ABOVE ALL ON EARTH IS MAN

Supreme Because of Gift of Half Ounce of Phosphorus in His Brain.

Man has no wings, and yet he can soar above the clouds; he is not swift of foot and yet he can outstep the fleetest hound or horse; he has but feeble weapons in his organization, and yet he can slay or master all the great beasts; his eye is not so sharp as that of the eagle or the vulture, and yet he can see into the farthest depths of sidereal space; he has only very feeble occult powers of communication with his fellows, and yet he can talk across the world and send his voice across mountains and deserts; his hands are weak things beside a lion's paw or an elephant's trunk, and yet he can move mountains and stay rivers and get bounds to the wildest seas. His dog can out-smell him and outrun him, and yet his dog looks up to him as to a god. He has erring reason in place of unerring instinct, and yet he has changed the face of the planet.

Without the specialization of the lower animals—their wonderful adaptation to particular ends—their tools, their weapons, their strength, their speed, man yet makes them all his servants. His brain is more than a match for all the special advantages nature has given them. The one gift of reason makes him supreme in the world.—John Burrough, in Atlantic.

Don't Know When to Stop.

No person will deny that every man ought to have a work to do, something to which he can devote his best energies and abilities. In this country, however, we do not seem to have reached that point where we know when to stop. The mistaken notion seems to prevail that the man who accomplishes his aims must die in the harness; that, like the captain, he must stick to the ship till the last.

And when this spirit is applied to the mere amassing of millions, the purpose, too, becomes sordid and unnatural. It were far better for such persons as have gained a competence, and a great deal more, to retire from the commercial battlefield and give over their remaining years to rational enjoyment of life—to going about and doing good for others, if you please.

The Tooth Came Back.

She was going to the poultry yard to give the chicks their supper. She was a disciple of deep breathing and never lost an opportunity to inhale and exhale vigorously when she was out in the fresh porcelain teeth flew from its bridge and a long search failed to bring it to light. She lived far from a dentist and was in despair, but on the very day on which she had decided to go to the city to have her tooth replaced she prepared a fat hen for dinner to have in readiness when she should return, hungry and with her full complement of teeth. When she opened the crop her surprise and delight were unbounded—for there was her white porcelain tooth with its two tiny pivots unharmed and its porcelain none the worse for its sojourn in the interior regions of a chicken. She tells it only to a few intimate friends, for every one does not know that her gleaming white teeth are partly porcelain.

Caught a Baby Whale.

The smallest specimen of a baby whale ever caught by a British trawler was landed at Grimby the other day by the King James. It was brought up in the trawl net in the North sea, and was so small—18 inches long and three pounds three ounces in weight—that the fisherman could not realize that it was a whale until an expert certified the fact.

The local officer for the board of fisheries secured this specimen which could not have been secured in stock more than three or four days, and immediately dispatched it to the laboratories of the fisheries department in London.—London Standard.

A Necessity.

He had just been accepted. "And do you really think you can be happier with me than with anybody else in the world?" he asked. "No," replied the girl, "but if those 500-button gowns are to be fashionable I must get a husband quick and get him in practice."

BOOK TAUGHT BILKINS

THE ZEPPELIN AIRSHIP SALES

MAJOR H. E. POWELL

The present suggestions for the establishment of a passenger service between points in Germany and England are based on the adaptability of either of the above types of airships, the Zeppelin, of course, for the Germans and the Gross, in England, Major Baden Powell is experimenting with the latter make.
