CANADA AND UNITED STATES.

The trade relations between Canada and the United States are very one-sided. The United States, very properly, is looking out for the interests of its own industries and the prosperity of its own people.

ing; probably more buying and selling of principles, and all for the sake of saving the political skins of an amalgamated, but ill-matched, group of men who call themselves a Government.

Surely no such farce has ever been played in a country believing itself civilized.

All interest in the country or its welfare has long since disappeared. There has been nothing in sight for the past five years except the one undying determination of the King Government to cling to office.

Corruption unheard of in the whole history of Canada, smuggling, bootlegging, perjury, ballot-switching, criminality, have been openly and with the knowledge of the Government and of the people, been employed for the sole purpose of enabling this discredited group to live in Ottawa and draw their ministerial and sessional emoluments.

No legislation of any value to Canada has been even considered. The Senate has been practically idle, having done nothing except to veto two or three bills passed by the Commons, to serve their own political ends and with no regard for any interest of the country.

Whatever amendments may yet follow those which have already wasted the time of the House, only one thing is clear at this time of writing, that is, that by hook or by crook—chiefly crook—the Government will save its skin and the farce will be continued.

Surely the situation is humiliating. A large part of the estimates has yet to be passed, but this does not worry the King Government; they aimed at getting these rolled through and closing the session before the result of the Alberta elections which take place to-day would add further condemnation to an already condemned Government. The country counts for nothing, only to be allowed to live and waste more time counts. And patient Canada stands for it!

In almost any other country in the world, such conduct by a Government would result in revolution.

THE SILLY SEASON

As certain orators are said to become "intoxicated with the exuberance of their own verbosity," so, at this time of year, Nature becomes intoxicated with the luxuriance of her vegetation, her achievements in gorgeous colorings and the balmy, perfumed air, in which she revels.

This intoxication becomes infectious and this is why the months of June and July are called the silly season, why men and women throw down their work and betake themselves to the seaside, to the woods, to the open spaces. It is the natural holiday season, the time when Nature demands that men, women and children play and enjoy themselves.

We have a right to the silly season; it is a necessity of our being, a restorative tonic to our physical and mental well-being. It is well to "let go" at this time of year. The earth, the plants, the animals—all are doing it, and why not men and women? At best the silly season will be short; let us make the most of it while it lasts.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The road from Borden to Charlottetown and Summerside must be kept free from ruts if we are to have summer visitors. They are not free now.

One of the great benefits from last week's rain, besides quenching the thirst of the plants, was that readers there will—if the farce is permitted to further disgust a too-useful patient people—be more amended, more twisting and wriggled-good shape.

Notes by the Way

After the general election of October last Premier King promised to call Parliament together in December, but because of the exigencies of the shattered Government, one-half of whose members had been defeated, Parliament did not meet until January 7. That date is now nearly six months past. There was an adjournment to permit the Government to partially reconstruct its organization.

And how has Parliament been occupied during all these months? Mainly with the struggles of the Government to maintain its hold on life from the beginning to the end. Hair's breath escapes from deputation "is the rule."

They are frequently above the average in intelligence, but do not concentrate as well as normal children.

Now although some physicians feel that little can be done for this type of youngster, and that he will continue throughout life under the above handicaps, nevertheless you and I have often seen this "gangling" type of boy or girl grow into rugged specimens of health and strength, under the proper treatment.

This specialist suggests plenty of outdoor exercise, and you can see at once that if the youngster gets into the outdoor games of childhood, runs and plays every day, that the actual shape of the chest will be changed. It will be enlarged from back to front, side to side, and the ribs upward and outward, and the diaphragm, as it works, will deepen the chest.

And the heart? Why this running and playing will strengthen the heart, and when it pumps the blood, will do so with much more force, that all parts of the body including hands and feet, will get an increased supply of pure blood.

These youngsters, notwithstanding their thinness, have a protruding abdomen due to the weakness of the abdominal walls. This outdoor play which includes bending of the body, will help to tighten up the abdominal muscles, and so the stomach, intestines and other organs, will be up in their proper positions in the abdomen. This sagging interferes with digestion and causes constipation.

In very weak children an abdominal belt is sometimes prescribed. No medicine is suggested by this specialist.

He puts the entire matter up to the parents to see that the youngster gets good nourishing food, proper sleep, and above all plenty of outdoor exercise.

Improvements in the Public Gardens

Citizens will observe with a general feeling of satisfaction the improvements which are now being made on the Public Gardens, especially the new grass plot in front of the Soldiers' Monument.

At this time of the year when nature displays her beauties to the most advantage, we can easily appreciate any changes which might better the appearance of our city. This work is now being directed by Mr. Arthur Newbery, assisted by Mr. Barney McKenna for many years keeper of the gardens. Very few citizens realize to what extent we are indebted to Mr. Newbery for the fine appearance of the Gardens today.

Forty-two years ago, about the time that Charlottetown was incorporated as a city, Queen Square and the land adjacent to the Public Buildings were similar in appearance to the Market Square today. Mr. Newbery at that time undertook the work of planting trees and flower-gardens. Practically all the trees which are now adorning the gardens were planted by Mr. Newbery at that time.

It seems incredible to us at present that Mr. Newbery encountered opposition in his constructive project but at that time, no less a citizen than Sir Louis Davies stated at a gathering at West Kent school that when flowers grew on Queen Square the millennium would be at hand. Sir Louis later retracted this statement and always assisted Mr. Newbery in every possible manner.

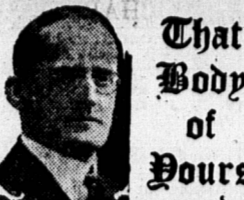

During the past year this work related to some extent on account of Mr. Newbery's ill-health, but this year with Mr. Newbery with lots of time at his disposal no improvements may be anticipated.

When interviewed by the Guardian yesterday, Mr. Newbery stated that he proposed substituting iron posts for the wooden ones which are now old and rotten. It is to be hoped that the City Council will stand behind Mr. Newbery in this project to beautify our city.

Today the Public Gardens stand in the heart of the city bedecked with green trees and beautifully arranged flower beds. We owe all this to the initiative and perseverance of Mr. Newbery who undertook and maintained year by year this work of preservation and improvement.

It is to be hoped that citizens of Charlottetown will appreciate the fruits of Mr. Newbery's labour and not allow the Public Gardens to fall into decay.

That Body of Ours

THE 'WEAK CHILD'

A prominent children's specialist draws for us the picture of the "naturally weak" child physically. He is thin, above the average in height, the chest narrow and long, the ribs far apart, the collar bones prominent, and the shoulder blades stick out on the back like "wings."

The muscular development is poor, face thin, skull long, and the lower jaw small and delicate. The palate is narrow and high, and the skin pale. The heart is small, face sometimes pale, sometimes flushed, hands and feet cold, and dizziness often present.

The appetite is poor, and constipation "is the rule."

They are frequently above the average in intelligence, but do not concentrate as well as normal children.

St. John's Anglican Church. Crapaud was the scene of an interesting event on Tuesday evening the 22nd instant when before a large congregation the Most Rev. Clara L. Worrell, Archbishop of Nova Scotia inducted the Rev. Charles C. Rand into the Rectorship of the Parish of Crapaud. His Grace (the Archbishop) was assisted by the following clergymen:—Venerable Archdeacon White, Dr. A. H. Moore, President of King's College, Rev. E. M. Malone and Mr. A. E. Grant Crofton. The Church-Wardens, Messrs. Crisp Moore and H. R. Proffitt presented their rector-elect to His Grace who formally inducted him and presented him with the keys of the church. His Grace addressed the congregation congratulating them and their new Rector on the prospects of a bright future for the parish of Crapaud under the leadership of Mr. Rand who as a lay reader had ministered so effectively among them.

A pleasing feature of the service was a solo by the Rev. E. M. Malone who sang "Abide With Me" the accompaniment being beautifully played by Miss Tuman. Dr. Moore the preacher for the occasion introduced his sermon by expressing warm praise of the new Rector with whom he had been associated for some years in parish work in Quebec. Dr. Moore made an able and effective appeal for an able and effective appeal for Kings College stressing the advantages to the parishes of the Diocese in having a larger and more fully equipped Kings University in the Diocese.

After the service Mr. and Mrs. Rand threw open the Rectory to the visiting clergy and the congregation a large number of whom gathered for a social evening. Mr. Rand addressed the guests on the happy relations which had existed between himself and his congregation since his arrival among them as a lay-reader five years ago and paid a grateful tribute to the assistance he had received from his parishioners and from others mentioning particularly Archdeacon White. The Rev. Mr. Malone, Mr. George D. DeBlois and Major T. E. McNutt.

An address was then read and presented to His Grace the Archbishop by Miss Lizzie McKinnon, bishop of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church. This was followed by an address and presentation of a purse to Archdeacon White by the Church-Wardens and Mr. Robert McLeod, Vestry Clerk on behalf of the congregation in appreciation of the services rendered to the parish by the Archdeacon in assisting Mr. Rand before the latter was a fully ordained clergyman. After the Archbishop and the Archdeacon had replied to the addresses and Dr. Moore had spoken the evening was pleasantly spent in social intercourse and music and the dispensing of refreshments by the hostess.

During the evening Dr. Moore organized the men into committees for the King's campaign which is receiving the hearty endorsement of the parish of Crapaud.
