Save the Surface For the Future

Painting is not all for looks. It is mainly to save the wood or metal. Every gallon of paint means so many more dollars in value of your buildings. It means less repairs, less depreciation, greater real estate value. Plenty of paint is as big, if not even a bigger insurance, than your fire protection policy. But remember that the paint must be good paint. Dependable oils, lasting colors, and they really cost no more to be the best.

Education

is the stepping stone to progress and prosperity. You, as parents, know this and send your children to school that they may not be handicapped in future years.

But do you know that about seven out of every ten school-children in this country have defective eyes?

Do you know that defective eyes are frequently the cause of poor school work, even though the child is naturally bright?

Have your child's eyes examined now and know what their condition is—do not guess.

Saved From Pneumonia By Vicks

Nova Scotia Lady Secures Relief Overnight

Mrs. Charles Derrier, of 2 Ext. Queen Street, Amherst, Nova Scotia, writes: "I have had pneumonia for the last two winters and was on the verge of having it again when I thought I would try Vicks VapoRub. Before retiring for the night I rubbed it thoroughly on my chest and back and went to sleep, although I hadn't slept for three nights. In the morning I got up feeling like a new woman."

Dr. Osler says pneumonia has taken the place of tuberculosis as "Captain of the Men of Death," to use a phrase coined by old John Bunyan. And influenza is not far behind. The germs of both of these diseases are constantly with us. The only reliable protection against them is the resisting power which comes from good health. To avoid these dangerous diseases in winter, don't let yourself get run down and above all never neglect a cold. Break it up in its early stages with Vicks VapoRub, the external vaporizing treatment for colds.

At all stores, 50c a jar, for a free test size package, write Vicks Chemical Co., 344 Paul St., Montreal, P. Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

"THE LOVE PENDULUM"

BY MARION RUBINCAM

MIXED HAPPINESS

Chapter 102

"Compromise! That was the word Colin had preached to me all winter, all the summer before. I remembered the things he had said, and began saying them to Winthrop now."

"Compromise, Win. You tried to make me go your way and I couldn't. And I tried to make you go mine, and you wouldn't. You were stronger than I, and compelled me to live your sort of life until my stubbornness came to the fore, and I left."

"Now you're tired of your sort of life, and I am tired of mine. So we'll try something that has in it a little of both. We'll live so that we have enough leisure for a little reading and a little thinking, so we are quiet enough to keep a sane and balanced view—yet not out of the way of things."

"How shall we, and where?" Win wanted to know.

"Wait, I'll find a place."

Win dropped the subject, or rather changed it. He leaned over suddenly and threw his arms around my shoulder and came close to me.

"Connie," he said, "let's elope—as we did before? Come on! Your bags are at mother's still packed. It's barely 10 o'clock. In three hours we can be—where shall we go?"

We held the road map before the lamp of the car. There was a fair sized town within less than three

A Beautiful Complexion & Admiration

Ladies—A few days' treatment with CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will do more to clear up the skin than all the beauty treatments in creation.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. An imperfect complexion is caused by a sluggish liver. Millions of people, old, young and middle age take them for Biliousness, Dizziness, Sick Headache, Constipation, and for Sallow, Faded and Sallow Skin. They end the misery of Constipation.

Small Pill—Small Dose—Small Price

hours run, the roads were good, I knew all of them by heart, there was a moon, and my car was fast. My small traveling bag was only half unpacked. Win jumped things into a suitcase and joined me in five minutes, while I sat in the car in front of the house. Mother Taylor had discreetly retired early. Wellsville at half past ten was out of town, paying little attention to speed laws—admirably. My heart was hammering and my cheeks flaming from excitement and happiness.

Three weeks later Win and I stood in the garden of a house built with rambling lines and a white pillared porch that contrasted well with the shades of its brick wall. A wide lawn spread about it—it had been carefully planned for a wealthy family who had been obliged to go South and wanted to sell immediately. The real estate agent, having explained its advantages, retired to his car, and waited for Win and me to talk it over.

"It's only 30 minutes from the city and plenty of trains—good theatre trains, too," I remarked. "We'll keep our apartment for the winter months though, and spend most of the year here."

"Rather nice gardens," Win remarked. "And the house is really a beauty."

I foresaw the gleam of old mahogany against the walls and sheer white curtains blowing lightly from the open windows. It was a lovely place. There was no reason if one wanted that. The agent explained the advantages of the country club with its golf and tennis and dances. We already knew some of the people who lived in the nearby suburbs.

"You can invite Colin out as much as you like," said Win, in a burst of extreme generosity.

"That reminds me, I never opened his letter." I pulled from my bag an envelope with his familiar, irregular handwriting.

It was the shortest of any letter he had ever written me. It explained simply that he had a cable from Muriel, the girl in Paris, that her husband had died. He was off on the next boat for Havre and would write later from Paris. I read it to Winthrop.

"Probably he'll stay on there for a year or so, and in the end he'll marry her." "He's waited so long and been so devoted. She surely could not resist him."

Winthrop smiled down at me suddenly, a smile so warm and tender it was a caress in itself.

"We'll have them both here sometime, then. Do you like this place? Shall we buy it?"

I nodded, a deep sense of satisfaction, going over me at the idea of making my home in this charming, restful place, a quiet world that was and yet was not cut off from the restless, stimulating world about us.

"We might adopt little Connie if you want," Win suggested.

I nodded again, I had always wanted to—but I was glad he made the offer without my suggesting it.

"It's a nice garden for children to play in," I said. "For Connie—and for our children too."

Again his smile was a caress. "We'll be perfectly happy, won't we?"

I did not answer. We would not be perfectly happy. It would be a mixed happiness. But I was wise enough now not to look for perfection, wise enough to know that sometimes I would rebel and sometimes Winthrop would rebel, against which ever sort of life we led together. Sometimes the pendulum would swing one way, inevitably it would swing the other—but there would always be enough love to bring it back again to balance. And I was more than satisfied when I looked ahead.

But why bother Win with this, which he would not understand? I turned and smiled at him and did not answer quite truthfully—"Perfectly," I agreed.

THE END

The moonlit romance of young love has its thrills. The glaring sun heat of such a turbulent love as was Connie's and Win's has its fascinations. But there is another love that only twilight knows, that is bigger and finer and better than these. It is the Mother Love—that loves its mate and lives again in the budding loves of its sons and daughters.

"The Middle Ground" is Marion Rubincam's story of the thousands of women who spend their lives in a round of little sacrifices until they are so immersed in petty details that they lose sight of all the big things—their families, making it possible for them to do the big things, while "Mother" just withers up from sheer tiredness and monotony and neglect. It's a love story, and a story of married life, and a story of mother-blissness. Watch for the first chapter in the column Tuesday—The Editor.

PREJUDICES

Prejudices are like the knots in the glass of our windows. They alter the shapes of everything that we choose to look at through them; they make straight things crooked and everything indistinct.

Sage Tea Dandy to Darken Hair

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks are wanted around, so get busy with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

FREE STATE COMPENSATION PAYMENTS

(By Dominion News Service.) LONDON, Oct. 12.—A correspondent writes to the Times: When my house burned in May, 1922, I received letters from two British Cabinet Ministers referring to post-Treaty claims, saying that these would be payable by the Free State Government under the terms of the Treaty, but that the British Government would see that the claims were met. I obtained a decree in October, 1922, and my wife and a lady living in the house also got decrees for loss of their personal wardrobe, clothes, etc. These decrees were given after a full hearing, where the county council was represented by solicitor and counsel, and every item strictly scrutinized and the amounts awarded were practically agreed to by counsel on both sides. In one case the award was £250 and the other £110. These ladies have now received formal offers from the Free State Government proposing to settle the claims for £50 and £18 respectively. Comment is unnecessary. What steps do the British Government intend to take in vindication of their pledges?

Canadian Honored

(By Dominion News Service.) LIVERPOOL, Oct. 13.—In the Arts Theatre at Liverpool University honorary degrees of Doctor of Science were conferred upon Sir Ernest Rutherford (president of the British Association), Professor Niels Bohr, of Copenhagen, Professor Ernest Howard Griffiths (treasurer of the British Association), Professor Gilbert Newton Lewis (Professor of Chemistry at the University of California), Professor John Cunningham McLeod (Professor of Physics in the University of Toronto), Professor Ernest Johannes Schmidt (director of the Carlsberg Laboratory in Copenhagen), and Professor Grafton Elliot Smith (director of the new Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in the University of London).

The assembly at which the degrees were conferred embraced the Liverpool University and other distinguished people. The students were present in strong force, and cheered lustily the different recipients of the degrees, and in traditional student style enlivened the proceedings by shouting at the top of their voices, "Yes, we have no bananas to-day."

IN THE GUARDIAN

Wherever there are mothers and young daughters, wherever there are stern fathers and young lovers, you will hear this exclamation over and over again. The children call mother's and father's way narrow—mother and father call the children's way scandalous.

And they all are wrong!

There is room for the wisdom of Age and the enthusiasm of Youth—for the thrilling to love and the respect for responsibility—for mad pursuit of the flying feet of fame and the peaceful enjoyment of achievement—when we find tolerance in
