On the morning of January 12th friends and neighbors were saddened to hear of the death of Phyllis Mary, little daughter of Pte. Raymond Bernard and Mrs. Bernard, at the tender age of eight. The little girl was the eldest of the family and leaves to mourn besides father, the following brothers and sisters: Raymond, Gordon, Betty Ann and Dorothy. Being the oldest she assumed the care of the younger ones and was very much the little mother. After Pte. Bernard left for military services the care of her young family fell on the mother, and Phyllis, who always seemed old beyond her years, seemed to sense this and was untiring in her efforts to aid her mother in the daily household tasks and in the upbringing of her younger brothers and sisters. Up to the time when ill-health overcame her, she was an almost daily caller at the Post Office, waiting for the mail from "Daddy" somewhere in England. When she was rewarded with letters or a parcel from him, she would run off home, her dark eyes flashing her excitement and pleasure.

The funeral was held from the United Church, Hunter River, after a short service at her late home. Her pastor, Rev. L.M. Murray conducted the service and read the words of the Master, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me." The hymns were, "Jesus Loves Me," "When He Cometh to Make Up His Jewels" and "The Shepherd Psalm." As the mourners and assembled congregation filed out, the organist softly rendered "Safe In The Arms of Jesus." The mourners which included both her maternal and paternal grandparents, uncles, aunts and cousins, occupied the front pews to the left, while the school children who with their teachers had placed a floral tribute sat in the pews to the right.
