

GREATEST FOX SHOW EVER HELD IN AMERICA

Fine Quality Mink Bred at Local Ranch

While fox ranching naturally takes prominence in the fur farming industry of Prince Edward Island, there is ample evidence that mink farming can be carried on successfully here, and that the animals, with proper care and breeding, can compete in quality of fur with anything on the world's market. An example of this is furnished by Mr. E. A. Ferguson, 22 Bayfield Street, this city, who this year is operating two ranches, one at his home and the other at St. Avar's, where a visitor may see over two hundred of these valuable little animals playing like kittens in their pens. The St. Avar's ranch is being enlarged by the addition of a new shed sixty feet long, containing four tiers of pens, and at both ranches the equipment and stock are being constantly improved.

A Guardian representative who visited Mr. Ferguson's ranch at his home was surprised at the quality of fur which skillful breeding can produce. The best strains from Nova Scotia, Quebec and Prince Edward Island have been secured, new stock being purchased from time to time. A $200 male animal and a $300 pair of breeders are recent acquisitions. At the present time the animals are shedding their brown coats and getting that glossy dark fur which is the hallmark of prime quality and which is so attractive to the buyer.

One magnificent animal, a champion breeder, was shown to the reporter for which Mr. Ferguson was offered $400; and there were others in the pens which seemed equally valuable.

An unusual feature of the ranch is a cat which has taken to mothering the young mink like her own kittens, and which is perfectly at home in the pens.

Mr. Ferguson has made large shipments of live mink to Norway, Newfoundland, Quebec and other parts of Canada, and has found the business a fascinating as well as profitable one. In these markets the "Ferguson strain" is establishing a name for itself which is highly creditable to the mink industry in this Province.

21 V. C.'s Will Represent Canada

(Special to the Guardian)
OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—At least 21 Victoria Cross men will represent Canada at the dinner to be given by the Prince of Wales in London on Armistice Day. Of these, 16 were members of the Canadian forces and five are "Imperials" now residing in Canada. The Department of National Defence has compiled a list of the V. C.'s going from Canada. This list shows that the "Canadians" in the sense of members of the Canadian units, include seven from Ontario, three from Alberta, two from New Brunswick and one each from British Columbia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The sixteenth "Canadian" came up from the United States to join the contingent.

Vice-President

MAJOR A. S. ROBERTSON,
Of Mermald, P. E. I., vice-president of the Silver Fox Exhibitors' Association of Prince Edward Island, through whose efforts, assisted by a number of other leading breeders, the first organization meetings were held.

How Pelt Value May Be Judged

The skin value of a live fox may be judged from the following standards:
Color—Glossy black on neck and wherever no silver hairs are found. The black must be of a bluish cast all over the body. The underfur must also be dark colored. The fur of silver and black foxes is a dark slate next to the skin.

Silver Hairs—Pure silver bands, not white or very prominent. In the best skins which are well scattered over the pelt. Flakiness, which is the appearance of whitish or chalky silver hairs placed close together in patches is objectionable.

Texture—Buyers pass judgment on the skins by drawing the hand over the fur. The softest fur is the most valuable. This quality of softness is referred to as "silkeness."

Gloss—The sheen must be evident. It is caused by the perfect health of the animal and the fineness of the hair, as well as by hereditary influences. Woods and humid atmosphere also favor this important quality.

Weight—a good fox skin will weigh at least one pound, the weight usually varying from 10 to 19 ounces. The thick, long fur makes the weight. This is a most important point, as heavy fur is more durable and handsome.

GLENWOOD AND VICINITY

Messrs John G. and Lester Hickey recently motored from Boston, Mass and are spending a vacation with their mother, Mrs Alice Hickey, Dunblane

Potato digging in this section is about completed and many people are taking advantage of the good roads and large quantities of seed and table stock are being hauled to O'Leary.

Mrs Angus McLean, Milo recently spent a few days in Glenwood, the guest of her parents, Mr and Mrs George H. McIsaac.

Mr and Mrs Charles Butler recently motored from Boston, Mass and are spending their vacation at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Angus McPherson, Dunblane.

Friends of Mr and Mrs William Stewart, formerly of West Point, now located in Errol, New Hampshire, will regret to learn that their oldest child, George, has lately been ill with appendicitis. They also suffered the loss of some clothing and furniture when the house in which they were living—a five-family tenement was destroyed by fire.

Rally Day services in the United church at Glenwood was conducted by Rev. Mr. Harding and Rev. Mr. Loring while Mrs. E. L. McDougall had charge of the musical part of the program. The theme of worship centred around the theme in "Quest of others" and was pleasingly rendered.

Mrs. William H. Gilcush is now visiting in Glenwood, the guest of Mrs. Neil A. Boulter.

Mr and Mrs Melvin Ellis, West Cape were visitors to Glenwood on Sunday, the guests of Mr and Mrs E. L. McDougall.

The news of the unexpected death of Mr. John McIsaac, Glenwood during the early hours of Sunday morning, the 13th. inst was heard by his friends with surprise and regret. Mr. McIsaac was seventy-seven years old and was unmarried. He and his sister had lived together until the time of her death, a few years ago. Since her decease he has lived alone except for a short period last spring when he was taken to the home of his brother Hector to be cared for during an illness. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Father McCabe of Brae, where interment took place.

Mr and Mrs Neil McIsaac are receiving the congratulations of friends upon the arrival of a new baby girl.

Radio fans in this vicinity, who heard the sermons of Rev. Mr. Harding of Summerside last year were pleased by the recent announcement that his sermons are again being broadcasted by Station CHCY, Summerside.

NEW KING'S COLLEGE BUILDINGS ARE NEARING COMPLETION

Work is well under way in all departments of the University of King's College, Halifax and President Moore announces an enrolment of seventy-nine students in the several faculties, of whom sixty-five are in residence and 14 are nonresidents. Of these seventy-nine students twenty-two are candidates for the Sacred Ministry of Nova Scotia and nine from the diocese of Fredericton. Both the men's and the women's residences are taxed to their full capacity and it was impossible to accept all the applicants; which goes to show that when increased accommodation is available in the new buildings there will be a demand for it at once.

Dr Moore announces that through the generous interest of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Owen it has been made possible to add to the work of the Divinity Faculty a course of lectures in voice culture elocution and deportment. The University is fortunate in being able to secure the services of the Rev. John Furlong, rector of St. Mark's Church, Halifax, as lecturer in this department and Mr. Furlong, who has won distinction in voice production and management, will begin his work at once. Needless to say the generous contribution of Mr. and Mrs. Owen which has made this work possible is highly appreciated.

The new King's buildings on Studley campus are rapidly approaching completion as regards the walls and roof. It is expected that within a fortnight the men's dormitory on the south side of the quadrangle will be roofed in. The massive pillars of Indiana limestone supporting the main portico are being placed in position and the cupola on the main building is being put up. The general elevation, as well as the texture of the masonry of the walls, are being greatly admired and it will not be long now before the completed lines of this set of buildings will be in evidence.

An interesting piece of statuary which represents Aeneas carrying Anchises out of Troy has been brought from the Convocation Hall at Windsor and is being built into the centre of the front elevation of the men's dormitories. The Alumni Association of the University is bearing the expense of the transfer of this beautiful representation of the classical subject into the new home of King's.

The President's residence and the chapel are being finished now. The Beautiful ceiling of the chapel shows up to advantage since the scaffolding has been removed. President and Mrs. Moore hope to be able to move into their new home early in December.

CELEBRATED CANADIAN HISTORICAL SERIES FOR THE GUARDIAN

C. W. Jefferys, R. C. A., recognized as the greatest Canadian historical painter, whose series of 16 fine drawings illustrating dramatic highspots in the Dominion's story begin on November 2nd weekly publication in The Guardian. The series, which constitutes a privileged advance publication of a collection which will appear in book form next year, will be accepted as establishing a new standard in newspaper features in this country. Originals of Mr. Jefferys' work hang in the National Gallery, Ottawa, the Toronto Art Gallery, and all important Canadian exhibitions. Colored prints and reproductions of a number of them have been adopted by hundreds of schools throughout the Dominion as a supplement to the teaching of history. His work is eagerly sought by private collectors and large corporations. When the palatial new Manor Richelieu was completed recently at Murray Bay, Que., Mr. Jefferys was commissioned to execute the two fine panels which adorn the main lobby. Mr. Jefferys is a member of the Royal Canadian Academy and of the Ontario Society of Artists, of which latter body he has been president. He was also the first president of the Society of Graphic Art.

While no date has been set for the formal opening of the new building it is not deemed practicable that any portion of them save the President's residence will be occupied during the present academic year; and it is possible that the formal opening of the buildings may not take place until next August when a reunion of the Alumni of the University will be held in Halifax.
