Evangelist Tells How Revival Comes

It Follows Prayers of Earnest, Live Christians, Not Dead Ones - Rocky Mountain Evangelist's Talk - Family Theatre Meeting

New York, Feb. 23 - It is already evident that the Rev. John A. Davis, Evangelist, and Fred A. Mills singer, are going to have a revival in James M. E. Church...

Brother Willie O'Donnell, who was a prominent attendant at the union services held in Sumner Avenue Baptist and Embassy Memorial M. E. Churches, occupying a conspicuous front seat, has promised one in James Church and is ready for a good time for the next two weeks.

After a song service, Mr. Davis asked for requests for prayer, and they came from every part of the house, wives asking for husbands, mothers for daughters and sons, and young women for brothers.

How many of you ever prayed in public? Ask Mr. Davis. Not many hands went up until the evangelist had again asked and then there was a pretty general response.

Don't be afraid of me, I won't hurt you. Some of you people seem able to say things without opening your mouth. Come now, let's have some verses of Scripture.

Mr. Davis preached on "prayer" taking his text from 11 Chronicles viii: 14. "If my people, which are called by my name shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins and will heal their land."

Mr. Davis said that was just as true as the sun and moon, and that you should this city will get a spiritual blessing, which is only another name for a revival.

Some of you may say you do not believe in revivals. Too much excitement and too noisy. Why, bless you, you believe in revivals in business; politicians believe in revivals with brass bands and evangelists on the back-pedals of rail-road cars making five-minute speeches just before election, and they believe in revivals over in the Stock Exchange, A

BUSY DAY AT THE THAW MURDER TRIAL

A Number of Witnesses Examined - Jerome Much Easier in His Examination of Mrs. Thaw Who Is Thought to Have Scored.

[SPECIAL BY WIRELESS.] New York, Feb. 23th. - Evelyn Nesbit was on the stand again today, and at the hour of a adjournment District Attorney Jerome announced he had nearly finished with the witness. He was more gentle today, and on the whole Mrs. Thaw came off victorious, having materially strengthened her husband's case, when court adjourned till Thursday.

Evelyn's evidence made it appear as if Thaw had taken the money White sent to her in Europe and used it to pay expenses.

Today Mrs. Thaw explained that Harry took the money saying "twas 'poison," and that neither she nor her mother shall testify.

She denied positively that she signed the famous Abe Hammel affidavit which declares that Thaw beat her while abroad.

Hummel will testify today. Dr. Flint whom Jerome tried to get Evelyn to say she consulted while with Barrymore the actor, was tonight in court and faced the witness, but Mrs. Thaw swore she had never seen him before.

At this moment Harry Thaw leaned over to the newspapermen and said you see that man made a mistake coming here; he stands there a liar do you catch the point a liar. Insanity experts will probably be on the stand tomorrow or Wednesday.

Monday, Feb. 25, 1907. House re-assembled at 4.30 p.m., after the week-end adjournment.

HON. PREMIER PETERS, resuming the speech which he began on the draft address shortly before adjournment on Friday, took up the subject of the Provincial subsidy, and devoted some time to a consideration of the objections put forward by the Leader of the Opposition in regard to the amount secured by Prince Edward Island.

The Premier stated the manner in which the Provincial Premiers had been summoned to attend the Conference last year - they were called to "attend a conference to discuss financial subsidies to the Provinces."

"And here the members of the Opposition," said Mr. Peters, "are stumping the country and demanding why didn't we do this, and why didn't we do that, why didn't we bring up winter communication, fishery award, and every other contention? Why not? Because the Conference was for one definite object and we were confined to that. We went with a budget of papers, prepared to prove claims - and were quietly told that we were not assembled there for that purpose but to hear subsidy pleas. I want to say to those who ask why we didn't do these things, that we simply couldn't do it."

"A great deal of misapprehension exists as to the constitution of the Conference. Sir Wilfrid Laurier called together all the local Premiers. The Premiers were among themselves to discuss their claims, come to a conclusion about them and then present them. When these subjects had been discussed we sent for Sir Wilfrid. As strongly as I can I want to impress upon this Conference was constituted. The question before the Conference had nothing to do with per capita. The question was what each province was to get for a specific subsidy. Before the Conference met we knew what we got - $30,000. After the conference had closed it was agreed by every province that we should get an increase of $70,000. The question of 50c a head on population was not discussed except incidentally. "The great question was, what shall you get for the support of government and legislation? I do not know how it was arrived at we got $30,000 formerly; it was based on estimates. At the time we went into Confederation it was impossible to decide what the amount should be. Well, time rolled on; the amount was found not sufficient. But we got along on the $30,000, and are proud to say that the Province improved. Then a lot of influences converged to put us in a position to go and demand as a right that which, if we stood alone we would have had great difficulty in obtaining. It was necessary to have the good-will and the good-fellowship of the other provinces, and we did have it."

"I have tried to explain the impossibility of bringing other claims to the attention of the Conference. The other Premiers tried to do this and were unable to succeed. Premier McBride kicked till the last but the other premiers united, and with the good management of Sir Wilfrid broke the attempts of Premier McBride to break up the Conference proved unavailing. I have heard it said that this increase of $70,000 is a thing away back in 1877. Well, I do not care for the credit, if there is any credit built up government through their efforts were able to make a reality of this that is to our credit. I am not claiming any distinction for my colleague to the Conference or for myself. I may say this though, the Premier of Quebec said in his speech that the government of Prince Edward Island had brought the claims most strongly to his attention. "It is totally unnecessary to get up these meetings advising legislators to refuse to sanction resolutions. When we get this $70,000 with what we used to have before, this Province will be in a magnificent position. We have been working along, trying to do all we could to keep the Province up, and we have had deficits simply because they could not be helped; we could not obtain enough revenue. But with this $70,000, and all our other revenues we shall be able to spend all we spent in former years and have a surplus of $40,000. However, all these details will be discussed later on and I shall not waste time now."

Mr. Peters then referred to the doing away with the stock farm which he considered, and had been advised by the best authorities, would be a judicious move, especially as the establishing of an experimental farm would be a thing of much more benefit and profit to the Province. The affiliation of Prince of Wales College and McGill University also came in for mention and the advantages of this from many points were shown by the Premier. The Premier concluded his speech at six o'clock when the House was adjourned till 10 a. m. on Tuesday.

Lynx And Eagle Engage In Fight

Hunters Witness Deadly Combat From Which Eagle Finally Comes Out Victorious - A Full Account Of Encounter

McKEEVER, N. Y., Feb. 23 - John Horn, who makes the study of birds and animals a pastime, has established to his own satisfaction the fact that while eagles will attack other in a fight against a common enemy as much cannot be said of the lynx, the most ferocious member of the cat family found in the woods of New York State. Mr. Horn and a companion were shooting grouse a few days ago, and as they shot them hung them on low spruce trees to be picked up on the return trip to camp. Several had been killed, and the men were working backward on the trail when the naturalist saw a bald eagle swoop downward two hundred yards in front of him, and a moment rise with a grouse in its talons. He rightly judged that the bird had taken part of the day's spoils and was launching that so good a joke had been played upon him, when the eagle lost its grip and down came the grouse. The eagle soared about for a few moments and then, folding its wings, shot toward the ground, uttering sharp cries as it descended. The trees shut out further observation at the time, but when Mr. Horn heard sharp squallings mingled with the harsh notes of the bird, he concluded that something interesting was going on, and with his companion he hurried forward to the top of a ledge overlooking a depression into which the eagle had alighted.

On arriving at the ledge the men were just in time to witness a most unusual woodland battle. A couple of Canada lynx, which had in all probability been after the grouse when their rival took it off, had now recovered their prey and were fighting desperately to retain it. The eagle was making an equally strong fight to retain what his carelessness had lost, and fur and feathers flew in a cloud while the fierceness of the fight was rent by the cries of the combatants. For a moment or two honors were about even, but one eagle is no match for two lynx, and the old bird head was getting the worst of the fight when his mate reinforced him. A third lynx which had been attracted by the hub-bub, also put in an appearance, but after one look he slunk away, leaving his fellows to their fate. As the battle progressed, now one side and then the other seeming upon point of victory, a third eagle dropped from the sky, and with this arrival the fate of the lynx was sealed. They fought on, however until one lost an eye, when they ran for cover. They didn't get far, for the eagles were too much aroused to let them escape and they never ceased until both forest cats were dead. Then they devoured the grouse and flew off.

FIGHTING ON IN HONDURAS

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, Feb. 20. - Despatches received here by Senator Davila, the representative of Honduras here, say that the Nicaraguan army invaded Honduras territory at Portillo del Espino, and that after two hours fighting the invading forces were completely defeated, leaving 37 men killed and many wounded on the field. Proclamations establishing a provisional government in Honduras were captured by the Honduran troops. They were signed by Maximo Rosales, Miguel Quezillo Bustillo and Ignacio Castro. These men are prominent Honduran revolutionists, who are now serving with the forces of President Zelaya of Nicaragua.

MAINE SEAPORT FOR C.P.R. RY.

AUGUSTA, Maine, February 22. - A bill was introduced in the legislature yesterday, to authorize the Seaboard and Massachusetts railroads to extend its lines to connect with the Canadian Pacific, Wisconsin, and Quebec railroads. If the proposed extensions are constructed, it is said the Canadian Pacific road will have a tidal outlet at Wisconsin. The road runs across the northern part of the state, but has no seaport in Maine.

GAMBLING IN SUNNY FRANCE

PARIS, Feb. 23. - The French government has already taken steps towards the closing of a number of establishments in Paris which, under the name of clubs, are in reality merely gambling halls. And before very long a law is to be submitted to the chamber by which such establishments shall be closed altogether, and by which the casinos and casino clubs at French watering-places shall be carefully regulated by non-nonsense of the government and taxed with a further 10 per cent impost on the gross product of the gambling, which money the state will use for charitable and hygienic purposes. To give the reader an idea of the kind of "club" which M. Clemenceau proposes closing, one of them, which the police visited a day or two ago, has an avowed revenue of £16 per annum, which is the amount of the members' subscriptions. And yet, although the subscriptions only amount to £100, and although the club revenue cannot be increased by catering, as the club has no kitchen and no cellar of wine, and has no other resource excepting the bacarat table, the rental of the flat it occupies is £160.

REV. F.S. VANCE DIES ON TRAIN

OTTAWA, February 22. - When the porter of the eastbound Transcontinental train made his rounds this morning as the train neared Ottawa, he found a passenger fully dressed and dead in his berth. It proved to be Rev. F. S. Vance, a Presbyterian clergyman who had a ticket from Calgary to Halifax. Mr. Vance was recently a minister at New Aberdeen, C. B. He had gone west with the hope of improving his health, and as he was not recovering was returning to his friends. Coroner Baple found on examination and inquiry that deceased was consumptive and that an inquest was not necessary. The body will be forwarded to Halifax. [Rev. Mr. Vance's death will be heard of with deep regret throughout this province, where he was well-known. He attended Dalhousie, college and was a graduate of Pine Hill. He at one time had charge of the Presbyterian church at Lawrencetown.]

HUNGRY CORPSE ASKS FOR FOOD

BERLIN, February 22. A woman named Hecker had a narrow escape from being buried alive at Potsdam. She had apparently died, her doctor had given a certificate, and the undertaker was on the point of placing the body in its coffin when the woman sat up and demanded something to eat and drink. Relatives who were in the room fled in terror, but afterward returned and fed the awakened sleeper. This 16-hour ordeal had elapsed between the supposed death and revival. All signs of mourning were removed, but she died next day.

SHE DISSEMBLED HER AFFECTION

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 23. - Cho Yo of this city, the Japanese scientist, has undertaken to test American husbands an example of respect, devotion and deference to the American wife who has left him and who is suing for divorce. He declares he will give her his home on Madison avenue and all the property he possesses, even if she rejects his appeal for reconciliation. "She is young and I am old. It is better that she should have it and that I should become a wanderer over the face of the earth," said the aged scholar, who formerly taught science in the Imperial University at Tokio. "I love her even if she did knock my teeth out. A Japanese must always love and honor his wife. We know no divorce laws," said Cho Yo. For days he has waited for her return. Mrs. Cho Yo, however, says she will not go back to her husband. She was formerly Miss Greta Ants, a Chicago girl, who is noted pianist and teaches music at the Sherwood Conservatory.

INTEMPERANCE ALARMS FRANCE

PARIS, Feb. 21. - The rapidly increasing consumption of alcohol in France is attracting the serious attention of statesmen who, following the example of Belgian and Swiss Legislatures, are devoting earnest efforts to restrict the spread of the evil in both Chambers. Groups have been formed to secure the enforcement of existing enactments and the promotion of fresh legislation limiting the number of saloons, strengthening the hands of the authorities so as to improve their supervision and eventually forbid the sale of absinthe as being the most deleterious of alcoholic liquors. It is argued that the enormous augmentation in the percentage of insanity among the population of recent years is for the most part due to drink and that the habit is besides having a general deteriorating effect on the nation. The Senators taking part are headed by M. Charles Dupuy and M. Ribot and these two distinguished statesmen have obtained an assurance from M. Clemenceau that the Cabinet will strongly support the movement.
