CAST OF 48 STAR PERSONALITIES SUPPORTS UNKNOWN PLAYERS

Hollywood's top Cinderella story for the year involves two youngsters who were extras working out of Central Casting Bureau last year but today are playing leads in an important picture and getting their first real break toward stardom.

But what is more unusual in this Cinderella yarn is that the ex-extras have as supporting and fit players in their cast forty-eight top ranking stars of screen, stage and radio.

The kids who got this unusual break are Cheryl Walker, who was stand-in at different times for Claudette Colbert, Veronica Lake and Madeleine Carroll, and William Terry, who not so long ago filled such jobs as truck driver and messenger to keep from starving, while at the same time trying to convince Broadway and Hollywood producers that he could act.

The picture in which they are getting this one break in a million is Sol Lesser's outstanding production, "Stage Door Canteen," which is slated to make its local appearance at the Prince Edward Theatre today thru United Artists' release.

In the picture are such renowned luminaries as Katharine Cornell, who makes her screen debut after years of refusing to talk Hollywood contract to movie companie s who continuously besieged her with offers), Katharine Hepburn, Tallulah Bankhead, Edgar Bergen, Ray Bolger, Ina Claire, Gracie Fields, Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, Helen Hayes, George Jessel, Gypsy Rose Lee, Elsa Maxwell, Ethel Merman, Paul Muni, Merle Oberon, George Raft, Lanny Ross, Martha Scott, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Ethel Waters and Ed Wynn. They appear in "Stage Door Canteen," playing themselves as entertainers, junior and senior hostesses, food servers, waitresses, busboys, hat-checkers and dishwashers.

Hence two youngsters from the extra list are getting the chance in a lifetime that all movie aspirants who come to Hollywood look for and, on top of that, they can point to their supporting cast as the greatest star-aggregation ever assembled for one picture.

LAUGH HIT AT CAPITOL

The madcap experiences of six young stage aspirants, who scheme by hook or crook to have their talent recognized by stage producer Arthur Kenny, make up the story of "Young and Willing," which is due for its premiere at the Capitol Theatre today thru United Artists release.

Involved in these hilarious proceedings are three young girls played by Susan Hayward, Martha O'Driscoll and Barbara Britton and three boys, William Holden, Eddie Bracken and Jim Brown, who share a Greenwich Village apartment, live on hamburgers and weak coffee in the hope of making good on Broadway. When the kids learn Benchley lives in the apartment below, Susan Hayward is elected to exert her charm on him but fails.

To complicate matters Muriel Foster (Florence MacMichael) pays a visit to the stage hopefuls and reports back to Martha O'Driscoll's father (Jay Fassett) that their living arrangement is indecent. Since father foots the bills, he is concerned and hurries to New York to take his daughter back to Illinois.

When Benchley finally discovers that the kids are rehearsing a play, which he wrote and then lost, he wants it. William Holden tells Benchley that they don't have the manuscript but know the play letter-perfect. Benchley agrees to record a special performance that the young thespians give.

Just as Martha is being taken West Benchley reveals the news that "Mostly Murder," is a sensational burlesque and that he is going to produce it immediately with all the kids in the cast. This is the chance they've been waiting for and provides also an opportunity for Martha and Bill Holden to get together.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our darling son and brother Neil Marks, who died January 3, 1943.

Time speeds on one year has passed.
Since death its gloom its shadow cast.
Within our family where all seemed bright,
And took from it a shining light.
Down here we mourn but not in vain
In heaven we'll meet Neil again.

Sadly Missed by Father, Sisters and Brother.

Montague-Born Nun Home From Jap Occupied China

Kweilin, China:— Sister Mary de Ricci, formerly of Montague and recently released from internment in Hong Kong, is one of four Maryknoll Sisters who have arrived here from occupied China. They are now aiding in the expansion of urgently needed mission work in this city, according to Sister Rose Victor, Superior, who reports:

"During the summer our house was renovated so that now each Hong Kong Sister has her own classroom. Sister de Ricci's and Sister Dorothy's classrooms are to the side of the convent and look out over the new ball court which is being prepared now for the girls as a means of recreation. Our kitchen has been done over too, and we are still using a brick stove and kerosene tins for ovens. We all manage to live upstairs, and while we are snug, everything and everybody fit in nicely.

"Our mission work is going on remarkably well, notwithstanding war conditions. We have two doctrine classes in session at the present time, one at the North and the other at the South gate. The doctor (Sister Antonia Maria) keeps busy twelve hours of the day with her medical work. Her dispensary, formerly one tiny room, has been moved and enlarged to include a waiting room, medical room and examining room. Sister is doing very much good for the people, especially the poor, here in Kweilin. Sister de Ricci and two of the other Sisters have evening classes in English, so our day does not finish until 7:30 p. m. when all classes come to a close

"Our city work is developing more and more into private instructions, or classes for small groups in the evening. We have also been taking a parish census according to the system used so successfully in Maryknoll's Kaying mission last year.

"We all feel keenly the lack of reading material; none whatever is coming in. In fact we have no more supplies of any foreign goods, but missioner's ingenuity comes to the aid of every Sister as she takes her turn in the kitchen.

"We see many American friends in the city these days, and thanks to their presence here, our trips to the hill shelters are much less frequent."

Sister de Ricci is a former resident of St. Mary's Parish, Montague. She attended elementary school in New Perth and graduated from Prince of Wales College and Provincial Normal School, Charlottetown. Later she attended St. Francis Xavier College in Antigonish. She is the sister of Rev. Robert Cain, C. S. S. R., of St. Patrick's Church, Toronto and of Dr. E. F. Cain and Miss Catherine Cain of Anaheim, California, U. S. A Sister de Ricci was one of five Maryknoll Sisters who nursed wounded Canadian soldiers at Queen Mary Hospital, Hong Kong when the Colony was under Japanese bombardment at the outbreak of the war.

Mess Room Chatter

WITH THE R. C. A. F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 2 — (CP) — First Canadian wireless operator-air gunner to reach the rank of squadron leader, 27-year-old Bob Miller supervises an air crew school that has trained more crews for operational duties and flown more hours than any similar unit in Britain.

As chief ground instructor, the kid from Marshall, Sask., presides over the oldest and largest heavy conversion unit in the Canadian group where crews fresh from O.T.U. learn to handle Britain's biggest four- engined bombers.

Enlisting in 1940, Bob came overseas to join the first Canadian bomber squadron formed in Britain. Following a tour of operations in Whitleys, he became a sergeant instructor at the Halifax conversion unit he now commands. Commissioning followed and a year ago he jumped to the rank of flight lieutenant.

In peacetime, Bob was a telephone and telegraph construction engineer in Saskatchewan.

Sqdn. Ldr. D. H. Kennedy, 28-year-old veteran from Fredericton, N. B., has taken over command of a flight with a heavy bomber squadron of the Canadian Group.

Just completed one tour of operations and starting on a second, Kenney told newsmen his two toughest trips were to Berlin. That was before Bomber Command set out on this winter's offensive to "Hamburg" the Nazi capital.

Born and raised at Milverton, Ont., Kerney was an instructor at Sky Habor Airport, Goderich, Ont., before the war. After joining the air force, he flew a bomber across the Atlantic in April of 1942 and was posted to the Moose Squadron where he flew with his present commanding officer, Wing Cmdr. J. D. Pattison, D.F.C., Toronto.

Much has been said of the famed Pathfinders, those daring crews who fly ahead to ring target areas with flares for the guidance of the main bomber force. Little mention has been made of the Pathfinders ground crews on whom the lime light of glory seldom falls.

It's a distinction to be a member of a Pathfinder squadron and one, led by Group Capt. Johnny Fauquier, D.S.O., D.F.C., Ottawa, not only boasts the cream of air crews but some ground men who joined the unit shortly after it was formed as a straight bomber squadron.

One of them is Flt. Sgt. Tom Cranston of Midland, Ont., Who came to the unit three years ago and was the first Canadian ground man to serve with a bomber squadron in Britain. Cranston, 22, left McMaster University at Hamilton, to join the R.C.A.F.

Following him were Colin Sam and Glen Merrifield of Wolseley, Sask., while other "old originals" are Sgt. Norman Lawson of (1067 Downing St.) Winnipeg, and Sgt. Roy Hurst of (2 Thornton Ave.) London, Ont.

The Experts Say

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

OTTAWA, Jan. 2—(CP)—GOOD RESOLUTIONS are more easily made than kept and for this reason perhaps many of us are chary of committing ourselves to New Year's resolutions. However, here are some suggested by Nutritions Services, the Agriculture Department Consumer Section and the Price Board that should appeal to every woman who has the health and well-being of her family at heart.

"I resolve that during 1944 I will learn more about food so that, even if some accustomed foods are not always available, I will be able to give my family every day the foods they need for health protection."

"I RESOLVE that no food shall be wasted in my household in 1944- that meals will be cooked 'just right' and every scrap of them eaten so that nothing will be lost in the kitchen or at the table."

"I RESOLVE that all surplus fats will be salvaged and put to use in cooking at home or by my salvage committee."

"I RESOLVE that I will shop with food values in mind, keeping a watchful eye for the "extra food values, the vitamins A and B, calcium and iron so often found in the lower priced foods."

JAM JAMS: Here's recipe from the Consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture testing kitchen which you'll want to clip and keep handy for holiday entertaining. You'll like the Jam-Jams because the recipe makes about six dozen delicious cookies without undue strain on rationed ingredients.

1-2 cup mild flavored fat; 3-4 cup [illegible]; 3-4 cups pastry flour or 1 cups all-purpose flour 1-4 teaspoon baking soda; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1-2 teaspoon salt; 1-2 cup sour milk; 1-2 cup thick jam.

METHOD: Cream the fat with the sugar thoroughly. Beat the egg and add, beating well. Mix and sift the flour with the baking soda, baking powder and salt. Add to the fat, sugar and egg mixture, alternately with the milk. Chill dough through. Roll out 1-8 inch thick and cut in two inch rounds using a dough nut cutter for half the rounds. Put together in pairs with the jam between and allowing through the hole in top of round. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit for about 20 minutes.

DELICIOUS LEFTOVERS can be made next to make the most of the flavor of the foods. Two meats can be used in one dish with excellent results: beef, lamb, chicken, turkey or veal mix well with ham, bacon or goose. Use least possible reheating in advance and as little water as possible so the meat doesn't lose its flavor.

CONTAINER VALUE often ups the price of foods. For instance, you generally pay more for foods in containers with fresh openings and gadgets than for those in plain cartons and tins cost does not affect the quality of the food.

Here are three of the survivors of one of the grimmest air-sea battles yet recorded in the North Atlantic. They were members of a big R.C.A.F. Sunderland flying boat crew which fought matters out with two U-boats. They sank one, then were shot down by the other's anti-aircraft fire, and later picked up by a British frigate. Left to right, they are Sgt. J. M. Rutherford and Flight Sgt. Douglas Mesey, both R.A.F. men, and Flying Officer Art Bellis, D.F.C., of 400 21st Ave., Prince Albert, Sask. During the action Flight Lieut. Paul T. Sargent of Toronto, captain of the aircraft, and Flying Officer Chester E. Steeves of Elgin, N.B., lost their lives. Mortally wounded, Steeves kept plotting the attack and gave the skipper his position and course. Sargent, after bringing the crippled flying boat down beside the frigate, sank with his aircraft. Warrant Officer W. F. Beals, D.F.C., of Vernon, B.C., the wireless operator, was another survivor.
