Overworked Minister

TELLS HOW VINOL RESTORED STRENGTH AND VITALITY.

Charlottetown people will realize that we could not publish such letters as t he following if they were not genuine and truthful statements of facts. The Rev. Mr. Hughes, Holly Springs, Ark., says:—

"I am a Methodist Minister, and suffered from broken-down nerves, loss of appetite and sleeplessness. I was weak, my circulation was very poor, and I was not able to do my duty in my Parish as I felt I should. I had tried various remedies but did not seem to get any better. Through Mr. Gatlin of Bearden, Ark., I learned of Vinol, and it built me up. I regained my appetite, can sleep better and do more work."

There is no secret about Vinol, it derives its power to build up the overworked, brokendown, nervous system from beef and cod liver peptonates, iron and manganese peptonates, and glycerophosphates, etc., which it contains.

Anyone in Charlottetown who wishes to try Vinol can do so with the understanding that we will return their money if they are not satisfied.

DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS

Friday March 22, 1917.

When the House met on Friday morning Mr. Bell rose to a point of privilege and said he wished to make an explanation in regard to an article which appeared in The Guardian of that morning, charging him with the political crime of hypocrisy. He said a more serious charge could not be made against a member than that. The leader of the Government he said, had challenged him and put a question to him in regard to the Dalton Sanatorium and he must have some time in which to give a reply to that challenge. If the Premier would say that he would give him another opportunity of answering the question he was perfectly satisfied to submit to the dictation of the Leader of the Government as to the proper time in which to answer the question.

The Premier replied that the hon. member would have ample opportunity of dealing with all those things that he wished to deal with and this particular question among them, but he must do it in the proper time, and must confine himself to the newspaper article in respect to which he desired to make his explanation, and not try to speak a second time on the question before the House, and thereby attack members.

Mr. Johnston rose to speak, when the Speaker informed him there was no discussion allowed on a question of privilege.

MR. BELL: The Leader of the Government refused me the privilege of answering a question put by the hon. member for Tignish.

THE PREMIER: That is untrue. I never refused the hon. member anything and it is not my intention to take that attitude in the House; but I did rise to a point of order that when he rose to a question of privilege as to some statements made in a newspaper he could not open a new debate and propose to answer questions in regard to a debate that has been going on for some days. He cannot do that and must not do it. Let him confine himself to his question of privilege.

Mr. Bell then entered into a lengthy discussion of an editorial in The Guardian on the subject of the Dalton Sanatorium and his attitude in regard thereto. He said in the course of his remarks that in Sunday School he had read something in the New Testament about a Jewish Council which was called the Sanhedrin where there was devised by the Jews a question to be put to the Master: "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar?" The Master reading into the hearts of those men, and knowing well the sincerity of the purpose behind their question, answered them accordingly. A similar council—the Government—in secret conclave, propounded a question to be put to him (the Leader of the Opposition): If he would move a resolution in the House to convey the Dalton Sanatorium back to that hon. gentleman, and he had now given them their answer. Lest the Leader of the Government should forget it, he would say to him: That the very question proposed betrayed on his (the Premier's) part a deplorable ignorance of the first principles of parliamentary procedure in the House.

THE PREMIER: The Leader of the Opposition has spoken of being in Sunday School. I would suggest to him that he open a kindergarten in which he himself might with benefit study some of the rules of this House. Last year, as Chairman of the Committee on rules and orders, I introduced a series of rules providing for definite action in the event of those rules not being observed. If the Leader of the Opposition cannot henceforth obey the Speaker's ruling we will certainly have to put those rules into effect. The hon. member has wasted a valuable hour of the time of this House, after being ruled out of order by the Speaker, in repeating a lot of stuff that could give no satisfaction to any but himself.

The first order of the day being then read.

Mr. Lea continued his remarks on the subject of agriculture from the evening before.

MRS. DUNCAN MacDONALD

There passed away at her home in Valleyfield, West, on Feb. 23rd, after an illness of only three days duration, which she bore with Christian resignation to the Divine will, Mrs. Christy MacDonald, at the ripe old age of eighty-seven years. The deceased was the widow of the late Donald MacDonald, who predeceased her twenty years ago. She was a person of many sterling qualities, always cheerful and happy, and maintained her strength of mind and body until the end. She was the mother of nine children. Three have gone before. She leaves to mourn two daughters, namely: Mrs. Malcolm MacLeod, Valleyfield West and Mrs. John Munro of Beverley, Mass., and four sons, Donald in Boston, John in Stanford, Montana; Duncan and Peter in Heatherdale, P. E. I. Also one sister, Mrs. John MacPherson of Valleyfield West and two brothers John of London, Ont., and Donald of St. Joseph, Missouri. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. M. McLeod assisted by Rev. M. D. MacLeod, of Caledonia on the 26th of Feb. Although the day was blustering there was a large concourse of relatives and friends, which showed the esteem the many who had the pleasure of her acquaintance had for her.
