Would-be Lady Bullfighter Still Enthused

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 — (AP) — New York's would-be lady bullfighter today returned from Spain, still enthusiastic in spite of rude contact in the bull ring.

Instead of a pair of ears — bullfighting's victory symbol — young Mrs. Edith Laurie-Entin brought home a couple of sore spots where a young bull scored a point for Spain.

"But that's all right," she said. "You've got to learn sometime. I was so busy watching my footwork I forgot to look at the bull."

He was only a small practice bull with two-to three-inch horns, but he caught the 21-year-old American in the flank and sent her sprawling.

She took her lessons on the bull farm of matador Isidro Marin, who admired her spirit but said she had a lot to learn before she goes after a bull with a sword.

POACHING, ULCERS STARTED BUSINESS

COOKSVILLE, Ont., Aug. 9 — (CP) — James (Scotty) Haig's early days of poaching and stomach ulcers have resulted in plenty of happiness. They started him in the dog and goat business.

The 47-year-old Scotsman, born in Fyfeshire, said he started his poaching when he started giving his dogs extra exercise during racing in Scotland. He usually turned them loose on the estates — and kept any plump hares the dogs managed to run down.

Since moving to Canada 22 years ago, Scotty has set himself up a nice little ranch here — minus the poaching. He boards and trains dogs. He developed ulcers recently and immediately bought some goats for the goat's milk.

How does he feel about the venture? He says he never found a woman who could supplant dogs in his affections.

Nurse Fights Vermin As Well As Disease

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(CP)—Mrs. Helen Traiman, public health nurse for the city health department, has a question for Emily Post:

"Does one or does one not flick a trespassing cockroach off one's arm in the presence of the hostess?"

Mrs. Traiman's welfare visits carry her to sections of the city where insects almost seem to have mankind on the run. But after all, she says, she is supposed to establish good relations with the people she visits.

Generally she ignores the first venturesome cockroach but bridles at the second.

She tries to avoid any rendezvous with the revolting insects by choosing a hard, straight-back chair. Those sofas or overstuffed chairs are a haven for roaches and lice, she says.

Mrs. Traiman visits about 20 homes each week. Most of her work can be only in an advisory capacity.

If a member of the family has tuberculosis, for instance, she encourages him to enter a clinic or hospital for treatment. Then she follows up on all medical cases when they are discharged. If a parent fails to bring a sick child for a scheduled clinic appointment, she checks to find out why.

Nurse Traiman carries a flashlight with her to brighten dark corners of the tenements she prowls. Some of them were condemned years ago and are crawling with rats.

On one visit she found the father with a bandaged finger: he had gone to sleep with his arm hanging down from the bed and a huge rat had bitten off the top of his finger.

Mothers who fear rats will harm their infants create another problem, she says. They keep their babies in bed with them—leading to danger of suffocation.

Another social evil to be combatted is venereal disease. This is made difficult by the fact that Mrs. Traiman often finds several people, even two or three different families, sharing a couple of rooms.

LAST WOODEN SHIP FIGHTS WRECKERS

LONDON, Aug. 11—(CP)—More than a year ago a Kentish firm bought the 100-year-old vessel Worcester, one of the last of Britain's wooden ships, for breaking up.

The firm has had nothing but bad luck since that day.

"We'll be glad to see the end of her," the firm' manager said. "She has nearly run us into debt."

The Worcester lies on the Thames bed off Grays, Essex. At high tide only a few inches of her decks are above water.

"It will cost at least £50,000 ($200,000) to break her up," the manager said. "She's never been in a battle in her life, but she's putting up a fight now.

"Before we could start work on her she sank without warning. We thought it would take us 18 months to break her up. Now it may take three years. No more wooden ships for us. The cost of breaking her up will certainly exceed what it cost to build her."

TOOTH MAKES IT SACRED

The most sacred temple of the world's Bhuddhists is the Dalada Malagawa in Ceylon, because a tooth of Bhuddha has been enshrined in it.

POACHING WAS DANGEROUS

To catch poachers and trespassers, a device called a mantrap was at one time used on the farms and estates of England.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

S Y J A Y T P C J Q Q J T T P X Y U K T C E Y

M J H Y S J X — M Y T Y R J

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: SUCCESS ENCOURAGES THESE; [illegible] CAUSE THEY BELIEVE THEY CAN—VIRGIL.
