However, he continued, "I feel that this is a friendly meeting." I regret very much my stay here is to be so short, but I felt that it would be a great mistake on my part to come to this continent without paying Canada a visit first and foremost. I look upon this, he said, as a return visit of an old Boer for the visit of many Canadians to my country many years ago. It is heaping coals of fire. I am a missionary of the Empire, he said, despite my past. We have troubles. No empire has been more thoroughly tested in past decades than the British Empire. The test continues. This is not a fair weather empire of ours. But the gallant old Empire is putting up a heroic fight for a place in the world. We will pull through. We have always done so and we will do so again. In 1914 when things seemed blackest the people decided to change the government for a national one, one which would concentrate all the forces of the empire. I am not sure that the same thing will not have to be done again. We have troubles elsewhere, too. India presents an appalling problem, but there is no reason to despair. We will apply patience to India's impatience, wisdom to its unwisdom and in the end we shall pull through. India is one of the jewels of the British Empire.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3.—Ending a whirlwind visit to Canada, General Right Hon. Jan Christian Smuts, former Prime Minister of South Africa and noted Boer leader, left here for New York tonight. In two days General Smuts had a University degree conferred on him by McGill University, addressed an audience in Montreal, rushed back to Ottawa for the official greeting of the Dominion of Canada where he made his second address, addressed two separate audiences in Toronto and attended a tea at Government House here before leaving.

This afternoon in Convocation Hall, University of Toronto, he completed a ceremony commenced years ago as a mark of honor and respect to the famous statesman. The degree conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws, in absentia. Today at the invitation of Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University, he inscribed his name upon a page of the famous golden book and the ceremony of conferring his degree was completed.

day morning he was aroused by the City Police, whereupon he immediately proceeded to the premises. On arrival he saw that entrance had been effected by the rear door. The inner door had been forced off the hinges by means of a Stilson wrench belonging to the Company. Red paint on the wrench corresponded with the paint on the door. On making examination of premises he found that four dressed geese and five dressed chickens were missing from a barrel in the warehouse. The intruders had also entered the office and had attempted to force the inner drawers of an old safe. He accompanied the police to the Labour Union Hall on the opposite side of the street. He there saw four sacks with the markings of the Earle Fisheries Co., on the sacks. The poultry was produced as exhibits and examined by Mr. Earle, who stated that they answered the description of the birds in every respect.

There were also two small cans of quahogs, and four or five empty cans of the same description. These the witness positively identified as sample cans of the company, none of which were retained. He identified also the sacks and stated that several of these as well as the cans had been stolen from the warehouse. He valued stolen property at $14.

Police Officer Dominic Doyle (sworn) was next questioned by the prosecution. On being asked why he went to the Union Hall Officer Doyle stated that he considered it a probable place for stolen goods to be hidden. The witness stated that he entered the building through a window and turned on the light. He had found the building in darkness. James Roberts was sitting on the floor behind a bench. There was nobody else down stairs. There are three floors in the building. The door of the entrance to the second floor at the head of the stairs was padlocked. Officer Doyle pushed the door in and entered the lodge room. Nobody was there. He then sent Officer Biggar after Sergeant Wm. McInnis. They came with a ladder to get to the third floor. There is a hatchway at the head of the stairs outside the lodge rooms. Access was gained by means of this hatchway. Officer Doyle stated that he found Maurice Gormley, Andrew McLeod, and Earl Lund. He heard no noise as he went up. The men were on the west side of the room, the furthest side, standing against the wall. Officer Biggar came up and took the three men down, the witness descending last. It was then about 4 a. m. The officer stated that he returned to the hall at 6 a. m. and found a small can (produced) on which he later scratched his initials. Officer Biggar and the witness took the three men to the station leaving Sergeant McInnis in charge of James Roberts and the goods. Officer Doyle stated that before going up stairs he had looked around and found four geese and five chickens. (These articles, the witness stated, looked like the ones produced in court.) There were some cans on the first floor, several empty, and one full (described cans). Two or three were found on the bench beside the stove and two or three in the stove. There was a fire on at the time. Officer Biggar had conversation with Roberts whom he asked if he owned the goods. The latter replied in the negative, stating that the three men in the attic owned the goods. After taking the three prisoners to the station the officers went to the Earle Fisheries acting on the clue presented by name on the bags. There were footprints up to Earle's back door, about four rows of tracks which led across the street to the back door of the Union Hall. About one-eighth of an inch of snow had fallen between 1 a. m. and 3 a. m. The hook of the outside door of the Earle Fisheries was pulled off, and the hinges were pulled off the inside door which was partly open. There was no mark on the door. Things were scattered around generally in Mr. Earle's office. Officer Biggar telephoned for Mr. Earle who went to the Union Hall with him Sergeant McInnis was in the hall when the prisoners were removed from the attic Mr. Campbell asked if they had any goods in their possession. The witness answered that they had nothing in their pockets. The hall, he stated, is supposed to be closed at 10 p. m., but as a rule it was not closed at all.

work performed in the Sterling laboratory at Yale and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York. The committee headed by Dr. White maps out the research work to be done, divides the work among the institutions in question and collates the results.

Too much faith has been placed in our falling death rate from tuberculosis as evidence that this disease is under control. Dr. White asserted, saying the recent predictions of some statisticians may do great harm in turning the public mind from the task that still confronts the nation. There are still probably over 100,000 deaths annually from tuberculosis in the United States, he said.

"Statistical figures of death rates give but one small phase of the picture," he declared. The rise of incidence of tuberculosis in young girls the studies of incidence in school children, such as those by the careful work of the Phipps Institute in Philadelphia, which show that we are still about where we were 25 years ago, the rise in death rate in same cities in spite of a great equipment exerting every effort based on our present knowledge, the appalling death rates among negroes and Indians, all point to a task not yet begun."

Abbies Defeat Queens 3-2

Locals Spring Big Surprise By Taking Tilt From University Players Last Night.

The Abgewelts upset the dope in hockey circles last night when they defeated the touring Queens' University team by a score of 3-2 on a soft and slushy ice surface.

The game, considering the condition of the ice due to the mild weather, had the large number of fans in attendance on their feet throughout as the play seersawed from end to end, with thrills and spills aplenty.

The Scores Period The first score came after about five minutes of play, when Lawlor, stellar centre man of the locals stickhandled his way through the entire Queens team to put the Abbies one up. Queens trying harder than ever kept bombarding McEwen, local net custodian at long range, without avail until Reist scooped up a loose puck to knot the count.

This canto hadn't gone very far when "Duck" Acorn, speedy defence man of the Abbies, shoots from outside the visiting defence to again put the locals in the lead. After about five minutes more, Bellringer, playing on the right lane for the visitors, secured the puck at the Abbies' blue line to blaze one past McEwen who hadn't a chance.

This period was only two minutes old when Acorn again puts his team in the lead on long, low shot from centre ice. Queens trifling harder than ever for the balance of the period to even the count, but without avail, League match.
