Bowel Complaints of Children

During the hot summer and early fall months most children, and especially those teething, are subject to diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cholera infantum and other bowel complaints.

Every mother should keep a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in the home as a protection against sudden attacks of these troubles.

Don't experiment with new and untried remedies. Consider your child's health. Get "Dr. Fowler's" It has been successfully used by thousands of Canadian mothers during the past 94 years it has been on the market.

Don't accept a substitute.

Get the genuine "Dr. Fowler's."

Lighting in passenger trains will soon be up to the new standards agreed between the Ministries of War Transport and Home Security It will be an improvement on last winter but still not the equivalent of peacetime conditions.

Invasion and occupation of France will increase Britain's coal problems, Regional Fuel Controller Gordon MacDonald said in a Manchester warning to housewives that the utmost fuel economy must be practised this winter.

Coast women Fight Hitler In Shipyards

By Margaret Ecker
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Women working in shipyards have their moments of drama, when a blue flamed acetylene torch blows against gleaming copper, when a gull-white victory ship first licks the Pacific with its keel. As each girl straightens from her work to watch, there is a grin beneath the grease on her face. She is aware her job made the birth of a ship possible.

But taken day in and day out, shipbuilding is mostly sore backs, sweaty faces and dirty hands, the reward for jobs no more glamorous than scrubbing the kitchen floor.

Every reason on earth, from patriotism to penury, has brought more than 2,000 recruits to the overall clad army that marches with no little swagger into the clang and clatter of several coast shipyards every morning.

One large shipyard gives a pretty good picture of the knockout fight, Canadian women versus Shicklegruber's torpedoes.

Nearly 600 women between 18 and 69 punch in daily and walk past the observing eye of Grace McGaw, an ex-newspaper woman who plays a sort of super Dorothy Dix to the women workers. As they enter she makes sure the women's clothes comply with safety regulations bib type overalls, usually white, blue or khaki, blouse or sweaters, hair tucked under a peaked cap and shoes with medium or flat heels.

Miss McGaw looks after the women on the job, too, checks any complaints they have against working conditions, or any criticism the men have of their feminine helpers.

When Grace conducted a Canadian Press reporter into the thunderous, rushing world that is a shipyard, she pointed an object lesson in why she must be careful about what the workers wear. As we dodged among swinging steel girders in the plate shop, high above our heads we saw Helen Senft of Vancouver, riding a steel sheet that swung from a crane. If Helen had blowing hair or a skirt to catch in machinery it would have been her last ride.

In the plate shop girls run the machines that punch rivet holes in a ship's plates. Irene Smith of Kenora, Ont. was helping four men through the teeth of a machine affectionately known as Minnie.

In the machine shop, in a jumble of whirring belts, creaking cranes and splashing oil, Mrs. Dorothy Angelish, formerly of Toronto, was opreating a steel machine. She pulled a couple of levers, adjusted a wheel and tossed over her shoulder: "My phlange is warped, and I got to get it even." It sounded like double talk coming from the tiny, very pretty and very-greased up brunette.

Dorothy, part of a husband-wife team in the same plant, is a shipbuilder with a purpose. "My husband's family was wiped out by the Nazis," she said, over the grind of the machine. "All the men in my family are in this fight. By working I hope to bring them home sooner."

Mrs. Eleanor Morfitt of North Vancouver, foreman's clerk in the sheet metal shop, is building the future with oily hands. She has a husband overseas and two children at home, and the money she earns will give them some of the things they dream about in post-war days.

Mrs. Elsie Baldock of Sumatra, Dutch East Indies and Midlands, England, a former golf champion of the Indies, was snipping sheet metal with a vicious looking machine. Her husband, manager of a 5,000 acre rubber plantation was forced to stay behind by the Japanese. An R. C. A. F. son is missing after a raid on Hamburg.

"I have a good reason to build ships," said Mrs Baldock.

Women have proved they can do any of the lighter jobs in sheet metal and machine shops, and are particularly efficient as electrician's helpers, like Mrs. Evelyn Fraser of Saskatoon, Sask., who has a small child.

"Women with children make the best workers," said Miss. McGaw "They have more sense of responsibility and they get along better with the men in the yard. We don't employ them unless they have competent care for their children."

London's tough fish porters, it seems, must have strong tea. So "Harold of Billingsgate" who has been serving them for 20 years, will close his cafe. The Food Ministry has halved his tea allocation and Harold said that under the cut he wouldn't be able to "possibly make tea as strong as they (the porters) need it."

C. C. F. View Of Results

Douglas H. McFarlane, Provincial Secretary of the C. C. F., last night issued the following statement on the outcome of the Prince Edward Island General Election:

"A snap election, called mainly to give the C. C. F. no chance, naturally resulted in a small C. C. F. vote. Significantly, though, the largest vote for the C. C. F. came from districts where the people knew most about it. This shows that in Prince Edward Island, as in other parts of Canada, the C. C. F. is acceptable to the people when once they learn the real truth about it."

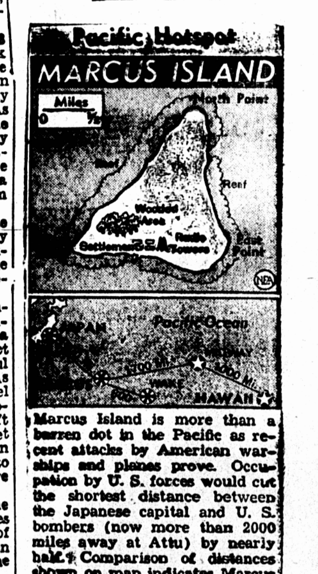
Pacific Hotspot



Marcus Island is more than a barren dot in the Pacific as recent attacks by American warships and planes prove. Occupation by U. S. forces would cut the shortest distance between the Japanese capital and U. S. bombers (now more than 2000 miles away at Attu) by nearly half. Comparison of distances shown on map indicates Marcus Island may soon be the scene of more action.

DEATHS

SICK HEADACHE?

Don't let that "all-in" feeling get you down. When fatigue upsets your stomach, makes your head miserable, take Alka-Seltzer. Its alkalizing qualities help to neutralize excess stomach acid. Its pain-relieving elements quickly help to ease the misery of upset stomach or sick headache.

Pleasant and Refreshing

Drop an Alka-Seltzer tablet or two in a glass of water. Then drink it and see how quickly it gives you relief. Not a laxative. For free sample write Miles Laboratories Limited, Dept 167 Dufferin St., Toronto. E3
