AUGUST REJOINS HIS ROYAL BRIDE, LUISE. BERLIN, Oct. 8.—Prince Ernest August of Cumberland returned here to-day and rejoined his wife, Princess Victoria Luise, who has been staying with the Empress, her mother, recovering from her recent indisposition.

The reunion of the Prince and Princess is regarded here as a definite sign that the recent trouble over the succession to the throne of the duchy of Brunswick was rather a controversy between the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, and his advisers, than between the Hohenzollern and the Guelph families.

JEWIS OBSERVE YOM KIPPUR, THE DAY OF ATONEMENT.

At sunset this evening the most significant day in the Jewish year will be ushered in with fasting and prayer. Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, is more generally observed than any other Jewish fast. Only those who have definitely and finally severed their relations with Judaism refrain from some observance of the day. While the orthodox Jew may not fast for twenty-four hours, nor attend the services in the synagogue, he at least abstains from food. There is a general closing of Jewish business places.

It is the Orthodox Jewish belief that with the setting of the sun tonight the Book of Life is closed, and with it the opportunity to atone by good deeds for the sins of the past year. The Jewish theory divides humanity into three classes. Between the sleep and the goats is a great middle class, the ordinary run of humanity, who are neither very good nor very bad, but just so-so.

The ledger of life contains the names of some who are certainly saved, and of others quite as assuredly damned. Between New Year and Yom Kippur every Jew not a confirmed goat or an unbeliever tries to get a few items entered on the credit side of his account.

Between sunset tonight and sunset tomorrow night the orthodox Jew must drop all mundane affairs and devote the period to fasting, penance, prayer and attendance at a synagogue. It is the custom of the Reform and Orthodox congregations to not require so much from their members.

In the orthodox places of worship Yom Kippur begins this evening with the chanting of the ancient Kol Nidre, a petition for forgiveness of broken vows. A service usually follows, and a service concludes with prayer and hymns. Most of the worshippers then go to their homes, but some remain in silent supplication throughout the night.

Early tomorrow morning the devout will again assemble in the synagogue. Among the congregations that cling to the ancient customs, the men and women are segregated, and the women are dressed in white, while the masculine worshippers alternate for several hours, after which comes the reading of the scrolls. At the end of the day the impressive rite of the Niella, symbolic of the sealing of the Book of Life, the closing of Jehovah's ledger, brings the impressive Yom Kippur service to a close.

After a final prayer, and a G'daul or prayer of the horn, the congregation files out and is at liberty to break its fast.

Yom Kippur, or Yom Ha-Kippurim, was instituted by Moses as a day of penitence, when Jews may atone for the sins of the whole people. In the Talmud it is called the Day of Great Fasting. The biblical authority for Yom Kippur is contained in the verses in Leviticus.

"Upon the tenth day of this seventh month shall be the Day of Atonement, it shall be the most solemn and shall be called holy; and you shall afflict your souls on that day, and shall offer a holocaust to the Lord; you shall do no servile work in the time of this day."

It is further provided that the fast shall extend "from evening unto evening," and that the sacrifices to be provided shall be two buck goats for the atonement of sin and a ram for the "holocaust to the Lord."

It is generally understood, however, that by agreement of counsel the case will be permitted to go over until December or later. Despite the fact that he has been confined in jail for more than a year Gibson is in excellent health. He receives weekly visits from his wife and from his attorneys. He expresses confidence in the belief that his innocence of the crime charged against him will be completely established at his next trial.

NEW THEATRE TO OPEN IN NEW YORK. NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The most recent theatre to be completed in New York is the Booth Theatre in Forty-first street, which will open for the first time tomorrow evening. Arnold Bennett's "The Great Adventure" has been selected for the opening attraction.

The new Booth Theatre, which was built for Winthrop Ames to house plays that he wishes to produce and that require an ample stage and auditorium than his Little Theatre affords, is relatively small, with only one balcony and a banquet that is compact rather than expansive. Within, it will be decorated simply and here and there it will be placed various relics and memorabilia of the old Booth Theatre, built and managed by Edwin Booth himself, that Mr. Ames inherited from his father. The inference indeed is that the father's interest in the old Booth Theatre prompted the son to choose the name for his own playhouse.

For the most part, Mr. Ames will use it for plays of his producing and he has planned it so that all sorts of interesting experiments are possible in it.
