arrival of Captain Cook Australia no non-pouched mammals were every introduced upon the ustralian sand continent. It is geogically certain that Ausralia has always been surrounded by the sea nce the time of the evolution of ouched mammals. Had it not been o, it is almost certain that many on-pouched mammals in the neighoring continents would have migrated thither.

"How then can the presence of the algai man and his dingo dogs alone mong these be accounted for? The onclusion deducible is that he must ave arrived there in boats with his amily and his domestic dogs, and the stounding fact emerges that a peiod in the world's history, when only year or two ago the most advanced natomists were satisfied man was carcely distinguishable from his rute ancestors, a man already so ighly developed as to have domesticated animals and to be a boat builder and navigator was actually in Australia, and, to an astonishing degree, the reasoning master of his own fate."

In view not only of this, but of even more convincing evidence gathered from man's own anatomical structure, Professor Wood Jones made a moving appeal for the whole reconsideration of the post-Dairwinian conception of man's comparatively recent emergence from the brute kingdom. The missing link of Huxley, he asserted, if ever found, would not be a more apelike man, but a more human ape.

PENITENT'S $10,000 MAY NOT SAVE HIM

Judges Say Law Makes it Mandatory to Sue for Gamblers' Winnings or Losings.

SWANN STILL HOLDS CHECK

He Declares He Had No Evidence Against Business Man Who "Confessed" by Telephone.

NEW YORK, March 15.—District Attorney Swann said yesterday that he had been advised by three Judges that no apparent authority existed under which he could accept a $10,000 donation for charity from a nervous business man, who had offered that amount as a settlement for his breach of the anti-gambling law, on condition that he be excused from having his name appear in the newspapers.

Mr. Swann placed the matter before Judges Wadhams, Nott, and Rosalsky. They agreed at first glance that the law appears to make it mandatory that a suit for five times the amount of the gambler's winnings or losings should be prosecuted by the Commissioner of Charities. They, however, offered to study the matter further and see whether any justification remained for Mr. Swann's plan of raising a large fund for the poor by allowing rich penitents to avoid legal proceedings and scandal by liberal but unobtrusive givings to the poor.

"The question of procedure has not been definitely settled," said the District Attorney. "I haven't exactly decided what I shall do with the man who sent the $10,000 check here. You see, he originally called me up on the telephone and told me of the matter and then sent attorney here with a $10,000 check in the hope of settling it.

"The queer thing about this case is that we did not have any evidence against the man at all. As a matter of fact, I had never heard his name connected with gambling. It seems that the newspaper accounts concerning another wealthy person, who was not named, had been read by this man and he assumed somewhat precipitately that he was the guilty man against whom the evidence was being gathered.

"I intend to turn over to the Commissioner of Charities the evidence that I have on which civil suits could be based for the recovery of five times the amount won or lost for the benefit of the poor. In this man's case, however, we really possess no evidence. The man's attorney told me a story of the facts, but a man cannot confess by attorney. The man himself told me something of the affair over the telephone, but we have as yet, no corroborative testimony. There does not exist at present sufficient testimony on which to base a civil suit for the recovery of $50,000 which would be five times the amount he lost at chemin de fer.

"I don't regard the man's statement to me as confidential, in a legal sense, but when a man is disposed to do the right thing, I feel inclined to help him along and do not wish to give him the unwelcome publicity that he is seeking to avoid. I will take some time to study the matter before taking any further steps."

The issue is made with the approval of the Minister of Finance, Ottawa.

His aunt was rich and elderly. She had called unexpectedly when he was out, and his wife was trying to entertain her by such methods as she thought best conducive to their future welfare.

The old lady has recently added a phonograph to her establishment, and when she heard that early that morning her loving nephew had made her a present of her favorite violin solo she was delighted.

"How nice of him!" she said. "Can I hear it?"

"We've said her niece, "we haven't yet, but I'll put it on."

It was a pronounced success, and the old lady was charmed.

But her feeling changed when after the solo was finished the instrument brought out these words with fatal clearness:

"Phew! If that isn't good for an extra hundred in the old girl's will, I'm a Dutchman!"

It's a good thing for some of us that we are not recognized as a "good thing."
