Those attending the horse races this year have been heard in large numbers expressing their approval of the system of numbering the competitors in the races inaugurated this year by Secretary C. R. Smallwood. In the past it has always been the custom to have the driver carry his horse's number on his arm but this year the idea of placing a very large number on the horse, attached to the shafts and the saddle, was carried out—similar to the plan prevailing on all the race circuits on the American side of the border. The numbers were made by P. I. McMahon, painter, are large and distinct, and have proven a distinct improvement over the old system by which those in attendance were assisted in the identification of the field of starters in each event.

Murray, Robinson Me.—Thomas Gass, the Telephone Co., Charlottetown, paid a flying visit to New Glasgow recently.—Alder W. Dickenson, student at P. W.
