CHANGING

These seven nations sent their representatives to this little Swiss town to decide on some agreement to be drawn up that could be agreed to by all.

France wanted security, England to keep faith with her allies, and Germany to be admitted.

Seven accords were agreed to at Locarno, and four arbitrations were also two guaranteed treaties involving Great Britain and Italy.

Germany in her four arbitrations agrees to prego war. But back of these there were the two guarantees of amity and assistance between France and Poland and France and Czechoslovakia.

In Geneva, when these were drawn up the league was highly pleased. But there was a condition attached; they were not to come into force until Germany was taken into the league. At first it did not seem that this would be a difficult matter. But when Germany made her application she made a stipulation that she should have a permanent seat in the Council of the League—so that the nations applying must have the consent of the whole assembly. So they decided to hold an extra session of the Assembly on March 8th 1926.

But other states wanted permanent seats—Spain, Poland, Berlin, and China. They could not have these seats and they had to be told so—Spain withdrew for two years, but came in again later.

Brazil stated she would not vote Germany in unless she too had a permanent seat. She remained adamant, and the special meeting of the assembly had to disperse without taking in Germany.

Germany said she would apply again at the September session, and if she was not then admitted, she would have nothing more to do with the league, and the Locarno treaties would have so much waste paper.

Sir Herbert, having left his office of financial director, was made one of Canada's delegates to the league, and as such, took part in the meeting of the Assembly which was held in Geneva.

The League of Nations has perfected a machinery which can deal with turbulent nations. In 1925 they made Greece and Bulgaria fight, and there has never been any trouble in the Balkans since.

Then, too, treaties of Arbitration are improving both in quantity and quality. Formerly such treaties had clauses in them that to questions of National honour, or interest the treaties should not apply—a convenient loophole through which almost anything could creep.

Speaking of the Kellogg-Briand treaty, Sir Herbert said it was all well enough in its way—though many of the nations in the league had treaties going much beyond that. He called attention to the fact, that while it stipulates that all disputes shall be settled by peaceful means, it does not provide any machinery by which this can be done. But the league has sent out to the member nations to draw a model draft treaty providing for just such machinery.

Sir Herbert expressed himself as an optimist. The cause of peace is going forward. Let us continue to do our part in it. Europeans, he said, looked on Canada as a fortunate country. And Canada has no reason to be proud of the fact that she stood on the sidelines—either in the

FIFIELD IN BAD WITH MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—The Montreal Gazette, in speaking of Monday's fight, says:

Daine Fortune played a great deal in the victory over Siders, as he was practically out on his feet when Fifield struck a foul blow, and was disqualified.

The Star says:

George Fifield never fought such a foul fight in his life. If he is allowed to fight again in Montreal the Boxing Commission should permit his opponent to wear a horse collar, to protect the base of his brain.

He deliberately seemed to set out to numb the clever Siders with hard unwhipped rabbit punches, and after being warned three times, had the effrontery of offering his hand to his injured opponent.

And Referee Rivet should have stopped it. No wonder the crowd hooted the latter unmercifully.

Fifield used the rabbit punch a fourth time without being warned and again when Siders was on the way to the floor in the seventh round, down and out near the latter's own corner, the Toronto man gave him another one on the nape of the neck with such vicious force that it was marvelous it did not crack poor Siders' vertebrae. Up to the sixth round, notwithstanding the devastating effects of Fifield's murderous attacks behind Siders' back, the latter had the fight well in hand.

Great Football Coach Says He Is Through With Game As Profession For All Time

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—Frank Shaughnessy, former coach of the football and hockey teams of McGill University, today emphatically denied a report from Toronto that he would coach the football team of the University of Western Ontario, London, if that team is admitted to the Intercollegiate Senior Rugby Union.

"I am through with coaching as a profession for all time," said the veteran mentor, who is now firmly established with a mining brokerage business to put myself in a position where I would again be subject to the vicissitudes of professors, students and graduates as I have in the past," said Shaughnessy.

Scores Of Prominent Baseball Men Pay Tribute At Graveside Of Dunn

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26.—Jack Dunn, owner-manager of the Baltimore Orioles of the International Baseball League, was buried today, while scores of prominent men in baseball circles stood at his graveside.

Floral tributes expressed the sorrow of others throughout the country. A requiem mass was said at St. Mary's Catholic Church and the burial was in the graveyard adjoining the church.

JACK HOOD KNOCKS OUT ITALIAN

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Jack Hood, of Birmingham, welterweight champion of Great Britain, stopped Bruno Fratini, of Italy, in the third round of their bout at Albert Hall tonight. The Italian was completely outclassed and after he was knocked down three times in the third round, the referee stopped the fight just as Fratini's seconds tossed in the towel.

Teddy Baldock, crack British bantam, who then resided after a storm of controversy, the new basketball rules for 1928-29 have considerable to say about regulating this spectacular feature of the game.

Section 9, under the head of personal fouls which reads:

"A player shall not hold, trip, charge or push an opponent whether or not either player has possession of the ball. If a dribbler charges into an opponent, or makes personal contact with an opponent, without an apparent effort to avoid such contact, a personal foul shall be called on the dribbler if he tries to avoid contact, personal contact, either player, or both, may be guilty, but the greater responsibility is placed on the player who is in his path."

This is designed to "emphasize the responsibility of the dribbler in connection with the fouls resulting from the dribbler," says Oswald Tower, Andover, Mass., official interpreter of the rules.

THE STORAGE OF VEGETABLES

(Experimental Farms Note.)

A low temperature, slightly above freezing, is the best for the storage of all vegetables except squash and pumpkins, which keep best in a moderately warm room with dry air. It is not possible to store vegetables satisfactorily in a cellar containing a furnace, unless a room is partitioned off with access to the outside air for ventilation. It is better to store in a room with an earth floor, as this gives more humidity and less drying out of root crops, such as beets, carrots, and turnips. Onions, on the other hand, do best in a fairly dry air. Celery requires a storage room with a good circulation of air, and conditions which give dry foliage. It is necessary, however, that the roots of celery plants be in moist soil, so that the foliage will not wilt. To keep the roots moist and the foliage dry a reasonable circulation of cool air is necessary. Close-up rooms invite decay. If the temperature is high, wilting of root crops is inevitable, and wilting, with wilting, is accompanied by rotting with sand or sawdust.

Leaving the storage room open, practically at night, is advisable until freezing weather approaches, resulting from storage. Slatted bottom shelves on foot spacers for onions, and two feet apart for cabbage, give excellent storage facilities. Cabbage may also be tied roots up to the cellar joists.

A small area of parsnips and leeks should be left for digging in spring. The parsnips should be dug early in the spring and placed in storage for later use.

Returning a lost horse containing $75 to its owner, an Acton, England, woman was given 12 cents by some diplomats.

TRAINING SCHOOL. The Service Training School with centre at Millon held their October meeting on Tuesday evening, the 16th. The attendance was small, a fact which is to be regretted. The president, Mr. Bramwell Chandler, presided. After the various committee reports had given their reports, Mr. Lloyd Shaw gave a very interesting talk. He urged the teachers to keep abreast of the times by studying, and to put into practice the new methods of teaching which leading educationists find to bring test results. The entertainment for the evening consisted in a reading, "The Highwayman" by Miss Vera Andrews. This reading was very well given and enjoyed by all. "Reading," the subject of the second lesson of the course which is being followed by the Service Training School, was then conducted by Mr. Howard Court. The next meeting is to be held on Thursday, Nov. 22, at 7:30 p. m.

NEW INDUSTRY—IMPORTING SERMONS.—The Eastern Chronicle, N. S. says:—If you have a radio with loud speaker, he or she does not need much of an excuse to listen in on Sunday morning to a sermon from Charlottetown, rather than treading his way to his own Church. There were days when we looked to Prince Edward Island for oats, potatoes and good horses. Now you can get good sound religion from across the same Strait. On Sunday it was he delivered a fine address upon duty. The opening of the new hotel in Halifax had touched him and he dilated upon England's greatest naval hero, Lord Nelson, and began by quoting his famous signal: "England expects this day that every man will do his duty." He emphasized the greatness of the British Navy and what its accomplishments had meant to the greatest empire of all time, that of Great Britain. Mr. Muir then spoke of individual duty and left with his hearers a lesson upon the path of duty in every day life.

"Chang" the Marvel Movie at Prince Edward

THE PICTURE THAT HAS WON MORE CRITICAL APPROVAL THAN ANY OTHER FILM EVER FLASHED ON THE SCREEN.

GEORGE B. SHAW NOMINATED FOR THRONE
LONDON, October, 26.—George B. Shaw was elected when he learned tonight that he had been nominated by American "Royalists" as their candidate for the American throne. He said he had not yet been approached by the American "Royalists" but he was keeping an open mind on the subject. Asked if he would entertain the idea of application was made to him, Shaw replied:

"I am prepared to entertain anything."

Germany Enters the League
On that day, Sept. 10th, the chairman was a Serbian. And the day was also the 124th anniversary of the Battle of the Marne!

The Germans, who were known as "Alemans," set over on the right among the "A's" Her Sixes, man then gave his address, which he read. Sir Herbert gave a brief synopsis of his speech. Then Aristotle Brand came to the platform and expressed on behalf of the assembled representatives their welcome to the German delegates.

He is as typical a Frenchman as Stressemann is a German, said Sir Herbert. He spoke for 20 minutes. When he alluded to the ceasing of the strife between France and Germany he said "Mais tout cela est fini, fini pour toujours"—truly a dramatic moment! Sir Herbert said that he had never heard of a finer oratorical effort than that of Aristotle Brand on that day.

Sir Herbert with Sir George Foster were two of Canada's official delegates. In the tenseness of feeling after Brand's magnificent address, Sir George Foster had held up a pink handkerchief in his hand and whispered, "Shant' we give them a wave?" Sir Herbert in a superior fashion had said to Sir George, "Oh no, it isn't done over here." But Sir George was so gratified and waving that pink handkerchief had stood up and shouted his "Hip, hip, hurrah." It was a feeble effort, almost unsupported by anything which has come to the attention of the mightiest of the Wild and the Mightiest of the Mighty!

Prince Edward can well cut another notch in its belt. It is not very often that a picture of the magnitude, entertainment value or true business of "Chang" comes along. Because of this, it towers head and shoulders above practically everything which has come to the attention of the mightiest of the Wild and the Mightiest of the Mighty!
