

THE CHARLOTTETOWN GUARDIAN

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 4.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD'S NAVAL PROGRAM.

Lord Charles Beresford has long been a conspicuous figure in British naval affairs. His personal popularity is great, not merely because of his brilliant career in the navy, in which he had the reputation of being its best strategist, but because he has always had the courage of his convictions and dared to say the thing he thought. Away back in the eighties of last century he grew dissatisfied with the condition of the navy, and to gain the opportunity for a free expression of his views resigned his command and appealed to the nation. He entered Parliament and led a strong movement toward the building of practically a new navy. It is believed by many of his admirers that but for his patriotic zeal at that time Britain would have been so unready that a probably disastrous war with France would have followed the Fashoda affair.

That accomplished, he returned to the navy with increased prestige and was given high command. It is well known that previous to his retirement from the command of the North Sea fleet he was again in strong disagreement with the Government and the Admiralty in regard to what he considered the present inadequacy of the navy. He is now again appealing to the nation. Not long ago he explained his views before the London Chamber of Commerce, emphasizing the point that the navy needed not only more big battleships but a general strengthening throughout. As a minimum he demanded: 10 Battleships.

- 18 "Commesse Protection" Cruisers.
24 "Common Protection" Cruisers.
24 "Anti-Destroyers" (sea-going torpedo boat destroyers).
52 Torpedo Boat Destroyers.
4 Floating Docks.
Stores.
Coal.
Ammunition.
Restoration of Repairing Stations Overseas.
Twelve thousand additional men.

The cost of this program would be some $250,000,000. This sum, not small in proportion to the loss and cost of one disastrous war. Lord Beresford contends that the danger from Germany is very real; that Germany has more large naval docks than Britain; a greater number of cruisers and destroyers in the North Sea, and that these are of a stronger and more effective type. He thinks the swift British destroyers are not strong enough for the stress of the North Sea, for which German vessels of this class are specially designed. Also that Germany is now so equipped for building and arming war vessels of all classes that it is only by a supreme effort that Britain can keep pace with her. And Lord Charles Beresford probably knows as well as any man in the British Empire what the needs of the navy are. He has the ear of the nation to a remarkable extent, and justly so because of his ability, patriotism, experience and expert knowledge, and because, at whatever cost to himself he will hold-ly proclaim his honest convictions. His program as above outlined seems at least to have the merit of completeness.

TENNYSON, PROPHET OF THE FLYING AGE.

Tennyson was the true prophet of the flying age. In these days a thousand newspapers and magazines have recalled his vision of "the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails, pilots of the purple twilight," and so on. It seems to have been from Tennyson that Mark Twain adapted the phrase "sky pilot" and applied it to the preachers, giving it a wide vogue in the rather irreverent slang of recent years. But today we have actual sky pilots, multiplying rapidly in number, and their exploits bulking largely in the world's news, and so the preachers may perhaps be relieved of an unsought title. It was not only in Locksley Hall, however, that Tennyson's forecast apprehended the days when men would fly.

In "The Holy Grail" he has given us a description of The mighty hall that Merlin built

The Bedeque campaign, which might be expected to be in full blast at present, must be proceeding very quietly. We failed to notice anything about it in either of the party dailies yesterday, and yet polling day is rapidly drawing near. At the general election there was almost an even balance of votes. These are conditions that would, under ordinary circumstances make an exciting contest now. But the farmers are busy and politics will neither cut nor cure, nor haul in the hay. There must be some meetings later, however, or some of the party orators will explode with pent-up eloquence.

With four great zones of sculpture set betwixt. And in the lowest beasts are slaying men. And in the second men are slaying beasts. And on the third are warriors, perfect men. And on the fourth are men with growing wings. What a picture is here presented of successive stages in the advance of the world and the extension of man's dominion, upward from the days when the wild beasts were a terror to him, to the time when he is conquering the air. Tennyson saw it all in clear vision, and, as we have said, he was the true prophet of the flying age.

Goff Bros

All will regret the disastrous wreck of the Silver Dart at Petewawa, while rejoicing in the escape of Messrs McCurdy and Baldwin who were on board. Otherwise the experiments were quite successful, though the distances made were short.

Duncan Marshall, M. P. P. and Mrs. Marshall of Edmonton, arrived on Monday evening on a visit to relatives and friends in this city. Mr. Marshall is widely and favorably known here and in Ontario and the west as a vigorous political speaker and writer. He was the editor of The Patriot here in the days when the Patrons of Industry had a newspaper organ of their own. Mr. Marshall is now an active Liberal and likely to become Minister of Railways in the Alberta Government, led by Premier Rutherford.

A LONG TRIAL

Mr. M. J. Roberts, Reporter to Criminal Court, Charlottetown, says: "It gives me much pleasure to testify to the merits of Gregg Short-hand. After completing the course I had the pleasure of taking evidence in a long trial in the Criminal Court, and it was a complete success. I was required to give a transcript of the whole case, which I was told by one of the attorneys in the case was one of the best ever held here. Gregg Short-hand is first class. This system is taught at the Union Commercial College and a free sample lesson may be had by addressing: WM. H. THORNTON, Pres., U. C. C. Charlottetown. 7-31dtf.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Aug. 8th, 1909. Paul's instructions to the Thessalonians. I Thess. v. 12-24.

Golden Text.—See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good. I Thess. v. 15.

Verses 12-15.—What is the dominant note between officials of the church and the pastor, is it official and business, or is it spiritual, that of felt tender love and warm esteem?

Do ministers as a class "labor" as hard, and suffer as their Master did, and thus compel the tender love and esteem of the church?

Does the average minister or not, actually "labor" as hard as the average mechanic, farmer, business or professional man, and practise as much self denial as these?

What is generally the real character of those who will support the church because they do not like the minister?

What is the only way by which to have "peace" among brethren in a church or in a community?

Verse 14.—If you know anything against a fellow Christian what is the right thing to do, (1) say nothing about it; (2) talk about it to others; (3) correct him in the presence of others, or (4) see him alone and in love tell him what you have to say?

Jesus went about lovingly helping people, in their bodies, their souls, and circumstances; if you are not doing that, have we a right to conclude that we are not followers of Jesus?

Is it your duty as a Christian, to take pains to "comfort" everybody with whom you come in contact, and if you are doing so what is the effect upon your own life?

Verse 15.—If your neighbor sets his dog on my sheep, pulls down my fences in the night, shoots my chicken when one gets into his yard, is constantly slandering me and my family, and will not pay me a long standing just debt, what would Jesus do if he were I? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verse 16.—It is easy, Paul, for you to say, "Rejoice evermore," but it is practical for ordinary mortals, and if so, how?

Verse 17.—If a man is really in love with God and his fellows, does he not necessarily pray all the time, either consciously or unconsciously?

Is it necessary or helpful to 12½ set times for conscious prayer?

Verse 18.—Are we to be thankful alike for pain and pleasure, for loss and gain, for enemies and friends, if we are "in Christ Jesus?"

Is there not an actual fact, based on the truest philosophy, that every sort of experience which comes to a true man, is the highest possible sense, for his good?

In the light of eternal existence, are there any such things as accident, calamity, misfortune, or even regrettable circumstances, in the light of a man of God?

Verse 19.—Can any man retain the peace of God, who is not absolutely obedient to the leadings of God's Holy Spirit?

Verse 20.—Prophecy here means preaching, is there any sign in these days that it is being despised?

Why should a love for the preaching of the gospel be cultivated?

Verse 21.—Why should we not as Christians encourage the most absolute free thought, the most critical research, and welcome the teaching of true science?

Can the real truth ever be a hurt to a true man, and is not such a man as glad to change his opinion when he finds he is wrong, as to change a worn-out garment for a new one?

Verse 22.—If we desire the right to be obedient to God's spirit, need we ever fear even the appearance of evil?

Verses 23-24.—Does God mean his children to live "blameless" lives, and is the twenty-fourth verse not a promise that God will give the power to do so?

Lesson for Sunday, Aug. 15th, 1909. Paul's Third Missionary Journey. Ephesus. Acts xviii: 23 to xix: 22.

AN EDUCATIONAL EXPERT

has this to say

ACADIALADIES' SEMINARY Wolfville, N. S.

"What impressed the writer was the admirable system that prevails in the management and in every department of work; that kindly personality and tact, the influence of which is so grateful to young people; the genial sympathy in the relations between teacher and pupil, and the interest which each one seemed to feel in the work of the day. An education under such conditions is indeed a great asset."
