summer millinery of 1937 stand out from recent summers, because women will wear something besides a pancake crown.

Height in crowns will appear toward the back in some cases; in others, it will be a lift of half an inch or so, regular or irregular.

HEAVY-SMELLING HAIR. The woman who does her own cooking must be very careful that her hair is not heavy from cooking odors...

A BAD FALL. If you have had a nasty fall and your arm or leg is swollen, wrap it in towels wrung out of hot water...

LOVELY HANDS SOFT AND VELVETY. Hands that pin a corsage on a new spring suit ought to be as soft and velvety as the petals of the blossoms themselves.

HOME NEWS. To prevent cleanser cans from slipping out of wet hands, place two tight rubber bands around the can an inch or so apart.

Grease the bread mixer hemmer with lard before making bread and the flour will not stick to the sides.

STIFFLY-LINED SHEERS STIMULATE THE CRINOLINE. Sheers that are lined with the top of sheers for evening wear...

PERFORATED SHOES TO BE WORN FOR SUMMER. Men's summer shoes, perforated for ventilation, have proved so popular in recent seasons...

Wives and Business Don't Mix Dorothy Dix Don't Bother Your Husband

Wives Can Commit No Greater Sin Than That of Interfering With the Affairs of the Man Who Presents Her With Her Daily Sustenance

"Wives and business don't mix," said a man to me recently, "and I often wonder if women have any idea of how frequently they are to blame for their husbands' failures."

"To begin with, most women for some inexplicable reason are as jealous of their husbands' occupations as they could be of a platinum-blonde stenographer with string-bean figure."

"Listen to women talking and you will hear them speak of their husbands' 'old offices' in a bitterly resentful tone. They will say they can't go to Florida in the winter and to the mountains in the summer because they can't tear Jim or John away from his 'old office'."

"Then there are the wives who wreck their husbands' fortunes by breaking up partnerships. Two men who supplement each other, who bring different talents and aptitudes and traits of character to an enterprise can work together happily, harmoniously and successfully for years and years so long as they are single."

"Mrs. A. thinks that her husband should be the head of the firm instead of Mr. B. She is certain that he has far greater ability and that his work is more important. Mrs. B. is disgruntled because her husband has to get down to work earlier than Mr. A. and works all day in a stony old office while Mr. A. is gadding the streets."

"And, worst of all, there are the women who make failures of their husbands by forever whining and complaining because they can't have all the things that rich women have."

"For, after all our wives are the motive power that runs us and if they go blooze we stop."

or harden. It will also be much easier to wash.

Walter (returning without it): "I am sorry sir, we haven't got one in this hotel. But what is it you gent's would like to know?"

"Whata do ye mane?" replied Mrs. Murphy. "Sure," replied Mrs. Murphy, "that would be like putting water on a duck's back—in one ear an out the other."

"Why don't you control them the same as I do mine?" said Mrs. Flanagan.

"My kidneys were irregular in action and the too frequent passage of the accretions was very annoying, but Dr. Pierce's A-muric Tablets gave me great relief. In fact, 'A-muric' is the only thing I ever used that would relieve these symptoms."

I AGREE WITH DR. DAFOE ABOUT Palmolive Soap

"We, too, selected Palmolive exclusively." "It's the best soap I know of," continues charming Mrs. Prieur, "to keep our skins lovely... all over. You'll always find Palmolive in our home."

And in thousands of other Canadian homes, you'll find that Palmolive, the only leading beauty soap made with soothing olive oil, has been selected exclusively... not only for the face, throat and shoulders, but for the bath as well.

Olive Oil is Important. Remember, costly Olive Oil, so good for delicate skins, is the reason Palmolive cleanses, and at the same time refreshes and soothes your skin.

We'll Meet Again

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

"I don't know," she said quietly, "that I want back what I lost. I might love the clear vision that has come to me lately."

"That suits me fine," he said. "If this is an example of the best society, I'll take Penny's parties any time. Let's go out and get a cup of coffee and some spaghetti."

"You're coming with me, Gay?" "I'm not."

"I'm sorry," she said. "Her eyes beneath the brim of the little hat were clear and grave. And now—now will you please take me home, Alan? Home," she said, smiling, "is a funny little place. You go up two flights of dark stairs and we have two rooms, kitchen and bath."

"I like little restaurants," said Gay, "with checkered tablecloths and Italian proprietors. You see, I've degenerated. I'm one of the common people."

"You'll always be my Gay to me." Diana was out when, later, she got home, her head ringing with all that Alan had said.

"I told you I am taking you to dinner." "I like little restaurants," said Gay, "with checkered tablecloths and Italian proprietors. You see, I've degenerated. I'm one of the common people."

"I don't see you again," she said, standing in the hall downstairs when he brought her home. "Alan, don't kiss me."
