The Tin Hats

It is announced that the "Tin Hats", Canadian front-line army show, will tour Canada in the near future. Canadians at home have heard little of this group of soldiers who have become as famous overseas in this war as the notable "Dumbells" were in 1914-18.

The "Tin Hats" are composed of men who have served in combat and other units overseas. While the spectacular army, navy and air force shows which have been seen in Canada were designed for civilian and training camp consumption and had to be broken up into small groups when they were sent overseas to entertain the fighting troops, the "Tin Hats" were organized in the midst of the British blitz, and have rarely played without an accompaniment of shell-fire.

Indeed, while Irving Berlin's colossal U. S. Army extravaganza, "This Is The Army", was stilled in Italy with no suitable theatre outside Rome and Naples available for its appearance, commanders of entertainment-starved American fighting units "kidnapped" the Canadian show, which gave more than 40 performances in the battle areas and received personal commendations from General Mark Clark himself.

The "Tin Hats" temporarily wound up their Odyssey when the ship on which they were bound for the battlefront in Normandy was torpedoed in the English Channel less than a month after "D-Day" and several members of the troop were lost. Most of them men with five years' overseas service, they have returned to Canada for leave and reorganization and will make their tour of the Dominion before leaving again for overseas service next spring.

Books For The Forces

It is encouraging to note the progress already made in the I. O. D. E. book subscription campaign for the armed services. The I. O. D. E. is the official distributor of such supplies, and to date has provided more than a million volumes for Canadian men and women in camp and hospital, aboard ship, or wherever they may be. The value of this service hardly needs emphasizing. For those who are engaged in distant places, often lonely, anxious at times, seeking escape from their thoughts, an interesting book from home is a boon. Thanks to the energetic work of the I. O. D. E., libraries make the rounds of hospital wards, help to break the monotony of life in isolated spots, relieve the tension in a multitude of places, and bring the cheering thought that back home are people who care.

It is worth noting that all labor on the part of the I.O.D.E. is voluntary. In addition, the books are purchased at a heavy discount, which ensures greater value for each dollar spent than an individual could obtain. The cause is certainly one which deserves the support of all who care about the boys and girls on active service.

The Common Cold

Dr. Harold S. Diehl, dean of medical sciences and professor of preventive medicine and public health at the University of Minnesota, who made a long study of the common cold, says that a complete, adequate and balanced diet is necessary to keep healthy. But beyond this, no special diet has value for either prevention or cure of colds. "The same is true of vitamins, widely exploited as a cold preventive.

The experiments Dr. Diehl carried out at the university cracked wide open a lot of home remedies for colds. Nasal preparations were found to have little value, some do actual harm. Mouth washes, gargles and antiseptics were found to be useless, as were cathartics. The drinking of great quantities of liquids, supposedly to get rid of the toxic effects of a cold, was found to be ineffectual. Whisky, brandy and hot toddies, with which some people dearly love to treat colds, were rated as dubious remedies.

Dr. Diehl agrees that sulfa drugs and penicillin are valuable in treating strep infections and respiratory infections or complications growing out of a cold, but that neither one has been shown to have any value in the treatment of the common cold itself.

The university researches showed that general hygienic measures help to get rid of colds. Good advice is: Go to bed and stay there until you recover. You protect others from exposure, you increase your own resistance and you keep warm.

Second Thoughts

The second thoughts which have come to Americans after their first outburst of anger against events in Europe are well illustrated by an editorial in The New Republic.

"It is well," says this left-wing weekly, "that we should remember the limitations of our power when we dispute the proposed territorial settlements in Europe with the British and the Russians. Americans, who lived so long isolated among the splendid resources of their empty continent, have something of a spoiled-child complex in regard to having their own way. In fact, however, we cannot by force compel the British or the Russians to take our advice. Nations have only two courses of conduct open to them: they must either accept one another or go to war. If we went to war with Russia we should have to fight on her soil, and should almost certainly be defeated. As for war between the United States and Great Britain, it is doubtful whether any casus belli would persuade the people of either country to fight. Certainly they would not do so over the boundaries of Poland or Germany."

The United States, this paper says, should work for moral principles in the peace settlement, but "we must bear in mind that Utopia is not reached in a day, that the successful conclusion of the war against Germany and Japan is at present more important than anything else, and that some degree of temporary injustice just now is better than a universal and permanent degree of injustice through a fascist victory."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Prime Minister has decided not to take part in the North Grey election by addressing the electorate there, being satisfied his preliminary speech explanatory of his action, will do the trick.

As the House of Commons resumes, it is announced that an order-in-council has been passed giving members $20 a day and travelling expenses for the recent special session in addition to the $4,000 already paid.

The City Council is of one mind regarding the lending of the city truck and snow plough, accompanied with the admonition, "but don't do it again."

Tomorrow, Burns Concert, and all that that means to those having Scottish blood in their veins. This year, due to past successes, there will be a repeat performance on Friday.

According to recent announcement, there are to be more and more government offices in the city, and, of course, government staffs. This will help to offset the loss of Beach Grove depot and air port reductions.

Airmen are never idle, always finding something to do when not destroying enemy planes and plants. Two thousand R. A. F. men have been at work refitting more than 1,500 houses in bomb-blasted Southern England. They are part of R. A. F. Technical Training Command which has put in 2,186,800 man hours since it repaired its first house last July.

Adam Black, Scottish politician and publisher, died this date, 1874; founded the firm of A. & C. Black, Edinburgh, which in 1827 acquired the copyrights of Encyclopaedia Britannica and Scott's Waverley Novels, making a record circulation of both; was greatly interested in civic affairs, was twice Lord Provost, and M.P. for the city for 10 years from 1856 to 1865; his was the firm that first inaugurated the policy of "best seller", and likewise "log rolling" in boosting their publications.

"Maj. G. Bigauette, commanding the Provost Corps in M.D. 5, has resigned, because he refused to enforce conscription or to arrest deserters now that conscription is in force. As a matter of fact, (says the Letter-Review), in M.D. 4 to almost the same extent, and throughout the country in general, is little more than a theory. In M.D. 4 and M.D. 5, there is but little attempt made to find and arrest even the men who refuse to obey their draft call. As a matter of fact, National Selective Service has openly stated that a survey of the employers showed 7500 workers employed who were illegally employed as not having obeyed their draft call, or obtained a proper deferment. This situation is a public scandal. For some reason, the advocates of conscription talk as though all that was necessary was a conscription law. What is necessary is the enforcement of the laws which we now have, and there is but the least trace of this, in connection with military service."

A pony supplement to Parents Magazine, produced especially for fathers in uniform, is the latest of the list of publications being sent to servicemen overseas. On its cover is a "pin-up mother and baby." G. I. fathers, many of whom have never seen their infants, will learn from this supplement what children are like, what they need from their parents, what fun children are, how best to write them letters, and how to participate in the life of the family even while absent. In explaining the supplement, Mrs. Clara Savage Littledale, editor of Parents Magazine, writes: "Fathers need that special feeling of belonging, of being needed, of being loved which they get from wives and children and home. Furthermore, children need two parents. Mother can't do the job all alone. Children need a father who is interested in them, intelligent about them, and who loves them from the time they are born—not just when they get big enough to throw a baseball or talk. Mother will be helped immeasurably if she knows that father, even though he is away, is with her in this big task of bringing up the family—that he wants to keep in as close touch as possible. She wants to feel that when it comes to big things, father is, in spirit, right there beside her, helping." Among the features in the supplement are, Your Wife's a Good Sport, G.I. Babies Rate Best, How a Baby Learns, Tell the Kids to Stay in School, Tips on Writing Children, Strategic Problems on the Home Front, Don't Raise Your Child to be a Dictator, Teach Them Not to Hate, and G. I. Test for Fathers.

Notes By The Way

The village of Winchester is advertising for a man who will be its police force, fire chief, street superintendent, inspector, caretaker of the town hall and caretaker of firefighting equipment. Possibly an earnest fellow could make this a full-time job.—Ottawa Journal.

A wonder people are those Britainers, and we, as Americans, should be proud to call them, not cousins, as you so often read it or hear it, but brothers. Statistics many tell the whole story. Behind those figures lies a tale of heroic determination that the whole world can well marvel at.—Seattle Star.

A Winnipeg truck driver, winning $9,500 Calgary bungalow, declares he has bought enough "tickets" since he was young to have paid for the house. Many more could almost say the same if we made honest confession, but of course we haven't anything to show for our optimistic speculations.—Edmonton Journal.

Daniel Lambert is said to have been the heaviest man who ever lived. He tipped the scales 739 pounds. Health cannot be long maintained under excessive obesity. Exercise is difficult as the thoracic and abdominal organs are embarrassed in their functions, says Dr. J. A. Briant, reporting the case of Daniel Lambert, aged 40 years in 1809.—Montreal Gazette.

The Pacific states, which formerly housed 110,000 Japanese, have a population 50 per cent greater than the whole of Canada. In Canada the Japanese represented less than half of one per cent of the population. In British Columbia they represented nearly three per cent of the whole. Jap-town in Vancouver was relatively far more prominent in the Pacific states of America.—Vancouver Sun.

Americans returning from Russia tell some amazing stories about the Russians who appear to be an absolute violation of all American civilian and army rules and regulations. The pilot who landed in the pilot recently flew so low over a moving freight train that he brushed the cupola and the nose of an American army pilot would probably have been grounded for such a violation. In the case of the Russian case, after a trial, the engineer of the freight train was fined because the train was behind schedule. If the accident had been on time the accident could not have occurred, the court found.—Chicago Sun.

The plan to have minute quantities of fluorine added to the community's water supply, in the hope that this will help prevent dental decay and even prove an aid to hearing, now has the official support of the Ontario Department of Health. This is an expected but highly gratifying development. It is indicated that the Ontario Department of Health, Dr. W. L. Hutton and the Brantford board of health, the scheme which has been approved, is to demand examination and endorsement by the provincial authorities. As matters stand, the department has over 100 health centres and is satisfied itself that no health hazard is involved and has committed the technical committee which will supervise the test.—Brantford Expositor.

Once in a while the suggestion is made that the city of "Sault Ste. Marie" should change its name. But quite apart from the fact that the name has a long and proud history of 274 years of history, having first appeared on Joliet's map in 1674, it is difficult to think of a more appropriate name for the Sault Ste. Marie Star declares. For down through the years the life of the city has been a continuous one. The St. Mary's Rapids—the Sault Ste. Marie. Long before the white man came, the Indians were gathered in place or the Ojibway Indians, who came here to catch in the rapids the whitefish, the fine flavor of which has been famous ever since the first written records of this section were compiled. Sault Ste. Marie is not only the oldest city in the Province of Ontario, but it embodies the whole basis of our civic life.

Winston Churchill was born to his task. With a family tradition of centuries behind him, he was disciplined from the cradle to an understanding of the needs of the government, of economics, and all the cultural problems of international relations. Because of this he is today the intellectual colossus drawing upon his vast resources of knowledge, and even as a Fritz Kreisler pours forth from his violin the soul of music. His understudy is Anthony Eden, trained from the babyhood and practically destined to his career. Yet, except for the historic brilliance which has been his, he is not a man of unique. Since the Elizabethan age the British have been training their best sons for purposes of empire so that always there is a mighty reservoir of living knowledge to be drawn upon to meet any given situation.—Detroit Free Press.

Dutch opinion is by no means agreed on the wisdom of transferring to Holland tracts of German territory in compensation for the areas flooded during the war. The Allied-controlled Dutch radio has just broadcast an interesting article from Hei Parool which points out the practical difficulties in the way of Dutch colonization of areas from which German inhabitants had been expelled. It would need to be carried out with speed to prevent the Dutch from being too late; it would demand extremely careful selection of the colonizers; they would have to be men and women of the colonizing temperament and "not every Dutchman is a pioneer." "We must realize now," says the article, "that there can be no question of the transfer benefiting Dutch people as a whole for the time being. For it would demand a heavy expenditure of time and money from the state. The writer also doubts whether the normal effect in the colonies is a population boom. How far these views are shared one does not know, but there are other evidence that make the Dutch mind doubtful about annexation.—Manchester Guardian.

THE SHOEMAKER AND HIS LAST

Sir,—It is not often I buy and read the Patriot but upon each occasion I do so I find a large number of notes upon every conceivable subject written by the Patriot Fanjandrum. He has a favorite expression ("Yapper") which he applies with a large brush and flowing stroke to all who may differ with him upon any of his pet schemes, from the Brighton Bridge and the Car Ferry to the reformation of his close personal friend Hon. Dr. Cyrus MacMillan. In reading some of his writings I am led to believe that he is by any measurement our greatest "Yapper."

If you listen to him and appear sympathetic to his viewpoint you can hear him "yap" about "man Jones" who about a year ago was set up in his paper as a superior, but who since that time has fallen from grace. Can it be because Premier Jones rarely discusses his intended moves with the Patriot factotum? Then it is really laughable to hear "Yapper" explain the why, wherefore, and the how of the Dominion affairs upon the shoulders of a personal friend Dr. Cyrus, who is so busy with the weight of Dominion affairs upon his shoulders that he can't be seen by anyone, has no time to reply to your communications, never keeps an appointment, dodges you if he sees you first, and keeps hidden in the Patriot factotum?
