Metz, '34, has this to say about a venerable Christian Brother: "You have all seen this kindly Brother about the campus, faithfully discharging his duties as director of the resident students. Although a new addition to the faculty, Brother George has already established himself on the campus as an old timer. Brother George is a native of Prince Edward Island, Canada. After receiving a part of his education there he left his native land in 1884. Immediately after his novitiate training he was appointed teacher at the Sacred Heart College in San Francisco. "His genial personality here won him many friends both among the students and all those connected with the school. He remained in the city until 1886, when he was given charge of the St. Joseph's Institute in Oakland. After three years in this locality he was transferred to Sacramento and thence to St. Michael's College in Portland. "He spent several years in the northwest at Portland, Vancouver, and at Walla Walla. He was then sent once more to Sacramento, but this time as head of the institution. "Later Brother George was transferred to Sacred Heart College where in 1926 he had the honor of staging the celebration of the Golden Jubilee of that school. In 1927 he was appointed director of the resident students at the Old Brick Pile in Oakland. "At present he is the director of resident students at the College. "During all these activities, however, he has managed to make several visits to his old home in Charlottetown, and to various cities in Massachusetts, where most of his people are living at present. "Brother George is an ardent booster of Saint Mary's teams, and is greatly interested in the extension of inter-class and intra-mural activities."—Oakland Maple Leaf.

Stowaway Poses In Social Role

NEW YORK, April 26—A gentleman with an engaging smile arrived on the liner Ile De France today to be taken to Ellis Island as a stowaway while passengers who had extended him many invitations hurriedly cancelled them. While he insisted his name actually was "Michael Romanoff", efforts were made to link him with an impostor by that name whose reckless escapades had caused socially elite no end of embarrassment in years gone by. In the past, the fake "Romanoff" had been known as Harry F. Ferguson of Hillsboro, Ill., although he mingled in social circles as "Prince Obelenski" and with that name had tried to "crash" a party for the Prince of Wales years ago and then, in retaliation for being thrown out, perpetrated his most famous prank. On that occasion he had engraved invitations sent to many of New York's "Four Hundred" bidding them to attend a reception at his Long Island home for the Prince of Wales. Many persons in furs and silks and evening clothes motored out—and found the address was that of a vacant lot. On other occasions, Ferguson (correct) had been Prince Michael Alexandrovitch, Lord Wallingford and Prince Alexander. Under those names he had been thrown in jail and caused no end of embarrassment for the rightful owners of the titles. As a stowaway on the Ile De France, "Romanoff" discussed world affairs with the first class passengers. He made his headquarters in the dog kennels on the top deck of the vessel. There he stored his suitcases, his variety of costumes and his changes of linen. There he slept until he thought of a way to get a first class cabin gratis. He told a steward on the second day out he had lost the key to his own cabin, and the obliging officer gave him a temporary cabin. For four days he managed to carry it off—peeing the promenade deck in smart attire in the afternoon and loitering in the salon in his tuxedo in the evening. Then he met Edward Oudhay, Jr., Chicago packer. While chatting with him about the affairs of men and nations, he mentioned "my good friend, Captain Blanceart, commander of the ship." That night Oudhay dined at the captain's table and mentioned the "close friendship." An investigation began, and "Romanoff" went to the ship's brig. IN MEMORIAM

BOYD LIVINGSTONE
 At Clyde River, on April 22nd inst., Boyd Livingstone, aged 73 years. Mr. Livingstone's death has caused a feeling of profound sadness in the hearts of everyone in this vicinity. He seemed so hearty and strong that death could not claim him, and yet he has gone from us to the land where there is no death, and no sorrow. His last sickness was brief and few realized that in less than one week he would pass from us to the better land. He was a friendly man, and made and retained many friends. His home was a model of hospitality and sociability, and he will be missed very greatly from our midst. His fine, strong, musical voice, which he used for the glory of God, as a leader of the service of praise, will be missed when we gather together at worship and at funerals. His pleasant smile and friendly greeting will be sorely missed by all who knew him. "He walked with God and he was not, for God took him," and we must say "Thy will be done." He leaves to mourn his widow, four sons and one daughter, Adam at Kingston, Gordon and Parker in Megford, Mass., Watson and Ina at home. The funeral was held Tuesday at 1 o'clock.

MRS. JOHN MCLEAN
 On Tuesday the 8th day of March, Mrs. John McLean, a very highly esteemed resident of Charlottetown, passed peacefully away at her home there at the age of 67 years.

The deceased had not been feeling very well for several months before the evening of the end that her case was thought to be at all dangerous. For some time it was felt that her health had just become somewhat run down for the time being, but that it would no longer be as well as ever again. But as the weeks went by she did not gain in strength as she should have done. She often complained of feeling tired. All that medical skill and kind friends could do was done but all to no avail.

The family are feeling the loss of their mother very keenly.

Mrs. McLean was one of a family of five brothers and five sisters.

The brothers were Mr. John McPherson, Outlook, Sask., Mr. Archibald McPherson, Brookfield, Mr. Daniel McPherson, Broderick, Sask., Mr. Dougald McPherson.

It soon became evident that instead of improving she was gradually growing weaker. Her supply of reserve strength little by little wasted away and on the above mentioned date her gentle spirit winged its heavenward flight.

Mr. John McLean, husband of the deceased, passed away in 1924.

Mrs. McLean now leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother, five sons and three daughters. The sons are: Dan, Archibald McLean, C. N. Railway, Brudalbane, Angus McLean, Dartington, Clarence McLean, Royal Bank, Charlottetown, and Stirling McLean and Wesley McLean at the old home and the daughters are: Mrs. Albert Paul, Brookfield, Mrs. Walter Rackham, Hunter River, Mrs. Colin Matheson, Brudalbane and George McLean, another son predeceased his mother in 1922 and another daughter, Miss Annie McLean passed away in 1917.

The deceased was a lady who was widely known and was held in high esteem by all. She took a deep interest in all that pertained to the welfare of the community, in the school and the church. In times of sickness none could be kinder than she was. Henceforth many a needy one will miss her loving and tender care.

She was a loyal member of the Presbyterian church and was a generous contributor to the different departments of the church's work. But while she will be missed in the different spheres and activities of life it is in the home that her loss will be felt most keenly. There her presence was always a benediction and now that she has gone all will be sad and lonely without her.

A few days before the end came she gathered the members of the family about her and gave to them her parting words of advice. The scene was a very solemn and touching one and her farewell message will not be soon forgotten. The coming of the end had no terrors for her. She knew in whom she had believed and that faith which had kept her strong and courageous all through life did not fail her in the Swellings of Jordan. She looked forward with comfort to the reaching of this home beyond the tide, where one never grows tired or weary, and where suffering and sorrows are unknown. Her passing was one of deep peace.

The funeral, which was a very large one, was held on the afternoon of Thursday, March 10th. The service was conducted by Rev. R. Hensley Staver and was a very impressive one. The floral tributes were very beautiful.

Interment was in the Brookfield cemetery.

Walter: "I want a pair of boy's shoes, please, size fourteen."
 Shopman: "Sorry, sonny but I don't stock fourteens."
 Walter: "Oh, then I had better take two pairs of sevens."
