NEW ALLIANCE PROJECTED
BETWEEN WORLD'S POWERS

Great Britain, France and the United States Coming to a Mutual Understanding That Will Make for the World's Peace.

New York, Aug. 7.—When the world history of this period of grace is written the name Portsmouth will stand out bright and clear. At the new world Portsmouth where the breezes blow from the pipes of Maine, the representatives of Japan and Russia will meet in an endeavor to bring to a peace the greatest war of the epoch.

At the old world, Portsmouth, a great British fleet is gathered in the harbor today in honor of the French fleet, which is paying a return visit to its friend and ally.

As was the case recently at Brest, the ships are lined up, not in separate squadrons, but those flying the Union Jack and the strains of the Marseillaise hymn mingle with those of the English national anthem.

By an interesting coincidence a powerful squadron of armored cruisers under command of the British admiral, Prince Louis of Battenburg, is on its way across the Atlantic to join the North Atlantic squadron of the United States and the combined fleet will be seen at anchor in New York harbor before the end of the summer.

The Anglo-French entente or understanding or alliance is the most significant fact in the Europe of today. But it would not be so significant as it is were it not for the other fact that Americans regard the ranging of France and England together with as much satisfaction as do the subjects of King Edward and the fellow citizens of President Loubet.

In striking contrast with the petty provincial spirit shown in some quarters both as anti-Yankeeism and as anti-Britishism is the editorial utterance today of the evening edition of the Sun, considered for many years, as the most typical and most consistently American of the influential journals of the United States.

"Never before," it says, "in the history of the United States were our relations with Great Britain so cordial as they are today. Our traditional friendship for France, originally the result of gratitude, and fortified by our admiration of those qualities which make the French race what it is, remains as strong as ever. The result is an international triangle.

"We understand France and England understands France and us. France understands England and us. This happy state of amity has no anything conventional or fortuitous or artificial about it. It is the result of natural development and the progress of events.

"The three powers concerned enjoy the blessing of representative institutions and free government. They are as prosperous as they are free. Combined, they can dictate peace to the civilized world. All other arrangements that may be planned by scheming statesmen can result in nothing of importance, provided that these three find it desirable to act together. They can control the money markets as readily as they can sweep the seas with their fleets.

"All honor is due to King Edward for the great work which he has done, with infinite tact and good temper in eliminating difficulties which had kept the neighbors from joining hands across the channel. The great change has been accomplished on terms honorable to both peoples and of good omen for the rest of the world. For this country, which was in the situation of a mutual friend the consummation was one which was devoutly to be wished.

"Elaborate preparations have been made for the entertainment of the French fleet covering at least a week and promising to cast into the shade the famous Cronstadt visit. King Edward will be on hand and will meet the officers almost daily, entertaining them on his yacht and at Windsor castle. The lord mayor of London will give them a formidable corporation dinner, the houses of parliament will have them at luncheon, all the admiralty officials, the officers of the fleet, the royal yacht club, the local functionaries at Portsmouth will all help in giving the French officers and seamen a good time.

The remarkable sight at Brest of British and French tars fraternizing when on shore leave will undoubtedly be repeated, and while Portsmouth's welcome may be less demonstrative, the Frenchmen will be made to feel that it is no less cordial than Brest's, in which the popular enthusiasm was noticeable. It looks as if the man in the street in both countries had worked up to the fact that the interests of both nations are identical in most matters and that an honest entente may be as strong a defense as many an alliance.

"The French fleet's visit to Portsmouth," says the Sun, "makes for the world's peace. It marks once more the strengthening of a sensible understanding to which Kaiser Wilhelm has unwittingly contributed."

A cable from Paris quotes the Matin today in commenting upon the visit of the French squadron to England says it is more than a banal exchange of courtesies, "it is a striking mark of the great goodwill of the two nations profess for each other, a rapprochement of great importance at the present moment. In America it is regarded with good will and interest. It being thought there that this cordiality may result in a powerful union of the three nations."

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 7.—The French fleet, consisting of eighteen battleships, cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers, under the command of Vice-Admiral Caillaud, dropped anchor in the Solent this afternoon to spend a week as guests of King Edward and the British navy. Heavy showers throughout the morning drenched the decorations ashore and afloat and shrouded the great gathering of yachts and British warships collected to welcome the visitors in a heavy mist.

A temporary let up of the rain brought out the sightseers and thousands lined the sea front at Southsea and cheered Admiral Caillaud's fleet as it passed. On Spitthead the first salutes were exchanged between the visitors and the land forts.

As the French vessels took up their anchorage parallel with the line of British warships, all of which were manned and dressed, they fired a royal salute in honor of King Edward, whose standard was flying from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert. The mass of spectators ashore and afloat gave the heartiest greeting to their neighbors from across the channel.
