It's Purity Means Strength

Rich, pure cocoanut and palm oils are skilfully blended into Sunlight—making it the most efficient of all laundry soaps.

Chip half a cake of Sunlight into your washer, stir into a lather, then put in your clothes and start the machine. You will have the snowiest, sweetest and cleanest wash you ever saw, for the dirt just runs away in the rinsing.

HOTEL DINNER.—An enjoyable program was put on at the Victoria Hotel yesterday, comprising solos by Miss Wright, a recitation, Miss Purcell, a violin solo by Mr. Winning and excellent selections by the Casino Orchestra. The dining room was appropriately decorated in red, white and blue and the dinner was enjoyed by a large number of guests.

FOOTBALL MEETING—A meeting of the Abegweit Club and all interested in football is being held this evening at 7.30 p.m. in the League of the Cross rooms This game deserves enthusiastic boosting and it should be remembered that this week will see two good games by local teams against the St. Francis Xavier crack team. On Wednesday they will meet the Abegweits and on Thursday the St. Dunstan's team

HOG GRADING UNDER WAY.—Farmers in the province, says Mr. A. W. Peterson, District Sheep and Swine Promoter, stand to benefit by the new regulations for the grading of live hogs because the large bulk offered for sale are of bacon type, mostly Yorkshires, and if put on the market within the approved weights will receive the premium. On Prince Edward Island this year it is roughly estimated that there will be 30,000 hogs. About 24,000 of these will be slaughtered. Mr. Harold M. Clay, B. S. A., has been appointed Hog Grader for Prince Edward Island. The grading regulations started Monday, October 30th, and Mr. Clay is now at work.

LARGE FOX ENTRIES.—Prince Edward Island will be well represented at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair to be held at Toronto from the 22nd to the 29th of this month. Three carloads of livestock (other than foxes) and two car loads of foxes will leave here on the 18th, connecting with the Ocean Limited at Sackville. A sleeper will be put on the train at Tormentine for the convenience of Islanders going to Toronto. It is expected that between fifty and a hundred people will go from this provinle. Is and dairy cattle, which will be a large part of the live stock shipment, are expected to stand high when the results of the judging are announced. Up to date there have been four hundred and twenty-two foxes entered for the fox exhibition in connection with the fair. Of these 209 are from Summerside district, 109 from Charlottetown district, 16 from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia 84 from Ontario and Quebec and 4 from the United States.

Hall-Mills Murder Mystery Clearing

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 1—The mystery in the presence of the two automobiles—one an old fashioned high-back model, the other a small roadster—in De Russey's lane near the Phillip's farm on the night when the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills were murdered, has been cleared up in the preparations to place the entire case before the Grand Jury, authorities said tonight. The lifting of the veil which has shrouded this angle of the case, it was said by Special Detective Mason, finds the story told as an eye-witness by Mrs. Jane Gibson, farmer woman, unchanged. Her statement to the authorities that she saw two men and two women in noisy argument under the apple tree where the bodies of the rector and the choir singer later were found, and saw a man fire several shots, still stands, the authorities assert.

More, it is said that her account is materially strengthened in several aspects by the bringing to light of new evidence contributed to the case by two men, who were near the lane on the night of the murder. Mrs. Gibson in support of her claim that she could identify the characters in the drama which she claimed she chanced upon while riding about the country in seach of thieves who had looted her barn, had said that in turning about on the narrow lane the head lights of one of the automobiles accidentally flashed upon a powerfully built man with a bushy moustache and a woman in a grey coat. Authorities declined to make public the identity of the new witnesses, or divulge other details which they said led to clearing up the mystery of the autmobiles. Detectives expressed doubt that this angle of the case would even be revealed to the Grand Jury as the force of introducing it as brand new evidence at the trial, which is hoped will result from the work of the inquisitorial body, is considered of the highest importance Deputy Attorney General Mott, special prosecutor for the State, is expected in Somerville tomorrow to confer with Supreme Court Justice Parker on the matter of presenting the case to the jury. Three indictments it is said against a woman and two men will be asked. The jury probably will begin its inquiry on Monday.

HOTEL IMPROVEMENT.—Mr A.J. Rollings has had the interior of his hotel at Orby Point, North Rustico in the hands of the painters and decorators for the past few weeks. This popular seaside resort has now all modern conveniences including a new pipeless furnace, just installed which will insure to the traveller comfor and warmth in zero weather.

THREE SICK MEN—In reply to a telegraphic message for assistance from the three light-house keepers at Bird Rocks, the Canadian Government cruiser Margaret left Charlottetown last week and took the men on board yesterday. Capt. Taylor of the Marine Department here received word that the men, who belong to the Magdalen Islands, are ill and are being taken to Charlottetown. The Margaret is expected to arrive this morning.

DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT.—In reference to the action of a number of boys on the roof of the Y. M. C. A. during the Armistice services the Directors have investigated the matter and found that whilst the Secretary, who is a returned soldier, and the Physical Director had dismissed the classes and closed the gymnasium and game room, in order to attend the services and instructed the boys to attend as well, a number reentered the building and made their way to the roof, without the knowledge of the management. The Directors feel that an apology should be made by the boys (many of whom are not members) to the public. The boys who are members have been suspended.

OF INTEREST TO POULTRYMEN

Record of Experiments Conducted by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms.

After glancing through the report for 1921 of the Dominion Poultry Husbandman, Mr. F. C. Elford, one is almost inclined to say "Inquire within about everything regarding poultry keeping," for in the thirty-four pages of which the report consists, a vast amount of information is given about prices, about incubation, about brooding, about feeding, and as regards pedigree breeding, housing, egg-laying contests, diseases of fowl, and of extension work in Quebec and Northern Ontario. The progress is recorded of poultry breeding and keeping at all the twenty-two farms and stations comprising the Dominion Experimental Farms system. While at present there are two or even three breeds of birds on some of the farms, tests are going forward to determine which is the best single bird for each locality. At the beginning of the present year, eighteen of the farms kept Barred Rocks, ten kept Wyandottes, and three, Leghorns and Rhode Island Reds. Three of the farms paid some attention to turkeys and four to both geese and ducks.

Tables of special interest contained in the report are those recording prices received each month for eggs at each individual station, and the yearly average price received by farmers in the different provinces. All three show that not only have the prices for eggs been generally well maintained but that, during the last seven years, a considerable increase has taken place. The average price in 1915 was 29½ cents per dozen and, in 1921, Ottawa excepted, it was 46 cents.

But interesting as quotations of prices are admitted to be, poultry raisers will be quite as much concerned, and possibly more, in the records of breeding work that the Report contains, of the influence of climate upon rearing, on the cost of breeding by different methods, on the results of experiments in drinks and feeds, of fattening for market, of the cost and best methods of raising pullets, of experiments in feeding layers in the five winter months, of experiments in feeding grain to layers, of investigations regarding roup and chicken pox and the best remedies for such diseases, and of many other matters of prime importance to the practical poultryman.

LAST MARQUESS OF BREADALBANE LIES IN FINLARIG SWARD

Higher Title Lapses and Heir Will be Earl Breadalbane. Great Scottish Noble.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The funeral of the last Marquess of Breadalbane took place at Finlarig, Killin, yesterday afternoon. By the express wish of Lord Bradalbane, his body was buried in a grave made in a green sward adjoining the family mausoleum in which for 300 years the Campbells of Glenorchy have been laid. The coffin was removed from Glasgow on Saturday and placed in the mausoleum, being borne to the grave by tenants on the estate The Bishop of Argyll and the Isles assisted by the Rev. G.W. Mackay the parish minister at Killin, conducted the service.

Among the large gathering were tenant farmers and Highland lairds many in Highland dress and representatives of public bodies in Perthsire and Argyllshire of which Lord Breadalbane was a member of the Caledonian Railway Company, of which he was the senior director, and of the estate workers. The pall-bearers were the Duke of Montrose, Mr. Iain Campbell, who now succeeds to the earldom of Breadalbane, the Marquess of Graham, Colonel Lord Malise Graham, D.S.O., M.C, Cameron, of Lochiel, Lord Greville, Colonel Campbell Heathcrote (nephew) and Major Bennet, secretary of the Argyllshire Territoral Force Association. The Duke of Argyll was represented by his cousin, Mr Ian Campbell, and Lord Lamington was also represented.

The Marquess died in the Central Station Hotel, Glasgow, on Thursday afternoon. He left Dalmally on Monday to attend a railway meeting, but became ill in the train, and on arrival in Glasgow was removed to the hotel Lady Breadalbane was with him.

Great Scottish Noble

Gavin, Marquess of Breadalbane, had recently completed his seventy-first year, having been born at Fermoy on April 9, 1851. He was the eldest son of Captain John Alexander Gavin Campbell of the 1st Royal Regiment, who had succeeded his own father, a few months earlier, in the Perthshire estate of Glenfalloch, inherited from a certain William Campbell of Glenfalloch, an uncle of the first Earl of Breadalbane, who died in 1648

In November, 1862, the fifth Earl and second Marquess of Breadalbane died childless, and the vast estates—over four hundred thousand acres—of the "Black" Campbells, with a string of Scottish titles, were claimed by his distant kinsman, Captain Campbell of Glenfalloch. His claim was opposed by a cousin, but was finally upheld by Lords Westbury and Chelmsford (Lord Wensleydale dissenting) in May, 1863, when Captain Campbell duly became Earl of Breadalbane and Holland, Viscount of Tay and Pentland and Lord Glenurchie, Benederaloch, Ormelie, and Weick, in the peerage of Scotland, and a baronet of Nova Scotia. He did not long enjoy these honors, for he died in March, 1871, when his son, who was still a minor, succeeded.

Entered Public Life.

About the middle of last century a determined effort was made to inducet he noblemen and other magnates of Scotland to educate their sons at the historic University of St. Andrews, and there the late Lord Breadalbane had been duly sent. He was not long in entering public life, and, to the Liberal party, was in March 1873, when still only 21, created Baron Breadalbane of Kenmore and appointed a Lord in Waiting. his new peerage giving him a seat in the House of Lords. His party soon went out of office, but on its return in 1880 he was sworn a Privy Councillor and appointed Treasurer of the House hold an office which he filled for five years. He was then, in July, 1885, created Earl of Ormelie and Marquess of Breadalbane, choosing the titles previously enjoyed by his kinsmen, the fourth and fifth earls.

Before entering the House of Lords, Lord Breadalbane had married, in July 1872, Lady Alma Imogen Leonora Carlotta Graham youngest daughter of the fourth Duke of Montrose and of his famous Duchess, and sister of the present Duke. In 1892, when Mr Gladstone for the last time took office, Lord Breadalbane became Lord Steward of the Household, and in the three following years, as Lord High Commissioner to its General Assembly, he and Lady Breadalbane, with conspicuous success, tempered the wind of Erastianism to the Church of Scotland. In 1894 he acquired the Garter, and in 1907, after another Liberal victory at the polls, was made Keeper of the Privy Seal of Scotland. In 1914 he succeeded the late Duke of Argyll as Lord Lieutenant of that county, where, as in his native Perthshire, he had already filled numerous offices and rendered much valuable service to local government.

Indeed, in the long intervals of opposition Lord Breadalbane was principally occupied in the management of his vast estates which at one time extended over 234,000 acres in Perthshire and 204,000 in Argyll, and were exceeded only by those of the Dukes of Sutherland and Buccleuch.

Marquessate Expires.

Lord Breadalbane leaves no child, and the marquessate again expires. By a curious provision of doubtful validity, in the patent creating the Earldom of Breadalbane, that title, with the Viscounty of Tay and the Glenrouchie and Benederaloch Baronies, is to expire should the patrimonial estate of Genorchy be alienated, the less markedly territorial titles of Earl of Holland, Viscount of Pentland and Lord Ormelie and Weick remaining. The heir to these Scottish titles is Mr. Iain Edward Herbert Campbell, the only son of Lord Breadalbane's brother, the late Captain Ivan Campbell, (who died in 1917) and of Lady Margaret Campbell, who is a sister of Lord Normanon. Mr. Ivan Campbell is unmarried and his heir-presumptive—again a distant cousin—is Captain Charles William Boreland Campbell, M.C., R.F.A., whose father, the late Major-General Charles William Campbell, unsuccessfully claimedt he earldom in 1862. Lord Breadalbane's only sister, Lady Eva Campbell, married in 1876 Mr. J.C. Heathcote, and has an only son, Lieutenant Colonel John Robert Campbell Heathcoe, late of the Cameron Highlanders and Royal Air Force. Despite his years, Lord Breadalbane died at an earylier age than the majority of his predecessors. The first three earls attained the remarkable ages of 81, 89, and 85 respectively, while the fourth, who was raised to a marquessate in his 69th year, died actually on the eve of his 82nd birthday.

DEVICE SAID TO TAKE ALL DANGERS OUT OF NAVIGATION ON THE OCEAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.— During the next week there will be on exhibition in New York, an invention, or rather an improvement on an invention which in the opinion of experts in the United States Navy will take all the dangers out of ocean navigation. It is an addition to the radio compass which permits a three-point bearing to be taken, no matter where on the earth's surface the observer may be.

One free arm is swung above the dial of the compass which is an aerial, and this, of course, receives at the greatest intensity when pointing directly at a sending station ashore. When the navigator then desires to get his "fix" all he has to do is to circulate the arm slowly in azimuth and note the intensity shown. Directly a maximum is registered, and direction of the arm over the compass card shows where the station is located.

This bearing being recorded, and the name of the station being ascertained by call and answer, the arm is swung again until another bearing is found by similar maximum intensity and call. A third is similarly found, and then it is easy to locate the "fix."

Navigators have an instrument called "Three arm protractor." It consists of three long straight edge rulers fastened at one end with a head at the middle of which is a hole large enough to insert a pencil. This hole is directly in line with each of the inside edges of the three rulers and clamp screw fixes one or all so that the swing is stopped.

Laying this protractor on the chart so that the outside ruler reaches to the radio station first found, the second ruler finds the second station and the third finds the third. Where the pencil sent through the hole in the head of the instrument touches the chart,
