ROOSEVELT ACCLAIMS NEW SOCIAL ORDER

Government Engaged In Reviewing All Kinds of Human Relationships, Says President.

(Canadian Press)

DOUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., Aug. 28—President Franklin D. Roosevelt in an address to his neighbors of Dutchess County today had acclaimed a new social order for the United States based on neighborliness. In the address, delivered Saturday, Mr. Roosevelt said: "It is true that the people, through the Government are extending as a permanent part of American life—and not just for one year or two years—they are extending their insistence that individuals and associations of individuals shall cease doing many things that have been hurting their neighbors in by-gone days."

Drastic Changes He continued: "This is the first time in our history the nation as a whole has approved drastic changes in the methods and forms and functions of government without destroying the basic principles. "We are engaged today, as you know, not just the Government in Washington but groups of citizens everywhere, in reviewing all kinds of human relationships, and in these reviews we are asking an old question in a new form. "We are saying, 'Is this practice, is this custom something which is being done at the expense of the many?'"

Mr. Roosevelt also said many years ago the government was given the right to impose increasing taxes on increasing profits because of a simple principle that very large profits were, of course, made at the expense of neighbors."

He maintained it was "no more restriction to tell a man he must pay adequate wages than it is to tell him he must not hire child labor, or that he must not maintain a nuisance against his neighbors." Mr. Roosevelt declared the National Recovery Administration programme a success and said: "The downhill drift of America has definitely turned and become the upward surge of America."

NEW METHOD GUNMEN RECEIVE FLOGGING

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(C.P.)—For the first armed robbery in this country in which the American method of the saw-off shotgun was used, two 20-year-old youths at the Old Bailey were recently sentenced to penal servitude and were each ordered a flogging. Thomas Jackson was sentenced to five years' penal servitude and 16 strokes of the birch. Frank Colbard was sentenced to four years' penal servitude and 12 strokes of the "cat." They pleaded guilty to armed robbery at a Siquane-street jewellers and theft of jewellery valued at $1,500. It was stated that during the hold-up Colbard said, "I am quite prepared to shoot my way out if I am followed."

They were trying to escape in a taxi when a constable had the shotgun presented at him by Colbard. He slammed the door in Colbard's face whereupon Colbard pushed the gun through the glass and pointed it at the officer. Another officer who was on the offside was threatened by Johnson with a dagger and diverted it with his truncheon. When told it was the first occasion the American method of a saw-off shotgun had been used in this country, the Recorder, Sir Ernest Wild, observed: "I hope it will be the last." In passing sentence he said that if it were not for their age he would have sentenced each to 10 years' penal servitude and a flogging. Crimes of violence were committed almost universally by young men.

"The Judges of the land," the Recorder added, "are determined that this sort of offence shall not be allowed to gain ground in this kingdom."

WOMAN PRESIDES AT INSTITUTE PACIFIC RELATIONS CONFERENCE

BANFF, Alta., Aug. 28—Dr. Margaret Fry holds the honor of being the first woman to preside at a round-table conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations during the present sessions. Dr. Fry handled an important meeting yesterday at which the delicate matter of the influence of international armament interests on violent nationalist propaganda was discussed. Members declared Dr. Fry guided the discussions with ability and disarming diplomacy. Dr. Fry, member of the British group, was principal of Somerville College, Oxford, 1926-31; is honorary secretary of the Howard League Prison Reform and a member of the British House of Commons committee on prison labor.

her master at that time. Mrs. Deveaux lives alone in a neat little house on Dufferin street. In a place of honor in her sitting room hang portraits of President Lincoln and Queen Victoria. "That man said, 'You go free,'" she explained, pointing to Lincoln, then turning to the Queen Victoria photograph she added: "She said, 'Come over here. They can't get you here.'"

Mr. MacLean was a man of more than ordinary ability, a contemporary and school mate of the late Donald Montgomery, Supt. of Education for the province and he took delight in referring to men of considerable fame, who were his scholars, and they remember him with respect and affection. REV. MR. MCLEOD'S ADDRESS

Addressing the congregation Rev. Mr. McLeod spoke as follows: We are gathered together here to pay our tribute of respect to an aged servant of God, whose passing is a commentary on the well known words: "Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of grain cometh in, in its season." (Job 5-26.) God in His wise Providence called him away suddenly, Aug. 26th, so that he would not be a burden to himself or others, reminding us that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night."

As a citizen, as a Christian and as a minister, we could speak of him in the superlative degree. Rev. Donald MacLean was born in Belfast, P. E. Island over 88 years ago, March 11th, 1845. His father died when he was a child, and he was brought up by his aunt in Valleyfield. Here he went to school and proved to be a bright and diligent pupil. In course of years he came to Charlottetown, and attended the Academy (the predecessor of the Normal School and P. W. College) and qualified for a public school teacher. For a number of years he taught school successfully in several parts of the province. I was one of his scholars, and that is one reason why I am speaking here today and I am persuaded he would wish me to take some part in the service.

In his early days he did much good for the cause of temperance (a subject not so popular as it is today) and the first Temperance Society I joined, was under his direction. In the year 1874 a memorable year in the life of Mr. MacLean, there was a great revival of religion in the congregation of Valleyfield, under the late Rev. Mr. John MacTavish (referred to in one of his poems). Donald MacLean was one of the converts and he proved to be a devout, faithful and steadfast Christian ever since. From his youth he had a desire to be a minister so after several years of successful teaching, he entered the Presbyterian College, Montreal, in mature years, where he studied theology under Principal MacVicar, Dr. Campbell and Dr. Scrimgeour. (Dr. Conseit was French Prof.)

After graduation he was called to the Presbyterian congregation in Earlton, N. S., where he served the church faithfully for some years. In the course of time, he was called to the Presbyterian congregation of West Cape, P. E. Island, where he labored acceptably and successfully for years. After tendering his resignation of this charge, he came to Charlottetown, where he has lived for over 20 years.

He was appointed chaplain to P. E. Island Hospital by the Presbytery of P. E. I.—a duty which he discharged faithfully and conscientiously for several years. At first he received a small remuneration from the H. M. Board, but for years he served gratuitously. Many patients will remember with gratitude his words of comfort and hope and his fervent prayers.

During his retirement, he supplied in several congregations to the edification of the people. (In Ont., N. S. and P. E. I. he supplied as a theological student.) As a preacher he was earnest and evangelical and spoke with the accent of conviction, and could say: "I believed, therefore have I spoken."

Those who read his published sermons that appeared in the local press, must have known how sound, scriptural and practical his teaching was.

Mr. MacLean was a man of more than ordinary ability, a contemporary and school mate of the late Donald Montgomery, Supt. of Education for the province and he took delight in referring to men of considerable fame, who were his scholars, and they remember him with respect and affection. "He was a man who had the 'poetic gift'—a 'spark of nature's fire," (which one of his forbears had), and he has written some poems and Hymns of considerable merit. Here is a specimen of one of his Doxologies: "All praise and glory be to God For all the mercies we enjoy Praise Him all creatures that he made, The Father, Son and Spirit praise." (That's poetry!) Again from the Hymn "In Glory." Of Heaven's glory now we think, Hope of its pleasures soon to drink; But what will it be to be there, Where all is holy, pure and fair.

About 30 years ago he published a little volume of poems and Hymns that express sentiments and feelings deeply colored by experimental religion. It could be said of his poetry what was said of the poetry of one of the poets of the Sanctuary: "A spirit of invocation, prayer and praise, pervades all his poetry."

I think his last poem "The Heavenly Land," is as good as any of his works, showing us that "his eye was not dim, nor his spiritual power abated."

Mr. MacLean was a man of devout spirit and saintly life. Enoch-like "he walked with God." It could be truly said of him, as it was said of Havaniah, "he was a faithful man and feared God above many."

In theology he was a fundamentalist, as orthodox as the Epistle to the Romans. There were four things he loved supremely: he loved God's Word, God's Day, God's House and God's people. And with the apostle he could say: "The love of Christ constraineth me."

There are few among us who could say so sincerely and truly as he: "My beloved is mine, and I am His."

He lived to a good old age, with his Bible as his constant companion, and Matthew Henry's Commentary by his side, for his illumination and comfort, (volumes he valued next to the Bible). The words of the 92nd Psalm could be truly applied to him: "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree, he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon. Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God."
