"Lloyds of London" Draws Big House At Capitol Theatre, Summerside

The emotional glory of a woman's love!
The flaming fury of a hero's hate!
The vengeful fury of a husband's hate!
Intrigue, romance, adventure — with the fate of an empire at stake!

This is "Lloyds of London," the brilliant new Twentieth Century-Fox hit which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

Abaze with action, vivid with pageantry and vital with drama, this story of a love that changed the destiny of an empire unites in a swiftly-moving kaleidoscope the thrilling account of the founding of England's sea power, and the establishment of the world's most exciting and extraordinary institution.

Freddie Bartholomew and Madeline Carroll are starred in the exceptional cast, which features Sir Guy Standing and the new romantic sensation Tyrone Power. C. Aubrey Smith and Virginia Field, Darryl F. Zanuck selected Henry King to direct "Lloyds of London" with Kenneth Macgowan as associate producer. The screen play by Ernest Pascal and Walter Ferris was adapted from an original story by Curtis Kenyon.

be based upon race, or religion or form of political organization or belief, so long will all else fall, and fear and terror continue to haunt the homes and the lives of men.

"Let us begin to look beneath the surface, into the hearts of men and women, and discover what it is that is begetting the blindness and the bitterness which is shutting out the light and warmth of life, and seek to change that thing, and we shall soon see a very different world than we have today. In some such search, we shall find the secret of the world's unrest."

Age of Transition
"We are in an age of transition. The old order of things which existed before the Great War was split wide open by a world upheaval. That order is being examined now, not from the top but from beneath. It was an order full of social injustice in many lands, an injustice to classes and masses of men which had bred no hate and no mistrust."

"Before we attempt to pass judgment on any nation or on any class, we would do well to know something of its story, inside out. The reconstruction of the social order is the problem with which the statesmen of Europe are wrestling today, and no part of the world is free from its possible repercussions and explosions."

Is Optimistic
"It is going to take time—possibly a long time—to complete the transition through which all countries are passing in the readjustments which are being made in the existing social order. But that they can be made, notwithstanding widespread international conflict to the difficulties all have to face, I have not the least doubt."

"In the rebuilding of international friendship, there can be no more hopeful sign than the recognition now generally accorded that the policies of extreme nationalism, which have raised so many barriers to the free intercourse of nations, have outlived their day."

"In these times, as never before in the affairs of men and nations, it is necessary for those who are charged with the responsibility of government, and who have to do with the formation of public opinion, to weigh carefully the policies they use, to restrain to the utmost whatever in thought or feeling tends to rouse passion or to intensify prejudice. Equally it is necessary to foster and to further to the utmost every agency of international understanding, friendship and goodwill."

Canada's Position
"No one can return to Canada after a sojourn abroad without realizing more than ever how fortunate we are in our country, in its size and geographical position, in its vast resources, in its people, in its democratic institutions, in its friendship shared with our immediate neighbor, and above all, in what we enjoy of liberty, and individual freedom of thought, of speech and of conscience. This is a great and very precious heritage, doubly precious in a world that has lost the security it previously possessed."

"This inheritance can be maintained and fostered by ourselves, and passed on to succeeding generations, only by a determined effort on the part of all to work together for the good of the whole. Never imagine that to the over-populated and under-nourished peoples of other continents, the countless attractions and the limitless possibilities of Canada are unknown; or that, in some world holocaust, our country would escape the terror by night; nor the horror that 'lieth by day.' Vigilance in Canada, as elsewhere throughout the world, is the price of our security."

Stressing the fact that an Imperial Conference had no legislative powers but merely afforded an opportunity for Empire governments to examine mutual problems and possibility of co-operation, the Prime Minister said the discussions in London were "characterized by marked frankness and willingness to face differences and difficulties."

Imperial Conference
The Prime Minister summarized the official statement issued to the public at the close of the conference. "Those who looked to the conference to devise and formulate a joint Imperial policy on foreign affairs, defence or trade, will find nothing to fulfil their expectations," he said. "Nor is there need to look for spectacular decisions or for startling changes in policy. To do so is to mistake the very nature of the Imperial Conference."

"The governments represented at the conference declared that their respective armaments will never be used for purposes of aggression or for any purpose inconsistent with the covenant of the League of Nations or the Pact of Paris."

"Being desirous of strengthening the influence of the League by the enlargement of its membership, the governments united in expressing the view that this object would be facilitated by the separation of the covenant and the League from the treaties of peace. "The governments welcomed regional agreements of friendship and collaboration between individual members of the British Commonwealth and other states having special interests in the regions in question."

DEFENCE OBLIGATIONS
"The governments recorded their earnest desire to see a wide measure of disarmament as can be obtained. At the same time, it was recognized that the several governments concerned were bound to adopt such measures of defence as they might deem essential for their security, as well as for the fulfilment of such international obligations as they might respectively have assumed."

"The conference also considered ways in which it would be possible for the governments concerned to co-operate in measures for their own security. In the course of discussion, the conference found general agreement among its members that the free interchange of technical information concerning the state of their naval, military, and air forces, would contribute to the security of each country of the Commonwealth, and at the same time enable it, if it so desired, to co-operate with other countries of the Commonwealth with least delay."

"In all discussions on defence, emphasis was placed upon the urgent need for the decision as to participation in any emergency rests with the parliament of each country of the Commonwealth."

"NO COMMITMENTS"
"The position of the Canadian Government, as asserted prior to the conference, of the full and untrammelled responsibility of the Canadian Parliament for decisions on the national issues of foreign policy and defence was completely maintained throughout. It was made clear in the conference discussions that Canada was not committed to joining in any Imperial or any League military undertakings; and that there was no commitment against such participation; that, in brief, any decision on the part of Canada to join in war would have to be taken by the Parliament of Canada in the light of the circumstances and facts of the day, as they may exist in Canada, and in the areas involved."

"The outstanding feature of the discussions on trade was the emphatic desire, expressed by the records of every part of the British Commonwealth represented at the conference, that all practicable steps should be taken to secure the stimulation of international trade."

MASTER MASON THE CHOICE OF EXPERIENCE

CROP REPORT

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches. Our Managers have knowledge of each local situation and are in touch with crop conditions in all sections of the districts mentioned.

SEVERE AND PROLONGED DROUGHT has continued in most areas of the Prairie Provinces, and estimates indicate that the yield of the principal crops this year will be lower than for a number of years. In northeastern Saskatchewan and southwestern Alberta, however, crops have benefited from recent rains, and in Manitoba crop prospects, generally, remain satisfactory, although rust is threatening. Rain which fell over many districts in Alberta on Tuesday and Wednesday will improve conditions in some areas. Rain has also fallen in parts of southern and west central Saskatchewan. In Quebec province where there has been a continuation of highly satisfactory growing conditions, all crops are progressing favourably and pastures are in good condition. Some districts are in need of rain but generally moisture conditions are favourable. Ideal growing conditions prevail for the most part in Ontario, where crops generally are very satisfactory except in northern sections where the weather continues dry and hot and in southwestern counties where rainfall has been excessive. In the Maritime Provinces much-needed warm and dry weather has prevailed in most sections during the past week, and all crops have greatly benefited. At a few points, however, conditions have continued. In British Columbia where the weather continues warm and dry, with moisture conditions satisfactory, there is a heavy crop of hay and indications point to good average crops of grain and roots, with a favourable outlook for most fruits. Details follow:

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC
Eastern Townships and Ottawa Valley — Spring wheat and barley are commencing to head out. Grains generally look promising. Root crops are late but growing rapidly. Peas, corn and tomatoes are doing well. Harvest of early variety peas has commenced. The hay crop is below average in some districts. Cutting is well under way. Tobacco is showing good growth. Berries of all kinds are plentiful and apples and other fruits are expected to give average and better yields. Lower St. Lawrence and Lake St. John District—Favourable moisture conditions with warmer weather have been beneficial to growing crops. Hay, grain and potatoes promise good yields. Wild and cultivated berries and other small fruits are plentiful.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO
Fall wheat has filled satisfactorily and is ripening rapidly. Cutting has commenced in Kent and Essex counties. Spring grains have made good progress and are promising. Corn and other hoe crops are making favourable progress. Hay is well advanced with above average yields. Pastures remain in excellent condition. A heavy crop of strawberries has been marketed. The set of early apples indicates satisfactory yields while late varieties will be below average. Tobacco has developed well under favourable conditions and an early harvest is expected.

PRAIRIE PROVINCES
Alberta — Crops generally deteriorated badly during the recent heat wave and considerable wheat is now beyond recovery. Coarse grains and feed crops are generally poor and backward, but in some areas were improved by recent rains. The irrigated beet crop continues to make favourable progress. Pastures and hay crops generally are poor. Saskatchewan —

MARITIME PROVINCES
Grains are making satisfactory progress and root crops have improved. Cutting of hay has commenced and promises a better than average yield. Apples are sizing well and a large crop is looked for. Wild and cultivated berries are plentiful and prospects for other fruits are satisfactory.
