Tools of His Trade

Tired Tim knocked at the door of a cottage. It was a chilly day and he was very hungry.

The old lady who opened the door was a good sort. She asked him into the kitchen and placed before him a nicely cooked meal and asked him why he did not go to work.

"I would," replied Tim, "if I had the tools."

"What sort of tools do you want?" inquired the old lady.

"A knife and fork," said Tired Tim.

THOROUGH JOB

Father was annoyed. His expensive gold watch had failed him "I can't think what's the matter he complained. "Maybe it needs cleaning.'

"Oh, no, daddy,' objected four-year-old Henry. "Cause baby and I had it in the bathroom washing it all day yesterday.'—

A PUZZLE

"I beg your pardon, sir, but what is your name?" the teller politely asked the man presenting a cheque.

"Name," echoed the indignant customer, "don't you see my signature on the cheque?"

"I do," answered the teller. "That's what aroused by curiosity."

Morning, noon and night The loaf that is right.

Needle Pricking Epidemic In Paris

PARIS, Dec 14— Complaints continue to flow into police headquarters from people who have been pricked with a needle while walking Paris streets or while in crowded stores and subways indeed, there seems a possibility that the pleasures of Christmas shopping may be seriously interfered with for the shoppers especially women, are beginning to become somewhat nervous regarding the possibility of falling a victim to the unknown fiend or fiends.

Ten cases of pricking have been reported today to the police, and in some cases the mystery as to how it is done has been intensified by statements of sufferers that at the time they were pricked there was no one nearer than five and ten paces. One woman standing near her door suddenly felt a sharp pain in her neck and, raising her hand, found half a needle stuck deep below the skin. There was no one near her at the time and the only possible explanation of the case which the police can find is that the needle was blown with a small blow-pipe from a considerable distance.

Among the cases which occurred today the most were to travellers in the subway and on busses, while a few occurred in shops. In almost all cases part of a needle was discovered in the flesh.

There seems to be small doubt now that the perpetrators are lunatics suffering from a peculiar form of morbid disease. Medical experts recall that this kind of thing crops up periodically in various forms and is closely allied with the mania to cut off women's hair and to slash dresses with scissors or razors. On two occasions in the past a regular epidemic of needle-pricking was recorded, namely, under Louis XV, and the Directoire. No ill effects need be feared by the victims provided ordinary precautions are taken.

At first a story spread that the needles were poisoned and several cases occurred in which girl victims fainted and became seriously sick owing to an imaginary fear that they were poisoned. Investigation, however, soon showed that this is not the case. Nevertheless, the activities of the needle fiends are disagreeable enough, as nobody seems safe in the crowded spots of Paris today, despite all efforts by the police to catch the criminal or criminals in the act.

A Cynical Rhadamanthus

Pulled in for speeding the young couple stood before the rural magsitrate.

"Ten dollars for reckless driving," said the latter.

"But, listen, Judge," pleaded the young man, "we were on our way to have you marry us."

"Twenty dollars, then," exclaimed the magistrate. "You're more reckless than I thought you were."
