POWER OF THE PRESS

MONTREAL — (CP) — The power of the press is almost too much for Councillor Frank Hanley. Making a plea in council, directed to Executive Committee Chairman

J.O. Asselin, Hanley became irked because he couldn't attract Asselin's attention, Asselin continued to read the daily paper.

EDMONTON — (CP) — The traffic division of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has issued a report naming glaring headlights as an "important contributing factor in the increase of highway accidents." and headquarters of "K" division here is making a drive to enforce regulations concerning them.

Must Solve Own Problems Says Mr. McKinnon

Legislators should be prepared to give more leadership in solving Prince Edward Island problems of farming and fishing, in the opinion of Mr. Dougald MacKinnon, Fourth District of Queen's, in speaking in the Budget debate last week.

The best thing to do about the trade union matter, Mr. MacKinnon suggested, would be to "forget it". These unions were in the hands of a few dictatorial men. What he resented was that when the farmers of this Province tried to protect themselves, men outside the Province who were neither farmers nor laborers should step in and order the strikers around. "I give credit to the leader of the Opposition that he never attempted to capitalize on that issue," Mr. MacKinnon said. "He understood the problems of this Province too well to make an issue of it. I thought the thing was dead but it is being revived and kept up. The quicker we let it die the better. We can't live in this Province so long as there is a threat over our heads that we can be held up at the dictates of some men in New York or elsewhere."

He recalled that labor men in Charlottetown had asked for legislation two years ago, and they had been promised by both sides that their requests would be acceded to. "If we are going to have the labor men satisfied, we have got to show them that we are sincere in thinking about their welfare," he said. "But they will have to work within the bounds of the interests of this Province. Our problems are our own. Let us solve them and stand together."

Seeds of Communism

Mr. MacKinnon went on to quote from various sources, revealing the widespread underground activities of Communism, especially in the industrial field. "The seed is sown deeper in this country of ours than any man is aware of," he warned.

Mr. MacKinnon had been quoted by the Opposition as stating, at the Belfast nomination convention, that with the Ottawa agreements our provincial worries were over. "I don't deny that," he added.

But along with those words I also preached a caution. Now that we are out of the woods, let us proceed cautiously because if we ever get in financial jams again I don't believe that any man can go to Ottawa and get a better agreement. But you can give us all the funds there are in the Federal treasury, and we can dissipate them. I am glad to note that the Premier has uttered a word of warning that we have got to cut our suit according to our cloth.

"We have a very ambitious programme with respect to regional high schools—rural electrification, etc. These things are all very well, but if we have not the money let us figure very cautiously. Let us determine which of these projects will add most to our comforts and requirements, and stay within the bounds of our financial possibilities.

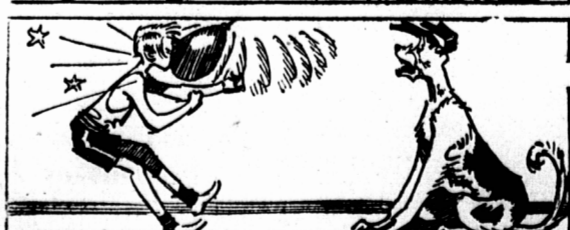

"When we took over in 1935 it took 13 per cent of our revenue to pay the interest on our debt; today it takes 9 per cent. That is the important thing. On ordinary expenditure we have a surplus of about $38,000. As long as we keep that there—and we carefully balance our capital debt, then we have nothing to worry about."

Mr. MacKinnon referred in critical terms to an organization which was supposed to be a co-operative but which he alleged was "just a subsidiary of an abattoir that operates outside this Province and lets ours go to pieces." His stand was that all should work together in the interests of island farmers and fishermen, and see that every product that is produced here is processed within the Province, giving island men work.

"Agriculture here," he said, "is working under a geographical disadvantage, and there is nothing that we can do about it. We have got to stand shoulder to shoulder and get leadership from the men in this House, instead of looking for some political advantage. We will find that that is pretty good politics in the end, for there is not a person in this Province but demands sincerity of action."

Fisheries

Mr. MacKinnon stressed the serious situation of the fishery industry. "I think that our efforts in this department have been directed along lines that have not been sound in the past. If it is going to be just a matter of doing it should not be handled through the Fishermen's Loan Board at all," he said. "My idea is that the Government has got to be prepared to do experimenting." When in Ottawa recently, he and Mr. Cox had received assurance that boats would be sent here to demonstrate improved methods of catching fish. When it is determined which method is most beneficial, the Government should be prepared to help expand the industry in that direction.

Mr. Saville said the Fishermen's Board had not given any role in the last six or seven years. "We were very careful in that respect," he said. "I don't think it is right to say that we gave them a role."

Mr. MacKinnon said he was dealing with the money which was spent in the past. "Any application that is up to me to O.K.," he added, "my name is not going to go on that paper until I see that there is not collusion between two parties to get something out of the Government that is not going to be returned. The money that is spent through this Board will have to be money to expand the industry. I believe sincerely that the fishing industry of this Province is not developed and that it is capable of sustaining with a fair standard of living double the number of people who are in it today.

"There have been two different surveys made of the scallop industry, but I think the area where this industry can be carried on most successfully has never been gone over. We have that under consideration now. This survey will be completed and I hope that in the near future the fishery industry will be in a much sounder and safer position than it is today."

Mr. Burge asked if it was the intention to secure boats to enable men to fish offshore as far as the Banks, or to create more intensive fishing along the shore line. Mr. MacKinnon: "Not off to the Banks, but further offshore than at present". A Danish type of dragger had been suggested, which could be operated as far as Anigonish or the Magdalen Islands.

POULTRY ITEMS OF INTEREST

JANUARY:—

Last season was Canada's heaviest producing poultry year. Poultry cold storage stocks at Jan. 31, exactly normal.

FEBRUARY:—

A month of brisk Canadian inter-provincial poultry trading. February, usually a quiet poultry month, saw the astounding figures of five million lbs. of poultry shipped to U. S. A.

MARCH:—

Of recent date, attracted by high U. S. A. prices, countless thousands of live hens moved over the border. Eventually Canadian officials had to put a slight check to this mass migration.

In so far as a careful reader of poultry news can find out Canadian farmers will buy fifty-five per cent of their accustomed baby chick requirements. At this late date nothing can be done to alter these figures to any appreciable extent.

If you have a nice brooder-house and stove, study up a bit on poultry prospects.

This hatchery has served you for thirty years, at all times boosting Island poultry and doing our best along with the others to face our poultry problems.

We sell nice chicks and respectfully solicit a share of your patronage.
