More Hopeful Of Disarmament

By Guardian's Special Wire
GENEVA, Feb. 26—League of Nations officials tonight appeared more hopeful of a resumption of the Disarmament Conference after the receipt of optimistic reports concerning the tour of Captain Anthony Eden.

The reports stated that Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany had adopted a new attitude toward the French point of view, as a result of Captain Eden's visits to Paris and Berlin.

It was believed here that Chancellor Hitler is making efforts to meet some of the points at issue between Germany and France.

Sees Benefit From Waterway Treaty Project

TRURO, N. S., Feb. 26—The Maritime Provinces stand to benefit by the proposed St. Lawrence waterway, and certainly will not be hurt by its completion, stated Sir H. Wright, past president of the Halifax Board of Trade and member of the Board of Trade Council, in an address before a local service club.

The ports of Halifax, Sydney and St. John particularly would be benefited by increased summer traffic, he said, as increased inland traffic would flow to the Great Lakes in American and British boats which would thereby become tributaries to other ports and ocean lanes.

"The Canadian Shield," said Mr. Wright, "produces the metals of immense value as well as the precious stones and in the form of the must be carried as cheaply as possible to seaboard to be completed by the western plains of Canada and the northern United States produce farm products and manufactured goods that must be brought around to the Atlantic coast either in American or British boats to reach their markets."

WOULD RESTORE MONARCHY IN AUSTRIA

Monarchists Meeting Foreshadows Probable Restoration of the Hapsburgs.

(By Wade Warner, Copyright 1934 by the Associated Press)
VIENNA, Feb. 26—Lusty cheers were given for the Imperial Hapsburg family, Chancellor Dollfus, and Prince Von Starhemberg, Heimwehr Commander, at a mass meeting tonight of monarchists who demanded the eventual restoration of the Austrian throne.

While they met rumors circulated that troops of the Fascist Heimwehr, or homeguard, were enroute to the Swiss border to meet the Archduke Otto, claimant to the Austrian throne, and escort him triumphantly into Vienna.

Speakers
Legitimate speakers tonight paid tribute to Dollfus and Prince Von Starhemberg's recent victory in a Socialist uprising and called these gains a prelude to the re-installation of a monarch.

As an immediate and preliminary step in that direction orators demanded the revocation of laws banishing the Hapsburgs and confiscating their property.

Chancellor Dollfus did not attend the meeting, but sent a message of encouragement.

The applause the mention of his name drew among the several thousand monarchists was in sharp contrast to the silent silence of Vienna street crowds this afternoon.

CROWN RESTS CASE IN GASPE MURDER TRIAL

New Evidence Brought In By Defence On Seventh Day of Phillips' Trial.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
QUEBEC, Feb. 26—The impenetrable wall of evidence against the accused in the trial of Nelson Phillips, charged with the murder of Maud Auld, at Gaspe last summer, was pierced today by a new stream of evidence brought in by the defence on the seventh day of the trial of Nelson Phillips, 18, before a jury under Chief Justice H. A. E. Greenfield, Montreal.

Trial For Life
Phillips is on trial for his life on a charge of murdering Maud Auld, 44, at Gaspe last summer. Maud and her cousin, Marguerite Auld, disappeared from their homes during the night of Aug. 31, last. Maud's body was found floating in the waters of Gaspé Bay about two months after her disappearance while that of Marguerite was never recovered.

Tending to show he had committed the murder of the girl, an alleged confession supposedly obtained from accused by former Detective Arthur Maloney of Montreal, who introduced himself to Phillips as "Buddy Baker" was admitted into the record by His Lordship. Phillips was arrested following the report he had been the last person seen with the two girls.

Heard Screams
Case of the Crown was declared closed yesterday and Miss Shackleton testified as a defence witness. She was painting near Cap des Rois, she related, between five and six o'clock on the afternoon of Sept. 1 when "I heard two human screams from the top of the cliff." At that time, she added, she had no knowledge of the disappearance of the Auld girls.

An alleged attempted assault by two men the night before the disappearance of the girls was recounted by Mrs. Charles Carrel of Fox River, a place 21 miles distant from the Gaspé Peninsula.

Questioned
She was questioned by Dominique Levesque, one of defence counsel: "On the night of Aug. 30, 1933 were you in Gaspé district?"
"Yes."

Blizzard Sweeps Down Through Eastern States

Death Toll In United States From Week-end Storms Placed At Sixty.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
HALIFAX, Feb. 26—Sweeping down from the northeast, a raging blizzard rushed over Canada's Maritime Provinces tonight in the wake of days of cold and storm that had left transportation services crippled and strewn wrecked ships against the coast.

After a week-end of intense cold, temperatures were rising slightly, but the snowstorm brought with it fresh discomforts. Communication lines were disrupted and roads were becoming blocked with drifting snow through the three provinces.

PIERCING WIND
In Nova Scotia, the mercury hovered close to the zero mark in many centres, and the cold was accentuated by the piercing wind whistling down from the Arctic. Snow had been falling steadily since early morning. Three inches of snow were reported in New Brunswick and wind drove the temperature down to a scant seven degrees above the cypher.

Ships Held
At sea, ice still held shipping in its grip. Harbors along Nova Scotia's coast were frozen solidly; others were blocked by drifting floes. On the south shore of New Brunswick, Passamaquoddy Bay residents saw more ice than at any time in 11 years. All the way from Robinson to Eastport, Me., sardine weirs were destroyed, and shipping along that coast was tied up almost completely.

More Victims
NEW YORK, Feb. 26—The weather death tolls throughout the United States climbed to 60 today as a blizzard swirled through the Eastern States, adding at least six names to the list of victims written by a week-end of snow, hail, rain, tornadoes and cold.

Eastern cities battled to prevent another death toll as more snow threatened to block traffic and shipping.

The south reported 17 dead in the tornadoes which twisted through Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi; eight bodies were taken from a missing air liner near Salt Lake City; six weeks death in the eastern storms and Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania added more than 20 fatalities.

The forecasters promised all sections relief tomorrow. They said the blizzard's snow—eight inches in New York—would let up, and said warmer weather was moving in to the midwest, west and south.

Trains and trucks were added to the disaster list died in a hotel blaze in Utica, N. Y., and five were killed and one seriously injured when a Pennsylvania flyer, the West Deshobon, crashed into a truck in Delphos, O. In freezing cold, firemen battled two fires in Chicago which did damage estimated at $500,000.

"Dirty weather," sleet and snow, grounded United States army flyers in the eastern bases and kept the air mail from movement there. Planes went through on schedule west out of Chicago, and air traffic was opening at Denver.

APPLE EXPORT
(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
MONTREAL, Feb. 26—One of the really bright spots in the generally good situation that has existed in the matter of cargoes out of Eastern Canadian ports this winter is the way in which the heavy Maritime apple crop has found an excellent market abroad, with the result that ships have continued to go out with big consignments of apples since the commencement of the fruit export season.

ISLAND SWEEP BY WINTER'S WORST STORM

Roads and Railway Cuttings Filled in by Howling Blizzard.

The worst blizzard of the winter, with heavy snow and drift driven by high wind, swept the province last night. Railway cuttings and roads were quickly filled in and it is expected that transportation will be temporarily tied up today.

Light snow fell early yesterday, and the storm gradually increased in proportion till 11 o'clock last night. Many automobiles were stalled on the city streets in the drifts.

The train from Borden which arrived there at 4:25 did not reach Charlottetown till about 9 o'clock, so quickly had the drift filled in the cuttings.

Extra trains with ploughs leave early this morning on the western line and on the Murray Harbour branch.
