

Children Cry for Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

100,000 Spent on Funeral

WONDERFUL SPECTACLE WITH OVER 25,000 TAKING PART
(From Hong Kong Daily Press)
Hong Kong witnessed a wonderful spectacle in its streets on Saturday morning—one which saved the essential onlookers some conception of the large part which mythology plays in the lives of the people in the Celestial Land. Those who saw it will long remember the unusual scenes—the jostling crowds—on some roads clustered like ants, the wonderful funeral paraphernalia, the painted girls, the yellow garb of Taoist priests, the picturesque coffins, the white robed and cowled mourners, the discordant native music, the little Chinese boys and girls staggering under the burden of the tributes carried in the procession.
It was the funeral procession of Mrs. Kam, the mother of Mr. Kam Chuanam, the chief manager of the Canton Nanyang Tobacco Co., and the wife of the gentleman who started the firm. Having lived for 70 years, and risen from dire poverty to be one of the richest Chinese women in Hong Kong, she died on February 22nd. The remains were conducted to the Tung Wah Hospital Mortuary, where they will be kept until the tungshui is favorable for the interment. In the meantime, funeral processions on a similar scale to those held in Hong Kong on Saturday, will take place in Canton and Shanghai.

The procession was about three and a half miles long, and those "authorized" to take part in it numbered between 25,000 and 30,000. It took just about two hours to pass a given point. The sum of $100,000 was spent on the funeral. It is claimed that it was the biggest procession that has ever taken place in Hong Kong.
There were two coffins, one perhaps intended to cheat the devil, who was assumed to follow the coffin, which was the fake. The real coffin was carried by 40 coolies in red livery and sailor hats. The employees of the firm, men and women, marched in their thousands, the sight of the women and girls marching in such an orderly manner, each with a handkerchief pinned to her breast, being a very impressive one. Many of them walked that day more than they had ever done in their lives. There were five bands playing European music, and over three dozen bands of native musicians. The girls specially trained to do duty at weddings were at the funeral in much simpler garb than they usually wear. The mourners professional and genuine, numbered nearly two hundred. A mysterious looking canopy of white cloth towering high in the air, contained four women mourners, close relatives of the deceased lady.

TWO ISLANDS FOR ESKIMOS' SOLE USE

Banks and Victoria Islands, in the far north of Canada, are to be preserved for the native Eskimos, according to an order-in-council, which forbids trapping and hunting there by foreign sportsmen. Many trappers who have planned a three-years' stay on Banks Island will be forced to leave.

CANADA'S AIR FORCE

A Canadian Air Force is to be formed immediately, and the personnel will be drawn from volunteers from the ranks of ex-officers and airmen of the Royal Air Force resident in Canada. These will train at centres which will be in operation all the year round, and officers and airmen enlisted in the new force will spend at least one month out of every twenty-four in active training, receiving pay and travelling expenses during the active period.
The force probably will be limited in the beginning to about 5,000, inclusive of all ranks, and the training centres will not number more than two for the whole Dominion. The Government wishes to avoid an expensive permanent organization. The organization of the force will be placed in the hands of Canadians who have had experience at home and on the war front, in flying, and who are interested in building up a Canadian air militia which can be readily extended and mobilized in an emergency. The age limit is set at about 30 for junior officers and 38 for senior officers.

THOUGHT NOTHING COULD AID HIM BUT HAS GAINED EIGHTEEN POUNDS ON TANLAC

"To be quite frank, I didn't have much faith in Tanlac when I started on it, but now after giving it a fair trial, I don't know how to say enough in its favor," said Sir Thomas I. Lively of Gaston Road, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, when speaking at the Tanlac representative at Kinley's drug store in Halifax, recently.
"Ever since I was a boy I have had a weak stomach and suffered from indigestion, and of late years it had got much worse. My food always used to turn sour, bloated me with gas so that I could hardly breathe, and cause me such severe cramping pains in the pit of my stomach, that I could hardly keep at my work. I was always badly constipated, had dull heavy headaches almost every day, and spells of dizziness. When I lay down at night, I was so restless that my stomach would seem to press up into my throat and almost choke me; many a night I have had to walk the floor for hours in my effort to get relief, and some times would not get a wink of sleep all night. I went down in weight from a hundred and eighty-five pounds to a hundred and fifty-five, and got so weak that I would actually stagger and almost fall down at times. I was often off work for a week or two at a time, and about two years ago I was so bad that I had to knock off work for six months. For twenty-four years I have been trying to find something to relieve this indigestion, but nothing seemed to help me until I tried Tanlac. "As I've said, I didn't have much faith in it when I started, and even when I had finished the first bottle, I was thinking that it was no better than all the other medicines I had tried. But I kept on taking it, and I am mighty glad that I did, for it made a new man of me. I have a fine appetite, can eat anything, and my indigestion and stomach trouble seem entirely gone. All signs of sourness, gas or cramping pains have disappeared, I am no longer constipated, and the headaches are a thing of the past. I sleep like a top now, and each morning get up feeling like a man refreshed. I have only been taking Tanlac for five weeks, but I have gained eighteen pounds in weight already, and haven't enjoyed such health for years past. I'm on deck for duty every day now, and my work is a pleasure instead of torture. I don't hesitate to recommend Tanlac as the best of all medicines for indigestion."
Tanlac is sold in Charlottetown by Reddin Bros., in Montague by H. J. Mabon and by the leading druggists in every town.

The fundamental simplicity of the American aborigine is illustrated best in the Indian myths and legends which have come down to us, asserted Dr. Rudolph Bieder in a recent address before the Wisconsin Archaeological Society.
"These myths," Dr. Bieder said, "can not be translated into pretty phrases, as in that case the simple beauty of the original is lost."
"There is a rather interesting legend concerning the origin of the Mandan tribe. It says that once the Mandans lived underground in a cave, from which a large vine grew. One young warrior climbed up this vine one day, and liked the country so well that he induced several of his tribesmen to follow him up the vine into the world outside. Several chiefs and warriors did so, as well as many women, but when a fat woman tried to climb out of the cave, against the counsel of the chiefs, the vine broke and the rest of the Mandan tribe had to remain underground. This fable may account for the fact that the Mandans were a relatively small tribe and also for the antipathy to fat women."

THEY LIVED THE SIMPLE LIFE

OUR FOREFATHERS KNEW NOTHING OF LUXURY BUT THEY WERE HAPPY AND CONTENTED

The wearing of overalls by both men and women as a protest against the high prices of other kind of clothing is spreading all over the continent, and we can see if it is persisted in, a crying spell for the clothes profiteers. Why not coarser and cheaper clothing? Our forefathers wore such and they were as good, as we are, if not a good deal better.
They knew nothing of New York styles and Paris fashions. Everything they wore was grown on the farm, and manufactured on the farm, saving perhaps hats and bonnets. To be sure, they wore store paper collars and silk neck handkerchiefs. They wore the common grey cloth, clothes for every day and the black fine cloth clothes for Sunday, the cowhide boots and shoes for every day and the calfskin shoes and boots for Sunday, every stitch of which, every bit of it, was grown and manufactured on the farm. Combines, monopolies and profiteers were unheard of in those days.
Our parliamentary representatives wore clothing of that kind, and even the clergymen, doctors, lawyers and school teachers. It cost a member of parliament the price of a pair of fat cattle every year to pay his expenses while attending the provincial parliament in Halifax. Eggs at one cent each were current money. Four eggs for a fig of tobacco, one egg for a dammed, twenty eggs for a dozen of herring, forty for a pound of tea, and ten for a pound of brown sugar, and if the post-office happened to be in the district store, then three eggs paid for a postage stamp. There was a tannery and shoemaker's shop, a wheelwright and carpenter in every district. In those days the dead were buried in coffins, not caskets, and the district carpenter made the coffins, and the whole countryside, even in seed and harvest time, attended the funeral.
The Bible, other books and the newspapers were read by the light of home made candles. The fiddle was the most common musical instrument and the choruses in the churches were led by the man with the tuning fork, a piece of steel, which he struck, the sound giving the pitch.
Hearts of beech trees, that is, slabs from them were used in many instances to make monuments for the dead. One of these may yet be seen in the Truro cemetery.

MYRIAD OF SNOWBALLS

A singular phenomenon, reported to science by L. E. Woodman, was witnessed last March around Bangor and Orono, Maine. A four-inch fall of snow was followed by high wind, and occasional gusts caught up large flakes and rolled them over in the damp top layer, forming a myriad of snowballs from two inches to nearly two feet in diameter. The triangular trail of one was 36 feet long. The balls were largest on downward slopes, and a measured one had a horizontal diameter of 20 inches and a vertical diameter of 14 inches.
