VICTORIA W. I.

On February 4th, the members of Victoria Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. H. R. Frohlt. The president, president and Mrs. Stewart Inman acted as secretary for the evening. After the minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted, the president called on the convenors of the different committees to give reports. The reports were heard and new committees were appointed, namely: School, Mrs. Estelle Stewart and Mrs. Whitfield Howatt; Sick, Mrs. W. H. Dougherty and Mrs. Norman Boulter. Business in connection with the correspondence was discussed and agreed upon. This included the donations of $1.00 to the Cancer Society and $5.00 to the Canadian Aid to China, also that the remainder of the P. E. I. Hospital Subscription $50.00 be paid in March. Some plans were made concerning the Nursery Mat. Five members paid their dues. The collection amounted to $1.20. Two contests were presented by the programme committee, after which lunch was served to seventeen members and two visitors. The meeting then adjourned.

LIVING & LEISURE

Each room should be furnished to meet some real purpose. Kathryn Coyle selects a piano in her story, "The Christmas Gift."
"She went into the living room and lit the fire. She sat back on her heels to watch the flames kindle and gather. Her blood was a glow after her climb. She looked around the lovely room which they had designed especially to balance David's piano. All the rest of the house had been sacrificed to this room. The keyboard was open. The music waited. "Shadows come and went on the walls, playing hide-and-seek with Renoir prints, the little girl in the piano-rope David said was his preliminary daughter."
"We are living temporarily in a quaint but I don't know how to curtain the windows. Have you any suggestions?"
The windows are very short and, in some huts, fairly high from the floor. If you don't want them to seem prominent, use a sheer curtain the same color as the wall and hang the full curtain to the sill.
If your husband is a good amateur carpenter, you might use inside shutters painted the color of the wall and perhaps a colored full motif painted on the inside of the shutter. A decal may be used instead. The shutter folds back on the wall and when you want to close out the black of night.
It is now possible to get colored window shades. These, too, will make an interesting treatment.
Last, but not least, is to treat the window wall as a whole, placing built-in or sectional bookcases over the windows. Then use full curtain in a gay print over the window and still above the bookcases, drawing the curtains to the light in. It will take a large and you can save on other wall accessories.

Mr. G. who lives near the corner was our master of ceremonies, at the threshold and it was his circular saw, that was echoed to the yard this morning so that the evening of wood might follow close on the heels of the threshing. Incidental to the latter, a late chore is being done at the moment. Jamie re-wrapped, buttoned and gashed is cut with the others for "the tallings can't wait 'till the morning to be bagged up." So, deaf to reason or coaxing, he followed nimbly after James into a world tonight reserved at Alderlea, for men alone. It is chilly tonight, so that the frosty that Jamie's snow figures in the yard, will certainly not shrink. But on the threshing floor, it will be comfortably warm and the work there will be something of an adventure to Jamie. And there was wood-sawing towards evening and as always James carried an armful of the freshly cut sticks, small and fragrant still filled with the scent of the woodlands, to the box. . . . And now that I think of it, this is the very time for me to have a second look into that order catalogue!
Until tomorrow . . . Diary.
Good-night.

In Memoriam

R. CLAYTON WEBSTER

The death occurred at his home, 12811, 128th Street, Edmonton, Alta., on February 5th of Clayton Webster, formerly of Norboro, P. E. I.

Mr. Webster, who was a retired C.N.R. employee, had enjoyed good health until a week previous to his death when he suffered a stroke from which he did not rally. He is survived by his sorrowing widow, formerly Lottie Lord of Lower Bedouque, four children, (Verna) Mrs. Carl Burton and Bert of Edmonton; (Irene) Mrs. Fred Morrison of Calgary; and Etie. of Cranbrook. Also one sister, Mrs. May Gillis of Edmonton, and four brothers, Harry and Joseph of Imperial, Saskatchewan; and Marchbank, of P. E. I.

The funeral was held from his late residence on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 8th, to Edmonton cemetery.

Many Island friends will sympathize with Mrs. Webster and family in their bereavement.

In Memoriam

In fond and loving memory of my dear, dear mother,
MRS. ANN MATTHEW
Who passed away suddenly on Feb. 18, 1945.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by her granddaughter, Jean, Mrs. Eily Ford.

softly through the empty building. Not every sheaf. There were those that Jamie saved, to make delightful scratch material for her shavers have been removed. We will have "that stack" up by the line, the threshing of which due to lack of storage space for the straw, had been postponed until a later day. Jamie was there with the others. He was anxious to share in the excitement, that arrives when the last rows of sheaves have been removed. He was not disappointed. "You never saw such a scurrying of mice—and one big rat", Jamie told me "you jes' should have been there to see it yourself!"

Brereton Understands Women

By John Hallaway Horn

"I shall boast in years to come that once I poured out tea for Paul Brereton in his own studio," she smiled as she handed him his cup. "It is unkind to pull a poor old gentleman's leg," he protested. "I've felt once or twice this afternoon that you do nothing else but pull legs," she replied. Why sort that one talks to you so easily?"
"Don't you with most people?"
"Not with men of my own age. There are so few things that they are interested in—apart from themselves. They're so unsensible. In making love to me."
"That wasn't altogether what I meant."
"You had happened to be in love with one of them I don't think you would have thought him unsensible. That's what's wrong with you, my child. You've never been in love."
"Yes, I have in a way."
"In a way but there is only one way. And when it comes you cease to be critical as far as the man is concerned."
"I wonder if women have played a big part in your life? I think they have."
"They have. They do in many men's."
"You're not eating anything," she said as she took another toasted scone.
"I never do in the afternoon. Sheer vanity. My figure."
"I don't think I've ever met a man about whom I've been as curious as I am about you," she said. "And yet I'm very simple. What do you want to know about me?" he asked solemnly.
"I'm sorry. You've been delightful and my curiosity is vulgar."
"But very natural. The truth about me is that I am a very fortunate man."
"I know that. You have everything."
"It's the most comforting possession I have—apart from Miss McClellan—is my Hopeless Romance."
"Now you're leg-pulling again," she protested.
He shook his head. "A man who has a hopeless romance in the background of his life is safe," he said. "He never wants to make love to another woman and it saves all sorts of complications and bother."
"Who was she?"
"The unattainable Beauty."
"She was a real woman?"
"Oh, yes."
"So it's no use anyone else falling in love with you?"
"Not the least bit in the world."
"I believe I could have fallen in love with you," she said calmly.
"And yet I'm very simple. What do you want to know about me?" he asked thoughtfully.
"That's a kind of equality, isn't it?" she said thoughtfully.
She stood up from the soft black Chesterfield on which she had been sitting. "I'm going home," she said. "I'm playing bridge tonight. I shall add as a large, shining car turned out what you've said to me."

CHAPTER VI A Lady Invades

Paul Brereton waited on the steps until the shining car drew up. The chauffeur alighted and opened the door of the car and a lady even more spectacular than the car itself alighted.
"Where's Peter—my dog? I'd forgotten all about him."
They found him asleep beneath a copper birch on the lawn.
"Good-bye," she said and held out her hand to him.
"I'd love to."
"Then au revoir, my friend!" he said. "Who on earth is 'his'?"
He rang the bell and the maid, not yet as thoroughly trained as (Continued on Page 8)

Versatile CUP CAKES

Such Satisfying Results Can Be Yours!

FOR PARTIES, for the lunch-box, for regular serving, there's something very appealing about moist, feathery Cup Cakes. And you can be sure your Cup Cakes will be melt-in-your-mouth delicious, if you use flour with Swans Down's lightness and soft gluten!

Swans Down gives the kind of soft, downy crumb and delicious tenderness you dream of! Even cakes that save butter, shortening, sugar or eggs, are exceptional with Swans Down.

Milled by a "Controlled Milling" process from the heart of choice Canadian wheat, Swans Down is sifted again and again through silk, until amazingly even and 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. Beginner or expert—you'll have wonderful cake success with Swans Down!

Swans Down CAKE FLOUR A prize-winning Cake Flour for over 50 years

Tested Recipes on Each Package

FEATHERY CUP CAKES

2 1/4 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 1/4 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening (part butter preferred)
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten light
3/4 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt; sift three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually; cream until light. Add eggs and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time; beat smooth after each addition. Add vanilla (or instead, cream 1 1/2 teaspoons grated orange rind with shortening). Turn into greased muffin pans, or paper cups set in muffin pans; fill 3/4 full. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Frost and decorate.

How Swans Down is Different From Ordinary Flours:

BETTER — as King sugar is finer than granulated!
MORE EVEN — as graded peas are more even than ungraded!
LIGHTER — as riced positions are lighter than whole ones!
WHEAT SELECTED FOR SOFT GLUTEN — as you select meat cow for tenderness!
