OF THESE I SING

Some sing their songs of Europe, With its foreign cultured style— But I sing my song of childhood days, On old Prince Edward Isle.

Some sing their songs of London, And some of gay Paris— And others of Berlin and Rome— But I sing of Sours.

Some sing of Moscow and Brussels, And of jewelled studded crowns— But I with joy and pride will sing Of Princely Charlottetown.

Some friends sing of Vienna, And canals that give a thrill— But I sing of the brooks and streams That flow thru Forest Hill.

Of row-boats on the mill-pond, And rafts upon the streams— And fishing poles that swish and bend Where Morson's saw-mill screams.

Yes they sing of scenic beauty Up in Berne and St. Moritz— And of pulchritude intriguing At Monte Carlo and the Ritz.

But I sing about the woods and hills And lakes of P. E. Isle— And its city, town and country girls That charm with form and style.

Their nature's gift to mankind, In the great infinite plan— That redounds the life eternal In the cosmic urge of man.

So P. E. Isle, my P. E. Isle Of thee I sing and praise— Of mother's love and father's love In childhood's happy days.

Its waving fields and hills and streams And winding roads I love— And shall until the long-long trail Ends on that Isle above.

Bobsleigh Goes Lame

(C. P. Cable By Guardian's Special Wire)
 LONDON, May 27.—Bobsleigh Lord Derby's coil that was second choice for the Derby, pulled up very lame after another trot this afternoon and it was learned from Newmarket that he will probably be scratched.

The coil, before he went wrong in training last week, had been expected to provide chief opposition for the Aga Khan's Bahran, unbeaten coil that is now favorite at even money or less.

Bobsleigh seemed to have recovered over the week-end but this afternoon it seemed almost hopeless for him to start. He is expected to be out when the list of final acceptors is announced on Wednesday.

INTERESTING ADDRESS ON INSURANCE

An instructive, educational and interesting talk on selling life insurance, not from a seller's, but a buyer's point of view, was given before a large number of insurance men in the Canadian National Hotel Monday by Mr. Gordon Nairn, Toronto, Field Supervisor of Life Underwriters of Canada.

The meeting was held following a most enjoyable dinner presided over by Mr. Wm. Flynn, President of the local association, with the guest speaker on his right and on his left, Mr. H. R. Stewart, Superintendent of Insurance for this province.

In introducing the guest speaker Mr. Flynn extended his thanks to the members for their hearty cooperation and support during his term of office.

Mr. Nairn, prefaced his remarks by stating it was a genuine pleasure to come back to the Island where on a previous visit he made numerous friends. Throughout his talk many stories were related to bring out more clearly a point he was making.

The buyer thinks only of insurance, Mr. Nairn said, as something good, something sound, something personal. Investigations among his acquaintances, people he had met in trains and lobby, to find their reaction and it was his conclusion that the prospect should be brought around to think of his family. The buyer should not think what will be returned to him in five or ten years—but what provision it will secure for his wife and family.

The business man sees something more in life insurance today than he did five years ago—a sound, secure and profitable investment. The public also understands more today about insurance, than it did five years ago.

Referring to conditions in Canada today he said 25 per cent of the municipalities are bankrupt, but only one per cent of these are in the Maritimes. Touching on relief he said the trouble was that men did not want to work, they wanted something for nothing.

Mr. Nairn urged the young men present, who were taking up insurance as their life's work, to do all in their power to become acquainted with all the fine points in the business. More friendship among members will do much to do away with many unethical practices and he charged them to take a pride in the business.

The speaker dwelt at some length on "part time" agents, the probation term, etc., and assured his hearers that they were "in the greatest business in the world with the greatest thing to sell."

Mr. H. R. Stewart, extended thanks to Mr. Nairn for his visit and felt sure he was making good in his appointment. "No one should be at any time too busy to listen to an insurance agent," he said.

Mr. J. O. Hyndman, in moving a vote of thanks said they were very fortunate in having Mr. Nairn and listening to such a practical talk. Mr. Hyndman referred to the organizing of the association, thirty years ago and was glad to see it today going strong. In 1906 the Dominion Life Association was formed. In conclusion he pointed out the great possibilities in life insurance.

In seconding the vote of thanks Mr. Henry Laphorte referred to the "part time" men and the difficulties experienced in competing with them.

Supporting the motion Mr. R. H. McNeill said that today he had heard the best heart-to-heart talk he had ever listened to on life insurance. If they had more of those practical addresses he said, there would be a better understanding of the business and as a consequence better protection.

Messrs. Milton Stewart and E. C. Johnstone also supported the motion which was tendered by the chairman.

At the conclusion Mr. Nairn held a short meeting with the branch managers.

GIRL GUIDE NEWS

After Horse-shoe Formation and the marking of roll books, a prayer for the Company was read by the Captain. Patrol boxes were marked for patrol marks, marks being given for the possession of a home-made first aid kit, badge polishing outfit, clothes brush, needle and thread, extra buttons, information books about badge work, jocks, etc. The Cyclist badge was presented to Ruth Sinclair. Guides were asked to enquire as to whether their mothers could board out-of-town guides for a night at the time of the July Rally, and report next week. Sealed Orders were then given to each patrol leader. The orders included drill, directing a stranger to a Hospital, treatment of fainting, a lesson in Morse, and fire drill. Marks were given to patrols. Miss Worthy's class continued practice for the rally drill, and the meeting ended with Taps and the Magic Squeeze.

Last Thursday afternoon the Second Class Guides of the Company held a picnic and boat-sail to York Point, and on Saturday the Robin Patrol went on their hike.

On Sunday this Company paraded to St. Peter's Cathedral for worship with the Guides and Brownies of Charlottetown, and heard a sermon by the Rev. Canon and Vicar, the Rev. Canon and members of St. Peter's Cathedral for inviting us to take part in their service on the Sunday nearest to the 24th, when Guides parade to church.

Next Saturday the Swallows hold their hike, meeting at the Willow Corner at 1.15 p. m.

Monday the 3rd of June the Company meeting will be held in Victoria Park, meeting at Miss Fry's home shortly before 10.00 a. m.

SECOND OHTOWN COMPANY

Friday, May 24.—Instead of the usual evening meeting, the Guides met at their headquarters at 9 o'clock in the morning. Upon arrival they found a notice giving details of an early morning robbery of a quantity of gold. The two robbers had been seen to leave the Hall earlier that morning and run east on Richmond Street. One wore a red sweater and the other a blue.

The Guides intended to follow the thieves to their lair and recover the gold. By following the trail of bits of yarn from their clothing, the Guides finally came upon the two sleeping robbers (Captain and Lieutenant) in Victoria Park, and they were soon relieved of their gold (oranges).

During the meeting which followed, Guides Margaret Ferguson and Phyllis Arsenault passed their posture test for their Second Class badges. Morse signalling was reviewed in the form of a competition. Before leaving the Park for home, the Guides heard for the first time the interesting life story of Olive St. Clair Soames (now Lady Baden-Powell, Chief Guide of the World), who, through her marriage, done so much to unite the Guides of the world into one big, happy family.

Rhinoceros Horns Among Trade Items

Some rather curious items crop up in trade returns. Take the case of silk hosiery: Canada has established quite a reputation for pure silk hosiery and not alone does milady in Britain prefer the Canadian article, but her sister way down in New Zealand has a like preference. Then again, think of Canada sending glass milk bottles all the way to the Antipodes but here again the reputation of the Canadian article has led to New Zealand buying supplies from her sister dominion and these form part of the cargoes of freighters of the Canadian National Steamships in the Canada-Australia-New Zealand service. And soap: The New Zealander has switched back to Canadian soap. Canada formerly supplied New Zealand with soap but in 1933 none was imported. Now, they have returned to it and 1934 registered imports to the value of approximately $23,705. But one of the most curious is in the trade returns of the British Protectorate of Zanzibar were there seems to be a growing trade in rhinoceros horn $30,450 worth of these rhinoceros horns were exported from Zanzibar during 1934 as against $14,180 the year previous. And just imagine the $2,000,000 worth of cloves but that is the value of the 1934 exports from Zanzibar, the chief item; to be exact it was $2,101,770. The next nearest is copra, the dried meat of the coconut, with a value of $241,880, a decrease of 45.7 per cent from the year previous, which tells a tale of the competition of chemists with natural products. Copra was valuable in other years for the oil extracted from it and was much sought after as cargo. It is still used but apparently in de-

LIVE WHITE FOX IS CAPTURED

Possibilities of developing a strain of white foxes loom up from the capture alive of one of the species on Fort Hood Island, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, by two boys recently. It is thought the fox is one of the Arctic species which came in with the ice from the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The fox was in a rather weakened condition when captured, according to information reaching the Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways, due, apparently, to lack of food.

THE NUTRITIVE VALUE OF THE POTATO

Sir,—Your editorial that appeared in a recent issue was most opportune in showing the nutritive value of the potato, which in recent years has become one of the principal products of this Province. In these times of economic stress it is one of the most commendable endeavors for all to devote their energies towards securing an adequate compensation for the tiller of the soil as the result of his industry in producing therefrom. Agriculture is the basis on which civilization and life itself rests, in the last analysis, and more especially does this obtain in this Province, where it is its main resource. This Province is admitted to possess all the requisites necessary to develop this product of the very highest matured quality, having many factors not elsewhere discernible within its own boundaries it now has need for planting of the highest type, developed here by selective propagation. The climate here because of its insular position, with its nightly fall of dews conduces to the growth of plants by contributing soil moisture, which is absolutely necessary for plant growth in rendering the nitrate soluble, so they can be assimilated by the plant for its growth and without which no growth can adequately flourish. The soil here is generally admirably adapted for the growing of the potato and most suitable for adequate results from the proper application of chemical fertilizers, in order that the producers may receive an adequate compensation for this superb quality, it becomes necessary to convince the consuming public—first of the wonderful quality of this product and then prove that it contains greater nutrition as food-dollar for dollar, than other foods that they may be using in their daily diet, and which may not be produced here. Your editorial to this end will receive the approval of every person who considers the best interests of this Province.

All are aware of the enormous quantities of ripe tomatoes that are now universally used in the form of the canned product, in addition to the large amounts consumed as they become matured. The fact that such enormous quantities of this food are annually consumed and the great demand for them developed within such a short time, is, because of the fact, that the nutrients of nutrition, as McCullum of Baltimore and others, discovered on investigation and analysis, that this fruit possessed such essential qualities, necessary for proper nutrition and health. Another factor with this fruit is that its matured quality is indicated by its color and thus becomes an assurance of full maturity.

Health and nutrition authorities now postulate as a health law that all foods in this class must be fully matured by nature—by leaving on the plant, vine or tree, as the case may be, and grown in good soils supplied with an adequate amount of fertilizer under proper cultural methods, in order to obtain the maximum food value.

All these requirements for the development of the highest type of products are embodied in the method here employed in the growing of potatoes and other crops, the fact of their near perfect development, maturity and thus finest quality.

The nutritive value of foods may be said to be inherent properties, as the contained elements of caloric value, mineral content, basic radicle content, emphyretic proteins, carbohydrates, fats and vitamins and mineral content.

In the next letter the food content and the findings of the students of nutrition will be given.

I am, Sir, etc.,
 A. M. BEZEL, M. D.

S.D.U. ALUMNI ASSN. ANNUAL MEETING HELD

McKenna, the Vice-President, Mr. St. Clair Trainor presided. In his address Mr. Trainor welcomed the new members of the Association, the graduates of 1935 who were guests at the luncheon. He also referred to the honor shared in by the Association in the appointment of Archbishop McGuigan to the See of Toronto. All members rejoice in the advancement of this illustrious alumnus. The nominating committee brought in the following slate of officers, which was unanimously agreed to:

President—St. Clair Trainor.
 Vice-Presidents—A. F. McQuaid and Amedeo Caron.

 Assistant Secretary—Rev. J. A. St. Ives.

"Knight of the Road"

Mr. Ernest Wall, electrician, of Waldcut, Sask., who is on 10,000 mile hike for a wager with the Mayor of his home town, arrived in the city yesterday. Mr. Wall is better known as "the Knight of the Road," and has already travelled 7,500 miles. He leaves here today or tomorrow for Summerside, and back to New Brunswick and west towards home. The most difficult part of his journey was from Senora to Fort William, a distance of 246 miles where there were absolutely no dwellings of any kind from which to obtain food and shelter. His best friends on this part were the highway construction camps who welcomed him with open arms. The highway is expected to be finished this fall, but meantime there is practically no semblance of a road for miles and miles. Probably the country he has seen is not so attractive as some other parts of the Dominion, but it has proved immensely interesting to Mr. Wall. The conditions of the wager are to travel 10,000 miles in one year, without travelling the same road twice. He must obtain the signature of each Mayor of the cities he visits, and obtain a signed heading of one of the newspapers published in each place. He is not allowed to charge for services rendered, but may accept any free will offering made him. He started out with ten cents, and his experience has been varied, but he has never failed to enjoy the attention of the public, and the most hospitality and entertainment wherever he has gone. Already he has been asked here many people who have inquired how he liked the city and offered him hospitality. So far Regina tops the list in his experience of hospitality, but Mr. Wall is in hope and expectation that some other city or town will challenge his supremacy.
