NEVER SAY DIE!
The slam contract in today's deal looked absolutely hopeless, but the declarer kept plugging — to a remarkable outcome

Obviously if West had guessed the heart opening the slam would have been defeated on the spot, but West could not be greatly blamed for preferring a spade lead. Declarer won, and he could not have been greatly pleased with his prospects, but he doggedly went to work. He drew trumps, cashed the diamond ace and the rest of the spades, discarding a heart from his own hand and then, for want of a better plan, continued with trumps. When the fourth trump was cashed, West had to discard the heart ten in order to keep two diamonds, and this discard was not overlooked by the astute declarer. The latter now cashed dummy's last trump, discarding his own heart five and watching with more than academic interest for West's play to this trick. The fact of the matter was that West had fallen into a very peculiar squeeze! Obviously, if he let go another diamond, declarer could cash the king and jack; but when West, sensing this, let go the heart jack, the damage was just as great to his side. For now declarer, with a clearly-etched picture of the three-card position around the table, led the heart six from dummy — and the defenders were helpless! If East put up the heart ace, dropping declarer's queen and West's king, East would have nothing left to lead out hearts, and dummy's nine-spot would win. Actually, East ducked the heart lead, and now West was in with the king and had to return a diamond from his queen-ten to declarer's king-jack.

LEEK, Staffordshire, England — (CP)—Thurza Cope thought she was 100, but on recount, checked with her birth certificate, found she was only 99.
