EBBSFELT SCHOOL.

The semi-Annual examinations of Ebbsfelt school took place on June 26th, a large number of the ratepayers present for the occasion. The pupils were examined by Mrs. Peter Callaghan, Miss Evelyn Gaudet and others. A splendid programme of songs, recitations and dialogues was carried out to the great enjoyment of all present. The pupils one and all displayed a ready fact and grasp of the part they had to take that reflected great credit on teacher and scholars alike. While the manner in which they answered all questions and the great ease with which they mastered the many examples given them, proved to all present that great care had been taken to make Ebbsfelt school second to none in this end of the country. One noticeable feature was the remarkable way in which the smaller scholars acquitted themselves, which proved to all present that unlike many schools those juveniles had not been neglected for the more advanced grades. The distribution of prizes was as follows. Prize for attendance awarded, Marion Callaghan. Prize for Good Progress, awarded, Patrick Callaghan. Prize for Fifth Grade, Drawn by Ethel Rix. Prize for Fourth Grade, Drawn by Louis Pineau. Prize for Third Grade, Drawn by Catherine Allen. Prize for First Grade, Drawn by Joseph Pineau. The ratepayers highly complimented the teacher Miss Josie Gaudet on the progress made during the past year. After which the following address was read by Miss Patricia Callaghan, Address Enclosed. Miss Josie Gaudet, Dear Teacher:—We, the pupils of Ebbsfelt School very much regret to learn that you have tendered your resignation as teacher of our school. Two years ago you came to us almost a perfect stranger, but you soon became, by your kindness and patience, very much beloved by us. During the time you spent in our school you have worked hard and earnestly to impart to us that part of education which is so necessary for our future welfare. You have not only maintained but raised the efficiency of our school to a high standard. Your endeavours have always been to lead us further than business and patience rather than arduous and unending your clever guidance we believe we have improved really in our studies. Now dear teacher, we offer you our heartfelt thanks for the great interest you have taken in our welfare, and we ask of you to forgive any little annoyance on our part. We hope that the good feelings existing between us will continue to grow and strengthen and be assured you will always be fondly and tenderly remembered by the parents and pupils of Ebbsfelt. To prove this we beg of you to accept these little remembrances as tokens of our esteem towards you, and that you will be as successful in your new field of labor as you have been with us is the wish of your pupils.
