THE CHARLOTTETOWN GUARDIAN

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1911.

WILL THE RECIPROCIITY AGREEMENT BE RATIFIED?

Hitherto, while favoring the reciprocity agreement as one likely to be of mutual benefit to both the United States and Canada, and of especial benefit to Prince Edward Island and the Maritime Provinces, The Guardian has doubted whether it would receive the endorsement of Congress before the 4th of March. The time is now short and it is always risky to prophesy, but we have modified our views upon that point and we shall not be greatly surprised if Congress shall sanction the agreement.

The reasons for this hope are various. After the first surprise which was caused by the unexpected extent of the proposed changes, the agreement has been much more generally endorsed by the leading newspapers of the United States than was at first expected. Judged by these press opinions alone one might expect the ratification of the agreement, but it was frequently found that a popular verdict at the polls has been quite at variance with the weight of press opinion, either because the press was in advance of public sentiment, or from other causes.

It is not the ordeal of an immediate election, however, but the verdict of Representatives and Senators in Congress which the agreement has to face. And these Members and Senators are shrewd politicians, nearly equally divided between the two great political parties, but closely observant of popular opinion, and always having in mind the party advantage. This brings us to consider what would be the effect of the rejection of the agreement by the Republican majority, if they should combine against it.

We must bear in mind that the Republican party as the promoters and upholders of high protection have been met by the revolt of the people, including a section of their own party and the entire Democracy of the country against the high and increasing cost of living caused, as the people believe, by the tariff. From President Taft's point of view, this uprising must be met by some concession, and the reciprocity agreement is a concession in the least objectionable form that it can be made. Even the protected interests in the United States had rather consent to reciprocity than to a general reduction of the tariff all around.

If reciprocity were to be now rejected by the Republican party, supported as it is by the powerful influence of the President and his Cabinet, it would seem likely to promote a strong reaction against that party in the minds of the great body of consumers throughout the country and force a large body of Republicans into the Democratic ranks at the next election. And even the protected interests must see that the end would be not with such minor reductions of duties as reciprocity involves, but a much more sweeping reduction all along the line.

These and other considerations lead us now to think that the agreement may be ratified at Washington and so go into effect at no distant date. Of the result at Ottawa we have never been in doubt, despite the loud outcry raised in certain quarters in Canada. The leading Conservative organs are of course ranked strongly against reciprocity, but it is noteworthy that a good many of the Opposition newspapers, such as the Montreal Gazette, the Ottawa Citizen, the Ottawa Journal, the Toronto World and others, along with Mr. Monk, a leading Quebec Conservative, are so exceedingly mild in their criticisms as to show their belief in the general popularity of the reciprocity compact.

PAYMENT OF MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

The Imperial Parliament is now open in its first session and has a most important ministerial program before it, including the Veto Bill, for limiting the powers of the House of Lords and a bill for the payment of Members of the House of Commons. Hitherto the members of the British Parliament have been, from time immemorial, the unpaid servants of the nation. Excepting only those holding office in the Government the honor and distinction of holding their seats was their sole reward.

In other nations enjoying representative institutions, as in France, Germany, Italy, the United States and in all the British Dominions and Colonies over sea, the rule has been to pay the members of Parliament either an annual or sessional salary or indemnity, ranging from such small sums as the members of our Provincial Legislature receive, up to the $2,500 paid to our Senators and Members at Ottawa, and to much larger payments in other and more important national Parliaments.

The British system of gratuitous service had its distinction, certainly, and also some possible advantages, but the disadvantages were also considerable, and the plan was out of line with that adopted and approved by other nations of the civilized world. It made for centuries of the House of Commons a sort of gentlemen's club, and excluded almost entirely the poor man, or the man of moderate means from seeking or obtaining a seat in that body. Only poor men of the highest talents could obtain a seat, and if a seat were obtained he could ill afford to attend upon his duties during the very long sessions.

The change now to be brought about is the natural result of the repeated extensions of the voting franchise and the awakened desire of the plain people to be represented in Parliament by the best of their own class, rather than by the wealthy or the titled mediocrities who had so often been chosen in the past. It means less of culture, perhaps, in the British Parliaments that are to be hereafter, but it also means a truer representation of the people, by and for the people as we have it in Canada. We see no danger in the change, because the plan of paying representatives, as other officials of the country are paid for their public services has been tried all over the world and stands approved by experience.

THE PATRIOT IS WRONG.

Under the so-called modus vivendi American fishing vessels were allowed to fish in Canadian waters on payment of a license fee of $1.50 per ton of such vessels and were also permitted to purchase bait and supplies and to tranship their catch. This was not free fishing, but fishing under license. The American negotiators were desirous to secure free fishing, that is to have the above privileges without license. This the Canadian ministers very properly refused. The waters

"Bronchitis"

This is an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the air tubes in the lungs.

The disease begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness, and there is a dry, harsh, croupy cough.

After a few days mucous begins to be raised. This is at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color and is occasionally streaked with blood.

Cure the first symptoms of Bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and thus prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning to Consumption.

Mrs. D. J. McCormack, Cleveland, N.S., writes: "My little boy, two years old, caught a bad cold which developed into Bronchitis. He was so choked up he could hardly breathe. Reading about your wonderful medicine, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I decided to try a bottle, and with such good result I got another which completely cured him, without having a doctor. I cannot say too much in its praise and would not be without it in the house as I consider it a sure cure for Colds and Bronchitis."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

within the three mile limit and the fish therein are ours, as much as the soil of the shore, and the license assents and confirms our proprietary right.

The reciprocity agreement does not give American fishermen free fishing. It simply reduced the license fee from $1.50 per ton to the nominal sum of one dollar per vessel. Thus Canada still retains control and can seize unlicensed vessels and deal with them under Canadian law. What has been agreed to neither increases nor diminishes the privileges American fishermen have heretofore enjoyed in our waters. They are granted a reduction of the license fee and our fishermen are given in return a free market for their fish.

Fishing on the high seas, that is, beyond the territorial limit of a marine league from shore, has always been free to all the world. In the nature of things a license to catch fish can only refer to inshore fisheries, that is fisheries within the three mile limit.

SOCIAL EXTRAVAGANCE.

In Europe and America social extravagance has become a widespread vice of the age. The rapid accumulation of vast fortunes is America, quickened the pace and led to all sorts of expensive display, especially among the "new rich" who depended upon a show of wealth to conquer for themselves a place in the social circle to which they were not entitled by birth or culture. The vice has spread to the old world—or rather gained a new prominence where it already existed—in recent years.

"I should say that extravagance was a passport into society," wrote Mrs. Asquith recently. "This is not the language of some social satirist," says another writer, "but of no less well-informed a person than Mrs. Asquith, the wife of the Prime Minister. * * * But Mrs. Asquith's epigram does without doubt represent the facts fairly accurately." This then is the state of society in the United Kingdom as well as elsewhere and it is a very undesirable state of affairs.

Tomorrow will be polling day in the Second District of Queens. Now look out for a storm.

The angry vigor with which the fishing interests of Gloucester are attacking the reciprocity agreement affords sufficient evidence that Canadian fishing interests have not been jeopardised in the treaty. Gloucester would kill the agreement if it could, but the great body of consumers of fish want the duty taken off.
