True Bill. (Continued from page 1) ing and it was not known if he was living or dead. In the last case the Attorney General said that the accused was now serving a long sentence in Dorchester Penitentiary on another charge. The appeal case of The King vs. William R. MacKenzie, charged with taking a car without the owner's consent, was also declared nolle prosequi and the appeal allowed on motion of the Attorney General. Two other appeal cases, The King vs. Pansy McLeod, charged under the Excise Act and The King vs. Pansy McLeod, charged under the Prohibition Act, were set down for tomorrow morning. The following comprise the Grand Jury: Messrs. Charles H. Black, (foreman) Charlottetown; Ewen J. MacMillan, York Point; Willard Jordan, Charlottetown; Nelson Bell, Milton; George W. McLeod, Charlottetown; James McDonald, Nine Mile Creek; Reuel LePage, Charlottetown; Ernest Bulman, Rustico; Hector MacKay, DeSable; George Munn, East Royalty; Silas A. Murley, Argyle Shore; Chester Woolner of North Rustico was absent through illness. The Grand Jury was dismissed at four o'clock and will visit the institutions and bring in their report today. The Court was adjourned at this hour to allow the members of the Jury to be present at the Torch Day celebration. This was done on motion of the Attorney General. Court will resume its sitting at 11 o'clock this morning.

ADDRESS TO GRAND JURY. Following is the address to the Grand Jury which was delivered by Mr. Justice Arseneault. It had been the Chief Justice's intention to open the Court and address you today. Unfortunately the Chief Justice is laid up with an attack of influenza and he has requested me to replace him today. I am sure that like myself you regret the Chief Justice's indisposition and express hopes of his early recovery. Not anticipating having to preside today, I have had little time for preparation. Whatever I may say to you is more or less impromptu. This evening we will all be called to take part in a demonstration of loyalty to the Empire in connection with the Victory Loan. As you are aware, an effort is being made by the Federal Government to float a loan of $600,000,000 for the purpose of prosecuting the war. If I am not mistaken, this is the largest loan that the Government of Canada has ever been asked to raise. Already $500,000,000 of the $600,000,000 has been subscribed, and I feel that before the week is out we will be well over the top. Our citizens of Prince Edward Island are doing themselves proud and we congratulate both Summerside and Charlottetown on having both far surpassed their objectives. I invite you Grand Jurymen and I invite you County of Queens here to join the Bench and Bar in this function. When in 1918 Germany was defeated, the British Empire and its Allies joined in a solemn and joyous and of thanksgiving for a victory won over a savage and ruthless enemy. The world "had been made free for democracy" and no thought was then entertained that the job would have to be done again. The Germans had devastated Belgium and Northern France and heavy terms were imposed on them for reparations. In fact no money was sufficient to compensate for the historical monuments of these countries which had been laid into ruin. The powerful German army machine was demoralized and disarmed, her navy sunk and an armed force was placed within its border to see that the Peace Treaty was observed by the defeated enemy. Restrictions Removed. In this case, like in many similar cases, the Allies had among them that maudlin element whose sympathies are extended to the underdog. This element immediately started a propaganda to modify and ease up the terms of the treaty. The poor Germans, it was said, were not bad fellows. They had been misled, that was all. And so, on and on, the restrictions that had been imposed by the peace treaty were removed. The army of occupation was withdrawn, the Germans were permitted to recruit for the army, they began to rebuild their navy, the debts due for compensation were forgiven, in the end the Germans, who had been responsible for the war, who had made countless widows and orphans, had caused untold destruction of lives and property, who had involved the nations in hundreds of millions of dollars debt, came out on top. Their towns and cities had suffered no damage, they repaid their debts and employed the money that should have gone to Belgium, France and England, in building up the most stupendous military machine the world has ever seen and which has now entered into the great part of the continent of Europe, and enchain most of its nations in slavery. Italy, that nation which England had so many times befriended and had saved against defeat by Austria during the Great War, drove a dagger into the back of France and betrayed its friend and protector, England. That Italian patriot, Garibaldi, whatever may have been his faults, and his sins, expressed the then Italian sentiment when he said: "England is a great and powerful nation, foremost in human progress, enemy to despotism, the only safe refuge for the exile, friends of the oppressed, and if ever England should be so circumscribed as to require the help of an ally, cursed be the Italian who would not step forward for her defense." If this was true when Garibaldi said it, it is many fold truer today for how many exiles in fear of their lives in their own country, including the German Hess, have since the first days of the war found a haven of security in England? Germany Will Fall. It may be a long and deadly struggle, but we, who have faith that God in His omnipotence will make right prevail over might and over injustice, know that in the end Germany will fall and that the conquered and enslaved nations will be restored to freedom. plish this however every liberty-loving person must do his or her share. The Empire today needs money and needs men. The King of England is equally our King and we owe to him the same allegiance that is due him by his subjects in Britain. When the Crown is in danger, it is the bounden duty of the subject to defend the King. No man with a life. This is what is meant when we subscribe to the oath of allegiance. There is a call for men and more men. The King, by his ministers in Canada, has asked the young men of Canada to come to his aid. Many have answered that call but there are still many who through cowardice or self-interest or for other reasons have turned a deaf ear. I can speak without self accusation. I have only two boys. Both of them have risen from the ranks and from the first day of the declaration of war they answered the call and joined their units. The younger of them had just finished his college course and was about to enter the study of a profession. For this reason he could well have delayed joining. He said to me "Dad, I am a commissioned officer and my duty is to join my unit and do my bit. If the officers do not show the example, how can we expect the non-commissioned officers and privates to enlist?" This was the proper spirit and I commended him for it. I want to say only a word to the young men in this province and especially to those who are connected with the law. Some of you are called to the bar and you are called to the bar of military age and physically fit. The word "conscription" is obnoxious to many, but if there should be no other means of getting the man power and no other means to men to the realization of their duty to their King and Country, then it may be that conscription may have to be resorted to for this purpose. Let us hope that it will not become necessary.

Must Perform Duty. And now, Gentlemen of the Jury, there is little else I can say on this subject, but before I close, this part of my address to you, I should like to quote to you the words of William Pitt delivered in the British House of Commons in April 1794, which have since become the motto of our country. "I need not remind the House that we are come to a new era in the history of our country, that we are called to struggle for the destiny, not of this country alone, but of the civilized world. You are here to perform certain duties. You are an integral part of the machinery of justice and order of your duties at this term will not be pleasant. But, pleasant or unpleasant, you are sworn to perform them. The first of these is to give consideration to an indictment preferred by the Crown against two young men for the brutal murder of a respectable and inoffensive old man and you will consider whether the evidence which will be brought before you is sufficient for you to find a true bill. It was our proud boast for many years that we had had no cases of murder before our Courts. It is not well to boast. Within practically a year we have had to deal with three murder cases and this last one is the most atrocious of the lot. A gentle old man, pursuing his peaceful avocation of grocery-man, is set upon by thugs, because this is the only name you can apply to such men, and beaten and cut up in a most vicious and dastardly manner. It is not for you or for me to say whether the two accused are the guilty parties. If you find them guilty, they will be the office of the Judge and Jury who try them on the charge. It is simply for you to decide as to whether there is sufficient evidence to place them on trial. You will hear the witness produced by the Crown and I have no doubt but that you will reach a proper conclusion. There is also a case of conspiracy to come before you on which I will charge you whenever you have disposed of this case. Your other duties are less disagreeable. You will visit the County Jail and other public institutions devoted to the insane, the feeble-minded and the destitute. These institutions, under capable medical supervision and under the care of competent and devoted nurses and attendants are performing a commendable work and are obtaining splendid results. Still, if on visiting these institutions and scrutinizing them most minutely, there are any criticisms or suggestions you have to make, I am sure that you will receive the attention of those in authority. I now leave you to the performance of the tasks which this Court has imposed on you with the full confidence that you will perform them with care and diligence. Charging the Jury in their duties regarding the case of The King vs. Griffin and Walsh, Mr. Justice Arseneault explained the meaning of conspiracy. "So far as the evidence is concerned I have found no evidence of any conspiracy in either Queen's or King's County," he said.

I PLEDGE MYSELF AND MY ALL. WITH supreme confidence in the righteousness and justice of our cause, let us be tireless in striving, in lending, in saving, to preserve our great heritage of freedom and to determine our high destiny in the world of tomorrow. The basic defences of our way of life must be secured. By our subscriptions to the Victory Loan, by planned saving for essential needs, let us on the home front pledge ourselves anew to hold the torch on high with the United Kingdom and her Allies.
