TIMOTHY SEED ESTIMATES

According to estimates reported by Dominion Seed Branch field officers there is less timothy seed in the Maritime Provinces than in 1932, with some 100,000 pounds in Prince Edward Island and 60,000 pounds in New Brunswick. In Quebec the total timothy seed is estimated at not more than 60 per cent that of last year, about 600,000 pounds of commercial timothy seed being expected from this year's production.

Manchukuo Codes For Journalists Provide Penalty

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 14.—(C.P.)—Journalism in the new State of Manchukuo, according to The Manchester Guardian, appears to be an arduous profession, judged by extracts from the new Press Law which has just been promulgated for that country. The code includes a great many regulations for the restraint of editors, proprietors, and everybody else connected with a newspaper, and the standard penalty for any infringement of them seems to be six months' hard labor, apparently without the option of a fine.

But the whole enterprise of newspaper production is evidently regarded as deeply tinged with criminal possibilities, and the basic idea is to make the proprietor or publisher declare full particulars about his staff of villains in advance. He must submit to the Ministry of Home Affairs "biographical details of himself and every single employee as well as all prospective contributors."

His paper must also display "printed in a prominent place" the names of every one who is responsible for printing it and also the names of the contributors, and it must not be sold on the streets before sample copies of each issue have been lodged with police headquarters, the nearest police station, and an officer who apparently corresponds to the public prosecutor.

Signing by The Colored People Fire Or Twig Blight

Why is it the colored singers put more expression in their singing and draw larger and more appreciative audiences than their white cousins? The writer thoroughly enjoyed the singing of Mr. and Mrs. Holder Sunday evening in the Prince Edward Theatre and was reminded of the Fisk Jubilee Singers who sang in Charlottetown some years ago. Perhaps someone remembers the date.

At that time their book "The Story of the Jubilee Singers," was sold and in it is an account well worth reading of their first concert tour and other following tours. At the World's Peace Jubilee held in Boston they sang to 40,000 people. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's stirring lyric, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," was on the programme to be sung to the air of "John Brown."

The Jubilee singers sang as if inspired. "He hath sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat." The great audience were carried away on a whirlwind of delight; the trained musicians in the orchestra bent forward in forgetfulness of their parts, and one old German was conspicuous, holding his violoncello above his head with one hand and whacking out upon it his applause with the bow held in the other.

"When the grand old chorus 'Glory, Glory, Hallelujah,' followed with a swelling volume of music from the great orchestra, the thunder of the bands, and the roar of the artillery, the scene was indescribable. Seventy thousand people were on their feet. Ladies waved their handkerchiefs, men threw their hats in the air and the Coliseum rang with cheers and shouts of 'The Jubilees! The Jubilees forever!'"

Musically speaking, it was the greatest triumph of their career. The Civil War which broke out in 1861, resulted in the slaves being freed. They were free but penniless and homeless. Four millions of bondmen—unprepared to look after themselves.

The Christian people of the North took up the task of giving them a Christian education. The world never saw such a sight before as the schools presented. Old men bent over the same spelling book with their grand-children. Their gratitude knew no limits and the attachment to their teachers was most devoted.

Fisk University was started in 1865, 1,000 attended the first year. As the students graduated they went out to teach and in a single year 10,000 children were enrolled in the schools taught by teachers sent out from Fisk—teachers who a little while before did not themselves know one letter from another. Their singing teacher, Mr. Geo. White, was delighted with the quickness with which his pupils learned and with their natural musical abilities.

At times they were without money to buy needed clothes. Yet in less than three years they returned bringing back with them nearly one hundred thousand dollars. Among the presents received in Boston was a $1,000 organ for the university from Smith Bros. This history isn't up-to-date. Perhaps someone can give us an account of their work and progress of late years. We feel sure should Mr. and Mrs. Holder return to Charlottetown and give a concert, say for the benefit of the unemployed, they would again fill the Prince Edward Theatre and help a good cause. L. M. H.

London, Sept. 28, 1933. Dear Lord Bessborough,

I venture to inform Your Excellency that I have had special pleasure in seeing the Boy Scouts which your Dominion sent to the world assemblage at Godollo.

You will no doubt have seen in the Press the reports of the doings of the 25,000 boys collected there from 42 different countries, but I should like to add for Your Excellency's information the fact that your Scouts won for themselves the admiration of others for their good discipline, smart appearance and scouting efficiency, which reflects the greatest credit on the boys and on the leadership of their Scouters.

Moreover I was especially glad to see that your boys individually formed friendships with those of other nations, and since this practice has become general in that large course of boys—the future men of their respective countries—I look on it as a most hopeful contribution towards securing ultimate mutual goodwill, which is the true foundation for peace in the world.

May I offer my congratulations on the very satisfactory development of Scouting in Canada, and my cordial thanks to Your Excellency for your very helpful attitude towards the Scout Movement.

Yours sincerely, BADEN-POWELL

IN MEMORIAM

MR. PAUL RICHARD COSTAIN

The death occurred at his home in Mimingash of Paul Richard Costain after a short illness of only two weeks, on Oct. 15, 1933 at the age of 36 years.

He was a life time resident of Mimingash and lived on the old homestead built by his father, the late Richard Costain, who was one of the first settlers of this province. He was a man of sterling worth and much beloved by all who knew him. His home was always open for the stranger who might pass within its doors.

Seven years previous to his death he fell and fractured his hip which caused him much suffering but he was never heard to complain. Indeed his patience and faith were wonderful to see.

Four of his absent children came from distant homes to be with him during his last illness. The large number gathered at the funeral showed the deep respect and esteem in which the deceased was regarded in the home and community. The service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. M. D. MacLeod. Three favorite hymns, "Rock of Ages," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "Home of My Soul" were sung, led by the choir of Mimingash United Church.

The floral tributes were beautiful. He leaves to mourn, one sister, Mrs. Helen Greene, Boston, Mass.; six sons, Tennyson, Chester and John, Mimingash; Brenton, Boston; Henry, Sismous, B. C., and Joseph, Kimberly, B. C., and three daughters, Etie, Mrs. Harley Costain, Boston; Ethel, Boston and Myrtle, Mrs. Roy Leard, Charlottetown.

The remains were borne to the grave by Messrs. Burton Rix, Raymond Costain, Wilbur MacInnis, Hedy Palmer, Stanford Greene and Reginald Greene all close relatives of the deceased, and laid to rest beside his wife who predeceased him ten years ago.

Juvenile Punishment Not Severe Enough

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—(C.P.)—Seven years experience as presiding officer at the Juvenile Court in St. Pancras Division, London, has led Mrs. Philip Bright, J. P., to believe that children who break laws are often treated in too lenient a fashion particularly when they repeat offences. "I admit," said Mrs. Bright when interviewed here, "that I am one of the few women judges who has ever ordered a boy to be birched. But the boy was a repeated offender and I must say that after he had been birched he never again appeared in the court before me."

No children appear in juvenile court in England until they are eight years of age and are considered juvenile cases until they reach 17. Mrs. Bright pointed out. The whole atmosphere of the juvenile courts was one of informality, she explained, the police officers testifying in civilian clothes instead of the awe-inspiring blue and brass. She felt this system had acted as a boomerang as it tended to do away with much that would impress the errant boy or girl with the majesty of the law which they had broken.

As long as the mother in a family was "all right," Mrs. Bright said, it was felt that the children of the family could easily be led back into paths of rectitude from which they might have strayed, regardless of the character of their father. But if the mother was "no good," the work of Juvenile Court officials was regarded as a colossal task, whether the father was a consistent offender or whether he was a law-abiding man.

She is a firm believer in the sanctity of marriage and would rather make it more difficult than more easy to get divorce, except when one partner in the marriage is a habitual criminal or is found to be incurably insane.

Crime conditions have improved very considerably in Britain Mrs. Bright said. "We are closing prisons in England—no building them," she added.

SKULL GIVES CLUE TO ARCTIC TRAGEDY

EDMONTON, Nov. 16.—Royal Canadian Mounted Police are seeking the clue to what may have been a murder in the Great Bear Lake area. They have on hand a skull—nothing more—to work with. Whether it is that of a young or old man cannot be determined as yet.

It yesterday became known that the police had taken the skull to a city dentist. There is considerable dental work in evidence, both in upper and lower jaws. It was thought that the dentist who did the work would recognize it and thus establish the identity of the man.

WORLD FRUIT EXPORTS All Countries Concentrating on Commercial Orchards

In view of Canada's increasing export trade in fruit, the summary of world-wide production and trade of all kinds of fruit, issued by the Empire Marketing Board, will prove of much interest to Canadian growers. With regard to apples the United States is the world's largest exporter. Canada holds second place, and Australia third. "Statistics of fruit production," says the report, "are too imperfect in too many countries for any measurement of changes in the world output of the various fruits to be possible. There can be little doubt, however, that production of nearly all fruits has tended to expand during the past decade, more noticeably perhaps in countries which grow fruit extensively for export than where it is grown solely for the domestic market. But in addition there is a tendency, generally prevalent, towards improved methods of production and marketing. Even in countries where aggregate production appears not to have increased, there has been a definite move towards the production of more commercially marketable fruit.

The commercial production of apples in the British Dominions has increased materially; in the United States and the United Kingdom the numbers of apple trees have declined (in the United States by as much as 100 million between 1910 and 1930), but the trees are now more concentrated in commercial orchards and the greater care and attention they receive has resulted in no diminution in the quality of fruit produced and a marked improvement in its average level of quality. In Europe generally much the same change has occurred, and in several countries farm orchards are steadily being displaced by commercial orchards, more carefully tended, and planted with varieties of apples more suited to modern market requirements. In the aggregate, however, the increase in the world production of apples is probably of no very great dimensions when compared with the increase that has taken place in most agricultural products.

Other fruits have shown more pronounced development. Plantings of citrus fruits in California and other States in the United States have been extensive and many of these are only now coming into bearing; in Spain, Palestine, South Africa and Australia, commercial production of oranges and grapefruit is fast increasing owing to post-war plantings; and in South America, particularly in Brazil, there have been since the war large areas planted with orange trees for supplying the world's markets. The production of banana-

Business Revival Well Under Way In Maritimes

MONCTON, N.B., Nov. 15.—From all parts of the Maritimes come reports of betterment in the outlook. In Nova Scotia the coal mines in Cape Breton recently finished one of the best week's coal shipments during the past six years; traffic over the Halifax harbor piers is practically treble that of last year; increased volume of sales of textiles and bright prospects for the lumber trade along with new buildings going up and some factories working overtime are among the high lights. New Brunswick reports increasing business activity all along the line with substantial movement of potatoes and factories working overtime. The outlook for the lumber industry in New Brunswick is particularly promising and a large number of men will be employed in the woods this season, stocks of lumber on hand being practically exhausted. Prince Edward Island is expecting heavy movements of potatoes throughout the winter with good prices and also good returns from fox pelts. Increased loadings on Canadian National lines in the Maritimes reflect this upward trend. These reports definitely mark the turn of the economic tide in the Maritime Provinces and from now on traffic officials of the Canadian National are of the opinion that steady progress will be maintained and the Maritime Provinces will register one of its greatest trade revivals.

NEWEST MIVANI PRINCESS GETS HER FORTUNE

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Princess Mdivani the former Barbara Huton, will come into possession of her share of the Woolworth 10-cent store fortune on her 21st birthday anniversary Tuesday. Her rights which have been held by trustees, are estimated variously at from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000. The princess and her husband, Prince Alexis Mdivani, arrived only last week from Paris, where they were married in June. Before the ceremony a marriage contract was signed under which the heiress retained control of her fortune. Friends of the Prince said at the time that he was getting a large settlement, but that in the event of his wife's death, his inheritance would be limited. anas in the British West Indies and in Central and South America has been rapid progress. Development in the production of grapes for table use is less evident; the chief use of grapes is for wine, and the comparative stability of the acreage under vines may be due to reduced consumption of wine."
