SAFETY PIN BECOMES SMART

CHICAGO, Dec. 18—Modern mankind's first ornament—the safety pin—has been glorified by Paris designers into a swanky, smart piece of costume jewelry that makes a novel Christmas gift.

Several versions of this well-known nursery and household necessity have been devised. One pattern is simply a safety pin, three inches long, in copper, gold or silver finish. Others, likewise large, have knots or cross bars linking the two sides of the pin.

And lastly the lovely safety pin glitters and sparkles with rhinestones.

GOOD NEWS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18—Continued observance of a custom of a month's extra pay as a Christmas gift was but part of the good news for employees of the Hibernal Bank. Each woman worker gets a full day off to go shopping.

NOT ORANGES

WINNIPEG, Dec. 18—When is an orange not an orange?—when it is Japanese.

The Dominion government, through the customs department, has declared "Japanese oranges" are not "oranges," but tanga nes.

And as such they enter Canada duty free. The greater part of 32 cars of the fruit has already arrived in Winnipeg, where it finds a ready market.

CENTRAL GUARDIAN

CALENDARS—Mr. Fred H. Trainor, Plumbing and Heating, is sending his customers very pretty calendars this season, two of which have reached this office.

CALENDARS OF UNUSUAL QUALITY and artistic design are being issued to customers by the Royal Bank, the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Bank of Montreal, copies of which have been received by the Guardian.

ENJOYING HIS WORK—The many friends of Mr. Donald (Don) Nicholson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nicholson, city, and grandson of the late Mr. Donald Nicholson, will be delighted to learn that he is much pleased with his position as a member of the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia, at Oxford, N. S.

PROSPEROUS ADVERTISERS—

A Guardian representative went the round of its city advertisers on Saturday to ascertain the state of business. Without exception the reports were favourable. Up till that day business done in the majority of cases was up to the average and in several instances the takings were greater than at the corresponding date last year.

SOME WILL QUIT BEFORE MARCH 4, IS BELIEF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—President Hoover faced the possibility today of a break-up in his cabinet between now and the end of his term, March 4.

Rumors of resignations from the Hoover administration have been recurrent in the past month. Most cabinet members have denied they intend to "desert the ship" at the last moment, but some may find their private interests make it necessary for them to withdraw.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, for example, is considered resigning before the end of the year.

Dr. Wilbur, throughout his tenure in the Hoover cabinet, has retained his title as president of Leland Stanford University, at Palo Alto, Calif.

Each year, the Stanford authorities have extended his leave of absence. However, their last extension expires December 31—and they are understood to oppose another extension.

It is believed, as reported from Palo Alto by the United Press some weeks ago, that Dr. Wilbur has to all intents and purposes handed President Hoover his resignation and is merely waiting now until the chief executive can find a successor for the brief interim before his regime ends in March.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, reports have persisted, has been considering returning to private life shortly. He has numerous personal interests which he feels need attention.

He has not denied considering resigning before March 4, but in response to questions said: "I think now I may stick on until the end of the administration. We'll have to wait and see."

Some other cabinet officers have been reported "on the fence." Former Secretary of Commerce Robert Lamont quit the end of last summer to go into private industry—and others may follow suit.

Woman Philosopher

Philosophers have spent tedious years mulling over the question of why we are here and with only meagre success. The average man has little time for philosophic conjecture. He knows that his family must be fed and that there will be bills to be met at the end of the month and lets destiny take care of itself.

But the ladies, as they go about their daily household tasks, have more time for reflection, and it is only natural that they should conclude that the perfect life is something more than providing three meals a day and sewing on buttons.

They yearn for a cultural outlet, which takes shape in every city and hamlet from coast to coast in literary societies, sewing circles, missionary and aid societies and uplift movements.

Let man look to his laurels as philosopher, scholar and reformer. It is conceivable that a time may come when Mrs. Socrates will be the philosopher and her husband the scold.

Joiner "Paints" Wood Pictures

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Dec. 17.—London may soon see an exhibition of the work of one of the most unusual artists in the world—a Southampton joiner who "paints" pictures with pieces of wood.

He is Mr. Leonard Small Durkin of Lodge Road. His work has attracted the attention of many prominent people, and it is hoped that it may be shown in London.

A sheet of three-ply wood forms specially selected, for the graining Mr. Durkin's "canvas." This is speforms an important feature in obtaining sky effects and foregrounds. Using nine types of tools and thirty kinds of wood, the joiner-artist inlays his pictures piece by piece. The head of a small pin; some of the strips were as fine as a pencil line. All light and shade effects are obtained by selecting the right grain markings.

No joints can be detected in the finished pictures, which are coated with a clear white polish and framed in ebony.

Photograph Models Each of Mr. Durkin's pictures represents nine months work. He spends most of his leisure time at his hobby, and when I called he was at work on what he believes will be his master piece.

Only one corner of the picture, showing a tree in leaf, has been finished, but already over 2,000 pieces of wood have been used.

Mr. Durkin stated that the idea of making wood pictures came to him years ago when he was looking at a colored postcard giving a glimpse of old Southampton.

"I said to my wife: 'I could make a picture like that with wood,' he said, 'and I started on it right away. I made many little mistakes, but learned by them, and now I have finished a series of pictures of the oldest parts of Southampton. I used photographs in an old guide book for my models for the first half dozen pictures I did but now I make pictures from my own photographs.'

AUBURN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of the Auburn Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Patrick Callaghan Tuesday, Dec. 13th, with ten members and seven visitors present. The President occupied the chair and the meeting opened by singing "It's a good time to get acquainted" and the reading of the creed in unison. Roll call was answered with Christmas suggestions and the minutes of the last meeting were read, approved and signed.

It was decided to send a box of provisions to St. Vincent's orphanage for Christmas. Much merriment was caused by a reading entitled "Borrowing a Match," by one of the members also a guessing contest was enjoyed and realized a neat sum. Mrs. Walter McEntee invited the members to hold their next meeting at her home, roll call to be answered by "A New Year's Resolution." An appetizing lunch was served in Mrs. Callaghan's usual capable manner. The remainder of the evening was spent in pleasant discourse, vocal solos, and etc. A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess for her genial hospitality and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Many generous gifts for the needy were brought to the Sunday School at 2:30 in preparation for Christmas. The morning service was broadcast through the kind courtesy of Station CIOK.

STOPS CLOCK; LOSES LIFE CLEVELAND, Dec. 18—A hairy, black spider was recognized yesterday as the victor in a 21-day battle against the machine age.

Its ceaseless attempts to build a web on the moving hands of an alarm clock cost the spider's life—but it had succeeded in stopping the clock.

The spider was brought here from Akron, where its three-weeks struggle aroused nation-wide interest.

At the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, Director Harold L. Madison opened the clock, which had stopped, took out the lifeless spider, and the clock immediately started ticking again. The weight of the numberless shattered silken strands of web hanging from the clock's hands and evidences of the relentless fight had caused the clock to stop.

Madison said the spider died because it was unable to complete a web in which to hibernate. "It is the custom of these spiders to spin themselves a silken bag and hibernate for the season," Madison said. "Evidently this one tried to do it on one of the moving hands and was defeated. Failure to have her nest ready when time came for hibernation caused her death."

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

"Is it possible to be like Christ?" was the question that formed the subject of the morning sermon by the Rev. A. C. Vincent, D. D., yesterday. Taking as the basis of his thought part of Romans 8:29, "For whom he foreknew, he also fore-ordained to be conformed to the image of His son," the speaker called to the utter confidence of St. Paul in man's possibility of redemption and improvement. "St. Paul believed it—because God believes it, and it is safe to believe what God believes!"

The story of the world is a wonderful record of hidden values brought to light and developed. No less is the story of mankind a record of such possibilities. Through the sacrifice of Christ man's possibilities are set free, through the imitation of Christ they are developed.

An interesting feature of the morning music was the singing of Dykes' "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," by the full choir, with the solos taken by Mrs. A. C. Vincent, Mr. V. L. Dingwell and Miss Davida Baker.

A large evening congregation heard Dr. Vincent in a thoughtful sermon on "Jesus at the Well." The evening music included Mendelssohn's "But the Lord is Mindful of His Own," and Turner's "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night."

Canon Malone gave notice yesterday that Archbishop Worrell, Primate of all Canada, together with leaders of other denominations had issued a call to Prayers for the first week in January. It is hoped the daily services at the Cathedral will therefore be specially well attended. During the week the Cathedral will be decorated with spruce for Christmas.

their Christmas purchasing campaign. Queen Mary was making a few final purchases before returning to Sandringham for the holidays. Queen Maud, who is the sister-in-law of Queen Mary, is here on one of her frequent visits, and Queen Alexandra is visiting London with King Christian.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 18—Gone is that haze of early morning sleepers—the clink of milk bottles. Delivery of milk and other food products before 6 a. m. is prohibited by ordinance. The sponsor said accident prevention was the aim in view of curtailed street lighting ordered for economy's sake.
