FIREMEN OUT—The City Fire Department was out twice yesterday. About eight o'clock last night a grass fire in a vacant lot on York Lane was extinguished after a line of hose was used. It is believed to have been caused by children and was threatening some nearby buildings when the alarm was sent in. The firemen responded to an alarm about 9:30 yesterday morning for a blaze at 271 Fitzroy Street in a cubicle tenement house owned by Mr. Levi McLean. About 200 feet of hose was laid and an adaptor hose used to extinguish a roof blaze which had worked its way inside. Flying sparks from an adjoining fire is said to be the cause of the fire.

Campbell, Fulton Adams, A. O. F. Gill, Geo. S. Ryan were elected as directors for the incoming year. At a subsequent meeting of the directors H. G. Leitch was elected President and A. O. F. forces, presumably have been re-conditioned since the Oran battle. The Vichy fleet and use of Vichy bases in French West Africa and Morocco could help Germany in an attempt to close the Western Mediterranean to Britain, co-incident with an attack on Gibraltar. Use of French submarines, especially if based at Dakar, would imperil all ships on the vital routes to South Africa and South America.

Here is a summary of French naval strength and what became of it according to best information available: Battleship Jean Bart, 35,000 tons, floated but not completed in 1940. Battleship Richelieu, 35,000, completed but not in commission in 1940. Presumably available now. Battleship Dunkerque, 26,500, badly damaged at Oran, presumably repaired. Battleship Strasbourg, 26,500 tons, torpedoed after gaining open sea at Oran, reached Toulon; presumably available now. Battleship Bretagne, 22,000, destroyed by magnetic mine off Oran, according to German reports. Battleship Foch, 22,000, reported set at Oran. Battleships Courbet, Paris, Lorraine, 22,000; two of these in unspecified British ports, third at Alexandria. Aircraft Carrier Bearn, 22,000 at Martinique. Aircraft Transport Commandant Teste, 10,000 reported sunk at Oran later claimed by Germans to be at Toulon. Cruisers, four of Suffren class, two of Duquesne class, all 10,000 of these, three were known to have been at Alexandria. Cruisers, seven light, unspecified, of various tonnage. Of these two are in unspecified British ports, two were burned or sunk at Oran. Submarine Surcouf, 2,880, in an unspecified British port.

Submarines, 3 first class craft and more than 50 second class craft. Of these an unspecified number are in British hands. Small craft, unspecified of various tonnage, more than 200 of these vessels are in unspecified British ports, with some at Alexandria. Others were at Oran.

said broadcast press dispatches, was the Volokolamsk sector, 65 miles to the northwest. There, it was acknowledged by the newspaper Izvestia, the situation of the Red army has been "aggravated."

Izvestia called the Volokolamsk pressure "enormous." In one action the dispatch said, the Germans sent forward six tank and one infantry divisions in an effort to encircle the Russians and force them back into a lake. "But Soviet resistance thwarted this plan," Izvestia said.

Pravda, Moscow's other large newspaper, said the Germans balked at the direct approaches to the capital, had failed in a 10-day attempt to turn the Russian flanks, but acknowledged that the attackers had been able to push closer to the city.

Pravda said that at least 13,500 Germans had been killed recently in fighting in two sectors of the Kalinin area, 90 miles northwest of Moscow.

In the Stalinogorsk area, 120 miles southeast of Moscow, the German tactic of encirclement took form in pressure northward. Pravda's correspondent said the Germans were using three tank and three infantry divisions there on a front of seven to nine miles.

The Russian high command had little of significance to report beyond the customary daily announcement: "We fought the enemy on all fronts."

"when this is all over the United States will hold us in financial bondage." "That," he said, "is not true. Under the lease-lend arrangement there is no accounting and no debt piling up."

Later an authoritative source explained this statement was meant to contrast the lease-lend arrangement with the war-debt situation which was "such a sore point" after the first great war. This source said:—

"Britain is, of course, committed to return or replace everything she receives, and everyone knows this is an obligation which must and will be met. Mr. Eden sought to assure the British people that there would not be another gigantic war debt to be paid off with money they don't have and won't have, and thus there won't be the recriminations that followed the last war."

Mr. Eden also made these points:— 1. Declared the present anti-Communist conference in Berlin is the opening wedge for a Nazi peace offensive, but that it would not affect "one jot" the determination of Britain to carry on the war and that, "I hope, the remaining neutral countries will not be deluded into listening to Hitler's plan for a new order."

2. Denied Nazi Foreign Minister Ribbentrop's charge that Britain declared assurance in 1940 that Russia would join the war on her side. He said Britain was continuing handicapped by Russia's adherence to her pact with Germany prior to last July and "at no time was it actually German troops that crossed the frontier there was any political or military conversation between us and the Soviet government—I wish there might have been."

3. Declared Hitler needed a respite because of Russian resistance. Mr. Eden said "he is trying to persuade the nations of Europe that the only way they can get peace is by coming into his new order. He said that if they do that he would be successful in bringing the British and Americans to terms."

"He is wrong. He won't," Mr. Eden declared. Mr. McGovern said that if the Atlantic charter was good enough for countries conquered by Hitler, "surely we ought to guarantee the independence of our own colonial peoples."

Mr. Eden replied that the comparison between Nazi-occupied Europe and British India—"was the most extravagant absurdity."

On one hand Mr. Eden said there was but a handful of white officials in India; on the other, he enumerated these "official German figures" on executions in occupied countries:— 337 from Sept. 27 to Oct. 23, 1941. Yugoslavia—1,132 since Axis occupation. France—240 since Aug. 13. Zagreb, Croatia—100 shot June 23 for the death of two German soldiers.

Actually, he added, the Yugoslav killings may total 35,000. The motion which the House adopted on the final vote expressed "complete confidence in the Prime Minister and not only in him personally but also in those people and those methods which it is the Prime Minister's right and responsibility to choose and use for the winning of the war."

Mr. McGovern and one other I.P. member were unable to vote as tellers.

A VISIT TO SANTA CLAUS—Another Surprise

"I was crying because we got lost in the woods," said June.

"Well, pinch my cheeks and call me Rosy!" said the rabbit. "I'll see that you get home."

"But I cannot take you home now for Starbright, the fairy queen, is coming."

Just then there was a tap-tap-tap on the little door.
