GREAT ACTIVITY AT ST. PAUL'S CLUB S'SIDE

St. Paul's Club, Summerside presents an animated appearance these evenings when the large membership of the C. Y. M. U. attend and help themselves of the opportunity of the various athletic and gymnasium games. St. Paul's Hall is exceptionally well equipped for health and has among other things shower baths for the boys, the principal games and there are all quotas of devotees for each game.

The largest league ever formed by the Club is the Volley Ball League, the first game of which was played on Monday night. There are twelve teams in the League and the games will be played every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. An evidence of the evenness of the teams may be gleaned from the results of the first game on Monday night at the conclusion of which only one point being between the contestants. The Granites and the Oxford's played, the latter winning 66-55. The line-ups were as follows:

Ring ye, ring the welcome bell,
Bide not dawdling ray,
Send the swinging sound to tell
Coffin, cottage, cloister-cell—
'Tis the happy day!

Hark! the wild uprising joy,
Hasting naked feet,
Eager girl and bounding boy
Scrambling out the stockinged toy
And the dainty sweet.

Listen to the jingling bells—
Sleighs are glancing by,
Sweeping fast to bracing fells,
Whirling on their fairy dells,
Under dazzling sky.

Glory, as a Polar scene,
Everywhere obtains,
Crisp deep of Arctic green,
Furs of white for garments green,
Where the cedar reigns.

Where no trail of busy feet
Marks the pathway fair,
Where the squirrel hath warm retreat,
And the skink's lonely "tweet"
Doth the Frost-King dare.

Hark! the solemn, sacred psalm,
—Call to praise and prayer:
Songs of joy the lips unseal,
Reverence bends in pure appeal—
The Lord of Jure is there.

MERRY SOULS.

O you merry, merry Souls,
Christmas is a-coming,
We shall have flowing Bowls,
Dancing, piping, drumming.

Then for your Christmas box,
Sweet Plum Cakes and Honey,
Delicate Holland Snacks,
Kisses sweet as Honey.

Delicate Mixed Pies,
To feast every Virgin,
Capon and goose likewise,
Brawn and a Dish of Sturgeon.

Hey, for the Christmas Ball,
Where we shall be jolly,
Jiggling short and tall,
Kate, Dick, Ralph and Molly.

Hodge shall dance with Prue,
Keeping Time with kisses,
We'll have a Jolly Crew,
Of Sweet-smelling Misses,

The fireplace is no longer exclusively confined to the home in New York. It has found its place all over town in the show window of grills, restaurants and chop houses. Scores of new establishments use the same appeal to the passing patron-potential—a blazing hearth, on top of which steams juicy roasts browned to a turn.

A fortune in nickels in daily dropped in the New York subway turnstiles, which are unprotected and in the open, and the method of removal is commonplace. Occasionally an attendant walks up to a turnstile, sets a canvas bucket beneath the money box, turns a lever and the nickels spill into the bucket. He also operates unprotected.

MRS. JOHN MCLEOD

On the 5th inst, there were conveyed to their last resting place, from the home of her brother, Rod MacLeod, the remains of Mrs. John MacLeod of Quincy, Mass., and placed in the Hartsville cemetery. It was the final visit to the old home where she was born over eighty years ago. Her two sons, Dr. John M. and William J. accompanied the remains here, although the weather made travelling almost impassable, many came together to honor in her death, one who invariably enjoyed the love and esteem of a large constituency in her native province, and out of it. Her distinguished appearance, her unassailed life, her cheerfulness, her ministry of love and devotion to her family and friends made it a tearful group, who looked for the last time into the face of her, who they loved so well. Her esteemed husband, preceded her eight years ago.

She is survived by a family of five sons and three daughters, William J., Alex., Dr. J. M., Mori, and Newton all residing in Quincy, Mass.

Mrs. Rev. J. M. Mackenzie of Charlottetown, Mrs. A. D. Martin of Quincy, and Mrs. Rev. Dr. A. B. MacLeod of Carville, Oregon.

All prosperous and worthy of their noble parentage.

She spent the last of her years in the home of her youngest son, Newton.

Let us not unduly mourn the departure of those who have lived the noble life, and in the end passed with unflinching faith into his presence, who speaking to his sorrowing disciples said: "The soul that is here will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am—there you may be also."

Death Of Mr. Benjamin Gates

Citizens were shocked to learn of the sudden death yesterday of Mr. Benjamin Franklin Gates, the well known and widely respected proprietor of Gates Mills, situated in Charlottetown on the North River Road, just on the outskirts of Charlottetown. Mr. Cutcliffe, of Charlottetown, who was with Mr. Gates in the sleigh, saw him suddenly drop the reins and lean back against the seat. As there were a number of sleighs on the road, Mr. Cutcliffe called to Mr. James G. MacLeod, of Hampshire, and Mr. Bryenton, of Union Road, and they at once lifted Mr. Gates out of the sleigh, unfastened his collar, and telephoned for Dr. Mackenzie, who in a very short time arrived on the scene. In the meantime Mr. Gates had been carried to Mr. Bryenton's sleigh, but before the doctor's arrival he had died. Mr. MacLeod telephoned the sad news to Mr. Gates' household, and the body was brought by Mr. Bryenton's sleigh to the city, where Mr. MacLeod and Mr. Bryenton conveyed it to MacLean's Undertaking Parlours.

WHAT DOES CHRISTMAS MEAN TO YOU?

Do you know what Christmas means to me?
What the bells of Christmas tell?
A little child all undefiled,
Came down with us to dwell.

Do you know what Christmas tells?
What the chiming of Christmas tell?
A story deep and a love so sweet,
Yes, a Crucifix as well.

Do you know what Christmas says to me?
What it whispers from its bell?
Kneel in calm pain to palm,
At Love's perpetual well.

Do you know what Christmas means to me?
What the chiming of Christmas tell?
It tells my heart of the endless part
Of the child who came to dwell.

SHE NEVER READ NEWSPAPERS.

"They knew a world but ten miles wide
And cared not what befell outside—
Once upon a time there were people—
Multitudes of them who did not concern themselves at all with the affairs of others. They lived in a world bounded by their own tribal interests.
They had not troubles other than those that were related to food, clothing and shelter.

They were content with narrow horizons.
The sky came down all about them.
They lived in the immediate contentment of ignorance. They knew not the happiness of the animals of the field.

There are a few such people right in the midst of us today.

Not long ago there came to a lawyer's office an amazing curiosity—a woman who never reads the newspapers.

She admitted it.

"I have never read the newspapers," she complained that she had been victimized by a book-shop operator. She had lost out the savings of years of toil.

"Have you heard about such places and such operators?" the attorney asked. "The newspapers have been full of their doings for days."

"I never read the newspapers," the woman answered.

"There you are. Here is a woman, apparently in the midst of us, living in primitive times.

The horizons come down about her head.

I have more to say than anybody else about how long I shall live and how wide I shall live and how big I shall live.

I have the making of my own horizons and so have you. We can set them down where we like.

Be interested in things. Take some part in affairs. It is the way to live out the full in the years that you have. Make a dent in your horizon. Expand them. Push them out.

Death Of Mr. Benjamin Gates

The particulars are as follows:—He was driving to town yesterday morning with a load of pork. When opposite Mr. Stimmings' residence on the North River Road, just on the outskirts of Charlottetown, Mr. Cutcliffe, of Charlottetown, who was with Mr. Gates in the sleigh, saw him suddenly drop the reins and lean back against the seat. As there were a number of sleighs on the road, Mr. Cutcliffe called to Mr. James G. Fish Meal For Home and Abroad

In a recent issue of The Telegraph-Journal a correspondent writing from Deer Island drew attention to fish wastes and mentioned the possibilities offered by the manufacturers of fish meal. In this connection an article entitled German Trade in Fish Meal, by the Canadian Trade Commissioner in Hamburg, published in the Commercial Intelligence Journal of 4th instant, comes to invite speculation whether we in the Maritimes are not letting slip an opportunity of utilizing more fully one of our natural resources, our fish.

It appears that Germany offers a steady market for fish meal and imports regularly from Great Britain and Norway. Fish meal is used for feeding to poultry and other livestock, notably hogs during the fattening period. At the moment there is in Germany a strong market for the surplus of supply and prices have soared; but apart from that there is at all times a steady market with good chances for those who could enter into contracts for certain minimum quantities over long periods. Alternatively agents in Hamburg canvass offers, and possibly obtain high prices on a rising market; but are liable to experience the opposite in slacker times. At present Norway supplies sixty per cent. of Germany's imports, Great Britain thirty-five per cent. and the United States three and one-half, and the imports during the first nine months of this year total nearly 51,600 metric tons.

Although Germany imports from Great Britain, the latter imports from Norway, particularly as regards air-dried cod meal, and Germany itself produces fish meal. On the German market appearance counts for as much almost as analysis, the white flaky meal having the preference. The Trade Commissioner's article goes most exhaustively into details of the kinds of meal imported systems of manufacture, market requirements, packing, quotations and methods of trading and should be read in the original by all interested in promoting this industry.

Most encouraging is the section devoted to "Openings for Canada". Not only is it possible to use the offal of edible fish in the manufacture of meal, but other fishes may be turned to account, as the following indicates: "In addition to white fish meal from cod and herring, and pilchard meal, it is possible that business could be developed with Germany in fish meal from Canada manufactured from other kinds of fish. The dogfish caught in British Columbia waters produces a meal with a fairly satisfactory analysis, although high in fat. Offers have been received in Hamburg from the United States for salmon waste from Alaska and importers would be very interested to receive full particulars as to what kinds of salmon offal might be available in Canada. In conclusion, it may be pointed out that although high prices can only be paid for fish meal conforming to the market requirements, an outlet can be found in Germany for nearly all kinds of fish meal, high and low."

Although this article is concerned with the German market the question suggests itself, are we utilizing to the full this easily obtained food for our own agricultural consumption? In Germany fish meal is rated as invaluable for pig feeding, in Scandinavia it is used for all live stock, and in Great Britain largely for poultry. In all these lines our farmers are interested. Are they consuming all they might of a valuable food rich in protein and phosphates a food obtainable on their own coasts? There is a foreign market in Germany; is the home market fully supplied?

Death Of Mr. Samuel Lowe

Mr. Samuel Lowe, one of the best known citizens of Charlottetown passed away at his residence, corner of Hillsboro and Easton Streets, at 6.45 yesterday morning.

Until four years ago he enjoyed robust health and manly vigor. Then he was stricken with illness and laid aside from the active duties of life. Although able to move about the house, yet it was evident to all that his days of activity were over.

Ten days ago, Mr. Lowe took a weak turn and he steadily, notwithstanding all that could be done, grew weaker, until death opened the portal for his departure to the Better Land.

The late Mr. Lowe was born in Charlottetown, a son of William Lowe and Eliza Semmer. He was a contractor and builder, and his two sons, namely, Samuel and Henry, followed in his footsteps, and engaged in the same occupation.

The name of Lowe Brothers is known amongst our builders and people generally. Many fine structures and houses innumerable here and builders, their honesty and integrity in business, and they will stand as lasting monuments to memory while the capital of the province endures.

Mr. Samuel Lowe no, only was a builder in a material sense, but he was also a builder of character. He enjoyed the friendship and regard of all and deservedly so. He was the type of citizen of which any community might well be proud, a prominent Mason, a Son of England, a member of the Odd Fellows, and also an active and zealous member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. In his daily walk and conversation he exemplified the genuine Christian.

His wife predeceased him nearly four years ago. From this union were born: Horace, Manager of the Bank of Rainy River, Ontario, Samuel, now farming at Lake Saskatchewan, Alberta, Mrs. E. J. Duffy and Miss Eleanor Lowe, teacher at Prince of Wales College, both of Charlottetown. Three sons have passed away, John, Will and Vernon. John, who was a member of the First Mounted Rifles in the Canadian Forces, was killed in the War. One brother is also left, namely, Mr. Henry C. Lowe.

Thus, one by one the older residents of our fair city are being numbered with the great majority. They have left us legacies of useful lives and memories that they ever labored in the great Task Master's eye.

Among the buildings erected by Lowe Brothers in this city are the following: Cameron Block, The DesBrisay Block, owned by Hon. George B. Hughes, St. Paul's Church, Rectory and Parish Hall, Bank of Montreal, The Royal Bank, Central Christian Church, Heartz Memorial Hall, Fennel & Chandler's Store, Hodgson Memorial Chapel, Davis & Fraser's Cold Storage Plant, Pro-
