BUYING OF MARITIME SEED POTATOES SEEN

MONCTON, Aug. 18.—"We are on our way to Kentville to look over the Dyckens farm, which has been set aside for use as a distributing centre for the British boys sent over under the auspices of the National Association of Boys' Clubs of Great Britain," declared Dr. W. J. Black, C.N.R. director of colonization and agriculture, who passed through Moncton this afternoon accompanied by F. W. Walsh, superintendent of agriculture of the railway. Dr. Black is vice-president of the club and just recently a party of British boys who came over to Canada under the auspices of the National Association of Boys' Clubs and the C.N.R. were stationed on the Dyckens farm prior to being placed on farms elsewhere.

In referring to the coming visit of 160 members of the Pennsylvania Potato Growers' Association to New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, Mr. Walsh, who originated the movement, said it should prove beneficial to the potato growers in both provinces. This object of the tour, he said, was to study potato growing methods, as practiced on farms in Prince Edward Island and in New Brunswick.

The Pennsylvania growers, he continued, purchase much of their seed potatoes, approximately 1,000 carloads a season, from northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, and it is possible that the present tour will lead to purchase of seed potatoes from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, the fame of which has spread far and wide.

The itinerary of the party provides for leaving Montreal by special train Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 19, arriving at Grand Falls the morning of Aug. 20. After visiting some of the potato farms in that district, the party will leave the same night for Prince Edward Island, arriving at Emerald Junction Thursday morning, Aug. 21. The centre of the potato producing area of the Island. They will leave Emerald Junction Thursday night for Quebec, arriving there Friday morning, Aug. 22. The party will leave Quebec Friday afternoon for home, arriving at Williamsport, N.S., Saturday afternoon. Mr. Walsh is a native of New Brunswick, having been born at Moncton. He will accompany the party in the Maritimes.

Robbers Get Away With $2,000

(Canadian Press)
HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 18.—The Elton and Lotrid Sts. branch of the Royal Bank was held up this afternoon by two gunmen who escaped with $2,000. Five constables on motorcycles took up the chase of the robbers who were reported captured in the Maritimes.

The Hon. W. Bruce Butler, member without portfolio in the Provincial Government, yesterday tendered his resignation to Premier Lea as a member of the Government and also announced his intention of supporting the Conservative party under the Hon. J. D. Stewart at the next session of the Legislature.

The high-handed attitude of party was not taken hastily, but was the result of serious deliberation on my part," Mr. Butler stated in an interview with a Guardian representative yesterday. "I believe in democratic principles of British systems of Government—was given by Mr. Butler as the chief reason for his breaking away from the Liberal party, which he has consistently supported in the Legislature since his election as representative of the Fourth District of King's in 1923. Re-elected in 1927, Mr. Butler was sworn in as a Minister in the Saunders Government on its formation, Aug. 12, 1927, and rendered indefatigable service in that capacity. "My decision to resign from the Lea Government and the Liberal

Excellent Exhibits At The Exhibition

Favourable Comments Heard On All Sides On Attractive Booths.

The largest and best group of exhibits ever shown at the Provincial Exhibition are now on display for Prince Edward Island's annual fair. A large list of entries of what seems exhibits of a high standard of excellence feature the field crop and live stock departments in particular. The decorations of the main building surpass those of any year previous in variety and color.

The midway was the scene of feverish activity yesterday as booths and the various concessions were put in place. The number of entries in the horse class is the largest for years, and despite the fact that new stalls have been erected accommodation is insufficient. Cattle classes are also well filled. The showing of poultry sheep and hogs is also good.

Among the foreign exhibitors are Bull and Sons, Bromton, Ont., J. R. Semple and Sons, Truro, and Dr. Dyer St. Stephen with Jerseys; J. S. Ritchie and Son, and Langley Bros. of Paradise, N. S. with Guernseys; Charles Trenholm of Amherst, with short horns. In the horse classes George Holmes and Gilbert Arnold of Amherst, are both exhibiting.

R. T. Holman Booth
Domesticity is one of the outstanding features of the beautifully arranged and tastefully furnished booth of R. T. Holman Ltd., occupying the entire western end of the Exhibition Hall. Luxury is written over every inch of the right half of the booth, where the furniture is on display, while utility holds sway to the left, where the kitchen ranges in the parand in simple state. In the parand section the quiet light of numerous floor lamps sets off the Kroehler Living Room furniture to perfection. In imagination one lounges in the Chesterfield, or sits in the comfortable armchair while a radio plays. A library of books adds to such of entertainment and leisure.

Bootleggers Go Into Retirement In Nova Scotia

(Canadian Press)
HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 18.—Nova Scotia's bootleggers today went into retirement. Four government stores, three in Halifax and one in Dartmouth opened their doors at ten o'clock this morning. They were the advance guard of some two dozen similar establishments for the vending of beers, wines and spirituous liquors that will shortly be doing business in various parts of the province as the result of Nova Scotia's adoption of the Government Control system. Business was brisk. At Halifax stores considerable queues had gathered before the zero hour, and the stores were still doing a good trade at closing time. For the most part, it was said, beer was beverage in demand, with only a moderate call for permits to buy spirits. Permits are not required for the purchase of beer and wine.

Organized Crime Costs Chicago $10,000,000 a Yr. Declares Commerce Assn.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Chicagoans are being "taken for at least $10,000,000 a year," Colonel Robert Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce, and a leader in the war against organized crime, told the British United Press tonight. His statement followed closely upon the discovery of the financial records kept by the slain Jack Zuta, gangster, with their inescapable implications that racketeers had busily dealings with city officials, politicians and police. Colonel Randolph expressed no surprise in the disclosure, through the Zuta records, that gangsters have dealt financially with office-holders. "The corrupt triangle between police, politicians and racketeers merely confirms the position of the Association of Commerce Crime Committee," Colonel Randolph said. He believes that the complete exposure and conviction of as much as one thoroughly corrupt police captain would do more to clean up Chicago than the arrest and conviction of a score of hoodlums.

"It has been obvious to us for some time that gangs would have been unable to obtain such a hold on the city without the assistance of the regularly constituted authorities. Every clue that the Zuta records have turned up should be followed to the very end." The link between politics and crime had been hinted at in Chicago for many years. Now for the first time it appears to be strongly forged by the treasure-trove of evidence which Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney John A. Swanson, found in Zuta's safety deposit boxes. Zuta was suspected of plotting the Lingle murder. This suspicion was accelerated by Zuta's own murder two weeks ago in a summer retreat at Delafield, Wis. Pat Roche had talked to Zuta a week before he was killed and at that time, it is believed Roche obtained information leading to the finding of the tell-tale safety deposit boxes.
