EXCELLENT LECTURE BY HON. DR. R. MCMILLAN

There was a large attendance at the Caledonian Club Rooms last night to hear Hon. Dr. McMillan's lecture on "Why it is unethical for medical men to advertise." The President, Mr. D. J. McDonald occupied the chair. Dr. McMillan was in excellent form and delivered his most interesting lecture in fine voice and expression. At the close he was tendered a cordial vote of thanks on the motion of ex-Mayor McKenna, seconded by Mr. George Tweedy and supported by Dr. Dewar, Dr. Tildmarsh, Dr. H. D. Johnson, Hon. Geo. E. Hughes, and Hon. F. J. Nash.

BASIC PRINCIPLES OF MEDICAL ETHICS

It is not easy perhaps to find a solid basis for Medical Ethics any more than for general ethics a problem which has always puzzled philosophers. The standard of ethics varies in different stages of civilization and among different classes of people living at the same time and in the final analysis it may be said that no better standard of ethics than the better kind of current opinion has been proposed and I shall endeavor to give some expression and interpretation to what may be called representative medical opinion. There are three principles regarded as the corner stones of medical ethics. First the relation of a medical practitioner towards his patients should ever be in exact conformity to the "Golden Rule" whatsoever you would that men should do to you do even so to them. Second—in his relations to his patients his interests should be his highest consideration above and beyond any other consideration. Third—in his duties to the state, and to the laws of his country his guiding principle should be the words of the Gospel, "Render to Caesar the things that are God's. The duty of a medical man to his profession is one of the highest; he is called upon to fulfill and he regards with respect and obedience the regulations of all duty constituted medical bodies which are in authority over him according to the law of the country, as well as the rules of those medical societies of which he is voluntarily a member and he should obey them in spirit as well as in letter. He respects professions which support movements which promote the welfare of the profession recognizing in majority rule the spirit of Democracy. In all dealings with patients their interest and health should be the guide for his conduct towards them. Their trust in the profession is great but the obligation to be true to their interest is greater and any signal failure in this respect is wholly discolorable and inexcusable. The consequence of breach of the rules may be most serious from a professional point of view involving even the removal of the offender's name from the medical register and so making his professional

FUR BUYERS HAD BIG DAY IN SUMMERSIDE

Total Purchases Ran Well Over $10,000.—Messrs. McLure and MacKinnon Return to the City Today.

Messrs. McLure and MacKinnon had another big fur buying day at Summerside yesterday, the total purchases running well over $10,000. They conclude their buying today at noon and leave for home on the 3 o'clock train. It is their expectation to return to Summerside in the near future and spend two or three more days, as they have had inquiries from a large number of fox ranchers in Prince George's County who could not get in this week. Some good quality skins were purchased yesterday at the particular price of $300 for a particularly fine specimen. It was of medium size with a full furred neck, blue back, a medium silver, bright and sparkling and with a large brush and a clear well defined white tip. Two others in the same lot brought $275 and $250 respectively. On the whole, however, the pelts purchased yesterday were not up to the standard of the previous fur buy, many of them having poor brushes and a lot of them without tips. Quite a number were off color which naturally reduced the price and a lot were pup pelts not sufficiently turned to command a good figure.

STORMY SCENE IN GERMAN REICHSTAG

(Canadian Press) BERLIN, Dec. 16.—Bedlam broke loose in the Reichstag today when Philipp Scheidemann, head of the Social Democrats, attacking Defence Minister Gessler charged that a secret existed in the budget for the manufacture and hoarding of arms and aeroplanes in Russia. To this the right parties shouted "traitor".

BASES OF ETHICS

In 1511 in England power and authority was given to a body of physicians to examine, approve and admit physicians for general practice and in 1518 this body was given a Royal Charter and made a College of Physicians of England and its officers and the statutes of this college form one of the earliest and most important codes of ethics. It is not necessary to detail the origin and formation of the many colleges of Physicians and of Surgeons as well as Medical associations which have been formed throughout the history of the medical profession suffice to say that there has always been an exact similarity of the aims, ideals, statutes and regulations to which their members have faithfully and zealously endeavored to adhere. All have had unwritten traditions and also specific codes of ethics plainly written to indicate to their members a proper professional line of conduct. Those obligations are very binding on the Medical profession which from time immemorial has ranked with Theology and Law as one of the great tribune "Learned Professions." Those three great professions have been given great and unusual privileges of conduct and action and are very much less circumscribed and limited by legal restrictions than are other professions. But proportionately as the privileges are greater so also are their obligations and responsibilities greater thus their word of honor once given in a professional manner, or their fellowship obligation to their Colleges and Associations is sacred and binding with all the effect of an oath. An honorable Member of the Medical profession must always be true to his fellowship pledges, and hold in deep reverence the Code of Ethics of which he is a member, knowing that violation of his vows means dishonor as a man, degradation and loss of professional status. MANY MORE ALIAS SANTA CLAUSES ARE NEEDED

There is a Long List of Poor Children Who Will be Disappointed on Christmas Morning Unless You Respond

Instant action is necessary if you wish to have all the homes of the poor visited by Santa in Christmas morning. You should become an Alias Santa Clause because it means so little sacrifice on your part and all the difference in the world to the wistful little kiddie who is depending on your action for the kind of a Christmas he will spend. His only wish is to see Santa Claus and his only want as expressed in these columns may seem more or less trifling to you, but to those hoping for Santa's visit, it means the difference between a sad, empty Christmas and one that contains as it properly should, something of joy and happiness. It is not so much the material present that has the power to make these Santa-less children, especially the younger ones happy, but to them, the all important fact that they were not forgotten by Santa. Much has been said concerning a child's faith and certainly nothing is sadder than the small boy or girl who has lost faith in Santa Claus—merely because that person proved a disappointment. Will you help to preserve that faith? You can do so with but little trouble.

FINED $1,250 FOR DIVULGING PRISON SECRETS

Major Blake, Former Governor of British Prison, Convicted in London Court.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—At the central criminal court here today, Major Blake, formerly Governor of Pentonville Prison, was convicted on a charge of divulging the official secrets act and was fined £250 costs. The defending counsel unavailingly pleaded that the offences to come within the official secrets act had been done contrary to the public interest. The judge cut the defendant's counsel short by saying that this sort of illustration had gone far enough. Major Blake was Governor of Pentonville Prison when Frederick Bywaters was hanged in January, 1923, for the murder of a man named Thompson. Mrs. Thompson was also hanged about the same time at Holloway Jail for the same crime. The affair created a big popular sensation. Major Blake eventually retired from the prison service, and in October last, wrote in a London evening paper a series of reminiscences. One article dealt with Bywaters and his last few days of life while under the care of Major Blake at Pentonville. Under the caption "What Bywaters said to me" Major Blake declared that at the end of the interview, on the day before the execution, Bywaters asked him as a favor to come to him the next morning at 8.30 and have a last talk. The execution was fixed for nine o'clock. Major Blake went on in these words: "The young man shook me warmly by the hands and said: 'It is her (Mrs. Thompson) I want to speak to you about, Sir, I will swear she was not guilty.' 'I said: 'My boy, that is no good now. She was tried and found guilty. She appealed and there is nothing left. In any case it would not be a very happy life for her after all that has happened.' 'He said 'I cannot bear to think of my man mauling her about.' 'I replied: 'They will be very gentle. Don't think of it. There is only a minute or two left. If you should like to hear you say that you are sorry for what you did.' 'I am, Sir, and—' said Bywaters, and then the door opened and they (the executioners) came in. 'He shook hands, and he said: 'Yes, Sir, I really am sorry; God bless you, and they marched him to the shed to send him on his last voyage.'"

DEVELOPMENT ENDS IN JAIL SENTENCES

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 16.—A romantic episode ended in jail sentences for both participants in Lindsay police court when Charles Butterfield, aged 32, was sentenced to two months in jail, and a $50 fine, and his 16-year-old bride, who pleaded guilty to securing a marriage license under false pretences, both having stated the girl to be 18 years old. It was brought out at the trial that the young woman had been sent by her parents to Halliburton to visit relatives in the hope that her absence would result in an estrangement with Butterfield, whom the parents frowned on as a suitor. The latter, however, hired a motor car and catching up to the train at Cameron, took the young woman off returned in haste to Lindsay, where they were married.

Fifty-two and a half per cent. is held in the old country and nineteen and a half in Canada while the U. S. holdings are nineteen per cent. President Beatty's statement followed a cable report of a speech in London by Sir John Pongson, President of the Institute of Bankers, in which he said British holdings in the railway had decreased from 65 to 40 per cent. DOHENEY AND FALL ACQUITTED OF CHARGE

(Canadian Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny were acquitted today of the conspiracy charge which grew out of the Senate oil disclosures. Nineteen hours after the case was placed in his hands, a jury in criminal court here decided there had been no proof of criminal conspiracy in the oil leasing negotiations of 1921 and 1922, resulting in the award of government leases to Doheny interests while Fall was secretary of the Interior and Doheny had sent him $100,000 in a little black satchel. The verdict ended the conspiracy proceedings against the former cabinet official and the oil magnate, as no appeal is possible. Both still are under indictment for bribery, however, as a result of the $100,000 transaction. Their counsel believe that charge will not be pressed but the prosecution indicated today that no decision to drop the bribery charge had been reached. Fall and Harry Sinclair, with whom he negotiated the Teapot Dome oil lease, also are under indictment on both conspiracy and bribery charges.
