(Continued from page 1) peace. 4. Maintenance and development of present friendships and the establishment of new links of friendship with all nations on condition that new pacts do not threaten existing accords; 5. General reduction of armaments; 6. Gradual cooperation among the peoples of the world, which Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium is now attempting to secure. Replying to left critics who demand denunciation of the Spanish non-intervention pact because of violations, and to critics of the Right, who insist that application is not effective enough, Delbos declared: "To the former I answer that, although the fissures of non-intervention are actually very dangerous, what would happen if the door were opened to rival interventions, if nations committed themselves completely and were held back by nothing in the Spanish war? There would be the probability, if not the certainty, of war. To the latter, I reply that we feel no comparison nor any surveillance. We are giving increasing proofs of it (non-intervention) and with our British friends proposing maximum control." Despite the failure of a French move of last Dec. 4 toward mediation in Spain, France will neglect no effort to achieve a solution of the conflict, Delbos declared.

INCREASE IN BACON EXPORTS

Growing Demand For Canadian Hogs In The U. S.

OTTAWA, April 18.—Canadian lean bacon, neatly interlined with fat, is finding favor on United States breakfast tables judging by recent figures showing increased exports to that country. Information gathered at the Department of Agriculture indicates high prices for hogs and bacon in the United States are responsible for the exports, as they provide a margin over the Canadian price to permit payment of the import duties but reports also indicate a preference in some quarters for the meat from Canadian hogs. In January and February exports of Canadian bacon and ham to the United States aggregated 469,600 lbs. compared with 239,500 in the same period of 1936. Also with some 19,834 live hogs were shipped across the line in the two months period, a considerable increase over the same period the year before. Sales to the United States are a cause for satisfaction but the settled policy of the Federal Department of Agriculture is to keep supplies moving to the British market in sufficient volume to take the greatest possible advantage of the preferential tariff treatment accorded to Canada and meet the regular needs of the British trade. Recent revival in industry and employment in the United Kingdom has stimulated demand for bacon and hams. Demands from the United States are not expected to curtail shipments to the United Kingdom in view of the increased production and higher marketings.

Life Tough In Foreign Legion Escapee Claims

EDMONTON, April 18.—(CP)—Hardships in the French Foreign Legion from which he made a daring escape were described by Fred Connell, Manitoba-born adventurer, when he stopped here recently while enroute to northern mining fields. In 1932 he signed up for a five-year term in the Legion on outpost duty in Morocco. After two years of menage and privation during which the heat almost drove him mad, he made a desperate escape on foot over 300 miles of enemy-infested rock and sand. "If you can find glamor in thirst, dirt, hunger, forced marching over monotonous miles of sand, heaping shale for endless desert roads, or existing for days on rice and macaroni diet in an outpost surrounded by native snipers and all for two cents a day, well, I guess you can have it," he said. Romance in the Foreign Legion was confined to creations of Hollywood scenarios. He had seen scant evidence to support the tradition of dark-eyed Arab beauties enticing handsome legionnaires from duty's stern path. Early in 1935 Connell and his partner, Jack Marshall, of Dublin, began to plan their escape. Returning to headquarters at Sidi Bel Abbas after an encounter with native snipers, the two Britons succeeded in purchasing civilian clothing from the "forbidden quarter." They fled the barracks late one night and set out on the 300-mile journey to the coast in a motor car, calling mostly at night without map or compass and with only a meagre supply of food and water. They knew they would face a firing squad if caught. After 14 days of desert torture as they toiled over desert and mountains they reached their goal, not much caring whether they lived or died, Connell said. They stowed away on a British freighter bound for Liverpool and for the first time drew an easy breath. "In Canada," he said, "we are about the most fortunate people in the world. You don't know what it is to live in a human hell, but if you did you could understand just how precious freedom is."

WART PROVES COSTLY

Removal of a wart proved costly to all concerned in Dublin, Irish Free State. Essie Murphy purchased a bottle of "wart paint" from Druggist P. A. Brady without getting specific instructions how to use it. Miss Murphy applied the remedy to the wart on the index finger of her right hand. Subsequently the finger became inflamed and part of it had to be amputated. Miss Murphy sued and a jury awarded her $75.

LONDON, April 18.—Two of the happiest young women in London are the youngest royalities "summoned" to be present at the Coronation in Westminster Abbey, May 12.

Much to their delight, it has been decided that Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose will wear crimson velvet capes made of the material especially woven in England for their mother's train, when she was to appear at the ceremony as Duchess of York.

Princess Margaret Rose has been particularly intrigued with the idea of a cape since she looked on while arrangements were made about the Queen's train of purple velvet. It is to be six yards long and 56 inches wide, lined throughout and bordered with a five-inch band of ermine and heavily embroidered in gold with emblems of the British Empire.

The young princess watched the flitters and listened carefully. "It will be frightfully heavy" was her comment. Her next words showed a slightly different train of thought as she wanted to know "if it would be much heavier if someone rode on it?"

POLICE ARREST SHOP-LIFTER; INVESTIGATE THEFT

An out-of-town woman was arrested by City Police Saturday afternoon and charged with shop lifting. She will appear in court this morning. Saturday night Mrs. O. Mallett, Prince Street, reported to police that when she returned to her home shortly before 11 o'clock she found two dollars in change gone from a jug where she appeared to have been molested, she said. Police believed the intruder gained entrance by means of a skeleton key. Mrs. Mallett suspects the thief is a young man who had called at the door asking for money, had watched her take it from the jug and had later returned and helped himself.

British Steel Firms Swamped With Orders

MOSCOW, April 18.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's purchases of materials for warships ran into difficulties today because, she learned, some steel manufacturers are too busy filling domestic orders to bother with foreign ones. Nikolai Bogomoloff, Soviet trade delegate to Great Britain, returned to Moscow with the news that British firms are "swamped" handling huge orders for the rearmament program. United States circles here heard that Amtorg, Russian trading corporation, was unable to renew a steel order with one company in the United States because of heavy domestic demands. The company was said to have offered a premium to be released from delivering a previous order.

Drama Festival Finals Open Next Week

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, April 18.—Finals of the Dominion Drama Festival, starting here a week from tomorrow, will represent an investment by various organizations and individuals of about $20,000. That will cover, among other things, the cost of bringing some of the 18 competing companies here, staging their plays and paying 10¢ regional and final adjudication. When curtain closes on the six-night competition the festival will be in the red at the end of every one of its previous seasons but wealthy patrons of the amateur stage act as its angels and pull it out again. Biggest single expense, part of which will be defrayed by the festival itself, will be bringing two Vancouver casts here, the Vancouver Little Theatre in Neil Grant's "The Last War" and the Strolling Players in an excerpt from "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

The Strolling Players will get $500 from the festival to help defray their expenses but the Little Theatre will get nothing. The festival makes grants to

The King, Queen and other notables and many of the trappings of the great day. They packed Trafalgar Square stood 15 deep in Piccadilly Circus and 10 deep most of the rest of the route. Even Londoners are becoming impressed by the extent of preparations for the coronation. This is brought home to them as plans go forward to care for 30,000 troops in London's parks and to establish a traffic control regime which will cut off swanky Mayfair from the rest of the world.

Kensington Gardens already looks like war, with cookhouses being erected, supply dumps accumulating and camp being marked out. Much the same thing is going on in Hyde Park. Scotland Yard's best brains have been at work on the traffic problems of Mayfair during the Coronation period. An official "coronation area" has been established in the centre of London, and after one am. on Coronation Day no traffic of any kind will be permitted in this district.

ment lines then were advanced by counter-attacks. Dispatches describing a Government advance to within a few hundred yards of the sanctuary of the Virgin de la Cabeza in Jaen Province indicated that previous unconfirmed reports of the fall of that stronghold were erroneous. Dispatches said a carrier pigeon with a message from the 1,500 refugees—men, women and children—who have been besieged by Government forces there since early in the war was captured. The message described the plight of the beleaguered insurgent groups as desperate.

The message was said to contain a suggestion that the insurgents try to drop two light mortars from airplanes by parachutes to aid in defence of the mountain top. The insurgent artillery bombardment of Madrid was resumed today, and numerous shells fell in the downtown area. A check of casualties in Saturday's heavier shelling showed 24 had been killed and more than 100 wounded.

Unwitting Act Thwarts Riel Escape Attempt

(By The Canadian Press) RED DEER, Alta., April 18.—Thomas H. Ralston's unwitting action may have prevented escape of Louis Riel, rebel leader, after his capture at the end of the North West Rebellion in 1885, he reveals a visit here. Mr. Ralston, born 75 years ago at Pugwash Harbor, N.S., told of the incident during his 41 days service with forces fighting the rebels. Member of a party sent to Batoche for supplies; he came upon a pony tethered to a tree and commandeered it. Later he learned that it belonged to Riel and had been carefully concealed in the thicket by his followers to facilitate his escape. "Food was scarce," said Mr. Ralston. "Hard tack, American salt pork, with an occasional bear steak was the usual fare." Ralston was one in a party of volunteers sent to break through Indian lines to Batoche for supplies. They were accompanied by part of the Toronto Cavalry and had a hard time negotiating the dangerous journey, pulling heavy wagons over alkali and muskeg. Within three miles of Batoche they camped for the night. Ralston was scouting about the camp when he found and took possession of the pony.

Entering Batoche the following morning they found General Middleton and his recruits gone, having taken the village a few days previously. They were informed Riel had been caught and it was revealed the mount which Ralston had found was Riel's pony with which he had hoped to escape.

He founded and for many years edited the Art News; founded the French Impressionist Fund and the Allied Artists' Association; was once curator of Leeds Art Gallery, editor of Art and Letters and European editor of International Studio, New York. Canadian Coins After Coronation

OTTAWA, April 18.—(CP)—A new series of Canadian coins will be minted this year, with the likelihood of getting into circulation shortly after the Coronation. Finance Minister Dunning announced here today. The denominations will range from one cent to one dollar. Master dies and punches of the obverse bearing the effigy of King George VI, which was modelled by George T. H. Page of the Royal Mint, London, are expected here shortly. The new coins will represent the collaboration of Canadian, British and French mints. Due to pressure of work on the Royal Mint in London, it was found necessary for the Canadian authorities to enlist the co-operation of the Paris mint in the preparation of some of the dies.

Theatre Manager Returned To Saint John Saturday

Mr. F. G. Spencer, after a stay of several days, left by plane Saturday for Saint John, delayed one day because of Friday's rain and fog. Mr. Spencer, who spent the winter in Florida as usual, came to the Island almost immediately on his return, to see Mr. A. F. Cooper, who has been indisposed, and to visit his son Gordon, who is local manager pro tem. Mr. Spencer, surprised to find Mr. Cooper so well advanced toward recovery, commented on the fact that as usual, there has been some exaggeration as to the seriousness and character of Mr. Cooper's ailment.

In response to queries Mr. Spencer referred to the growth of his company's business. Two modern theatres have been added since last fall, both in Halifax. The most recent, the "Oxford," opened only five weeks ago. Three additional units will be added in another five months to the rapidly growing chain, which now covers every important territory in the Maritime Provinces. Two of these new 1937 theatres, to be acquired and one built, it was explained.

Mr. Spencer detailed some interesting items with respect to the inception and growth of his business. It seems that the first theatre was located in Summerside, with Charlottetown and Pictou following within a week or two.

Referring to just one of the definite changes in the business, Mr. Spencer stated that the cost of the Prince Edward program last week was sufficient to keep up for 12 to 15 weeks when the Prince Edward was first operated as a picture theatre. Although not in like proportion the other expenses attendant to theatre operation are materially increased. The character of the buildings now used for amusement purposes require a large investment and continued outlay to keep up-to-date.

Mr. Spencer feels that the feature pictures to be offered locally during the coming weeks and months will be found most alluring and particularly referred to a wonderful offering scheduled for early May, "Wings of the Morning," featuring the famed Irish tenor McCormick, which has played 10 weeks in Montreal, two in Halifax and just completed one in the Capitol Theatre, Saint John.

The Spencer Company contracts, it was explained, for all the best productions, regardless of cost. It is necessary, Mr. Spencer further outlined, in order to satisfy the leading producers, to purchase all their product. This means that sometimes the Prince Edward and Capitol are over-loaded with pictures and become behind release dates. It is then necessary to wait for some weeks after the pictures are shown in other places.

It works out to great advantage in some instances, just as with weeks ago the general public did not realize the enormity of its success and merit.

Mr. Spencer expressed the hope that he would have the opportunity to spend more time than usual on the Island during the approaching summer, referring to the very many inducements.

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) BOSTON, April 18.—(CP) Marston "Gint" Cain, widely known Maritime Province golfer, and Mildred Armstrong Hayes, daughter of Mrs. Armstrong Hayes, (172 Beacon Street) and prominent in Boston society were married Saturday night in All Saints Episcopal Church.

Rev. Dr. Elmer Owen officiated. The bride was attended by the Misses Stichen and Connie Kedian of Belmont, Mass., and Miss Janet Baker, Fargo, as maids of honor. Victor R. Cain supported his brother.

"Gint" Cain is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Cain of Belmont formerly of Yarmouth, N. S. He formerly was on the staff of Rotherham, N. B. Collegiate School and now is a teacher at Belmont junior high school.

He won the Maritime golf title in 1931 and the Nova Scotia title three times as a member of the Yarmouth Club. He is a graduate of Acadia University, Wolfville, N. S.

The bride was attended by the Misses Stichen and Connie Kedian of Belmont, Mass., and Miss Janet Baker, Fargo, as maids of honor. Victor R. Cain supported his brother.

It had been stated at the outset that H. J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager, and J. E. Highfield, plant manager, of General Company would represent the Company and Messrs. Cohen and Millard the strikers, he said. The latter had both stated they had no instructions from and in no way represented the C.I.O. and that the immediate purpose of the conference was to deal with the Oshawa strike situation, he claimed.
