This gamboling English lamb seems to be enjoying a spring in winter, but it isn't gulling the wool over anybody's eyes. Actually the picture symbolizes the high price of lamb and mutton. As usual, the sheepish consumer gets fleeced.

HOCKEY

In what proved to be the roughest, hardest-checking contest of the year took place in the Montague rink, Saturday, January 24th, when the Montague Old Timers defeated the Reserve Army to the tune of 6-2. Oldsters who had not donned the blades for many years, appeared on the ice in battle array ready for the fray against the usurpers who had dared challenge them in almost mortal combat. No holds were barred, everything went. A contest for the survival of the fittest, but none expected the Old Timers to show that they were the fittest. From the face off out roared the battle cry of the challenged, and they charged up the ice flailing the hardwood, elbows, and knees. Being novices to this somewhat unfair tactics, the Reserve called up their reserves to stem the rising overwhelming tide, and for a time, owing to their youth, were successful, but not for long, for waves after waves of Old Timers swept over them, and literally crushed them to the ice in bone shaking checks, with an odd trip thrown in for good measure. The spear point of the Old Timers phalanx was L. Poole, the intrepid war-horse of former days whose blistering shot made many an opposing goalie cower behind his net in fear. However, the Reserve now having figured out the strategy of the enemy adopted a similar tactics and soon began to hold their own against the onset of the attackers. Gradually but inevitably the play moved into the Old Timers zone in the later stages of the game, as the pace of the first sessions began to tell on their stamina. But like all Old-Timers they still had plenty in their bag of tricks, ragging the puck and slipping in many an off-side to help the time pass a little faster. By this time both teams were black and blue from the unyielding boards, cross checking, and tripping. But both sides had a great deal of fun, and laughter, rang merrily in the dressing rooms during each intermission. The fans thoroughly enjoyed the game, and shook the rafters with their yells for more. A really enjoyable game, and it is hoped that when the players recuperate, they will have another.

Address And Presentation

An enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Albert MacEwen on December 18th, when the members of St. Peter's Harbour Women's Institute visited her and presented her with a beautiful piece of silver, in appreciation of her work as Secretary and Treasurer of the Institute for so many years, and who always takes a great interest in all Institute work. Although taken completely by surprise she thanked the members for their lovely gift, which she said was so very unexpected. An address of appreciation was read by Mrs. Herbert Hawbolt and the presentation on behalf of the members was made by Mrs. Walter Squires, a social evening followed and a bountiful lunch was served by the ladies, also a generous supply of fudge, after which the members and visitors left for their homes wishing Mrs. MacEwen a very Happy New Year, and hoping she would still be able to carry on the good work in which she has proven so capable.

Following is the address:—
Dear Sarah:—We, the members of St. Peter's Harbour Women's Institute, wish to convey to you, in some small way, our appreciation, for the way you have so capably and willingly acted as our Secretary and Treasurer. We realize that you have taken more than your share of the responsibilities and work in our Institute, you have always taken such great interest in every subject that should arise, we wonder how we would ever carry on without you.

You have always been most cheerful and humorous and never once in all the years that you carried on your great work, have we heard you complain. We wish to thank you very much for your duties in the past, and hope you will continue to carry on through the years as our Secretary-Treasurer. In doing so we ask you to accept this gift, small in value but large in thought and good will.

Signed for all of us,
St. Peter's Harbour Women's Institute.

The communism that threatens Europe feeds on the desperate hunger of the people. How desperate that hunger is in some places is graphically illustrated by this picture of German youths searching for food in a dump-pile of empty cans near a U. S. Army mess hall in Stuttgart. Such sights are common in Germany.
